

HANGED.

THE ANARCHISTS PAY THE PENALTY.

FISCHER, PARSONS, SPIES AND ENGEL, WAS HANGED 11:45.—THEIR STRUGGLE FEARFUL TO BEHOLD.

CHICAGO, COOK COUNTY JAIL, NOV. 11.—Following close upon the telegraphic report from Springfield that Governor Oglesby had decided once for all, the deputies commenced at 10:27 a. m., distributing tickets to reporters who were to watch the march to the gallows.

At 9:10 a. m. Chief Deputy Gleason arrived with the fatal documents authorizing the execution. Gleason immediately went into close conference with the sheriff in his private apartment, which was locked and bolted at once on the inside. While they were still conferring Spies' internal fever had so increased as to induce him to order a glass of Rhine wine, which was brought to his cell and swallowed at a gulp. A few minutes were occupied by him in writing autographs for the officers attached to the sheriff's office.

At 10 a. m. Parsons, Fischer and Spies asked for twenty minutes each on the gallows in which to make a speech. The Sheriff did not immediately return an answer to the request. Fischer is singing the Marseillaise in which the other prisoners are joining at 10 a. m.

The Springfield, Ill., conference between Captain Black and the Governor is at an end, and the Governor has just announced his final and irrevocable decision. He emphatically refuses to further interfere in behalf of the condemned men.

The greatest bustle and excitement prevailed in the jail office, but Spies, in his cell, continued writing uninterrupted, and the others remained equally nonchalant, notwithstanding the confusion that marked the beginning of the end.

10:54 a. m.—The reporters have just been admitted into the cell room to view the execution.

Representatives of the press were conducted to the north corridor and seated within a few feet of the scaffold.

11:12 a. m.—The condemned men are now eating their final lunch.

11:23 a. m.—The sheriff has just signed the death warrant.

11:24 a. m.—At 1 o'clock, a change was made in the death watch. Deputy Hartke had been guarding Spies since 8 o'clock. He reported that he had quite a long talk with the anarchists. Spies declared that he had no reason to be afraid, and then launched forth in a tirade against the court. He asserted that all of the judges who had any connection with the case had reason to tremble while the anarchists could hold up their heads and walk to the death with steady footsteps. The deputy related the manner in which the Rev. Dr. Bolton was received by Spies. The divine asked him if he would accept spiritual consolation. Spies, with a haughty shake of the head, declared that he had no use for any clergyman. "I'll pray for you all night," cried the Doctor. "Pray for yourself," returned Spies, "you need it more than I."

At 11 o'clock Spies lay down on his cot and closed his eyes, but he did not sleep. At times he got up for a drink of water, but his every movement betokened a firmness which was astonishing. So it was with the rest of the anarchists. Parsons had the nerve to entertain his guard with a song. His selection was "Annie Laurie." He sang the sweet song entirely through, and when he finished, rested his head on his hands for a few moments, and then repeated the song. His fortitude was the wonder of all who heard him. Between 1 and 2 o'clock the sheriff and his assistants tested the gallows. Heavy bags of sand were attached to the ropes and the traps sprung. The machine worked to perfection, and in all respects was satisfactory to the authorities. Then unusual quiet prevailed in the jail. The only noise in the cell room was the low voices of a few deputies turning of the keys in the lock and the rapid ticking of telegraph instruments which were telling the world of the last hours of the four anarchists.

The sheriff is now reading the death warrant to Parsons, while the deputies are putting a shroud on Engel.

The death warrant was read first to Spies then to Fischer, and then to Engel, and at 11:43 the sheriff is nearly through with Parsons.

The sheriff has finished reading the death warrants. Spies, Engel and Fischer are now in their shrouds standing at the grated door and saying adieu to friends and visitors.

11:49.—The men are now all in their shrouds and the death march has started to the scaffold.

11:54.—The drop fell at 11:54. The anarchists, Parsons, Fischer, Engel and Spies, the convicted Haymarket murderers, have been throttled by the law, the self-same law, that they had hoped to throttle.

11:55.—Fischer is dying very hard, as is also Spies. Parsons is also struggling and kicking fearfully. Fischer's last words were: "Hurrah for anarchy." The pulse of all of the anarchists stopped beating in 13 1/2 minutes.

12:12.—The coffins for the anarchists are plain black with silver screw-heads for ornaments. They have just been carried to the gallows.

AFTER THE EXECUTIONS.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11.—The coffins for the remains of the anarchists, plain black, with but the silver heads of screws for ornaments, were carried to the gallows at 12:12 a. m.

When the coffins were brought to the scaffold Sheriff Matson exclaimed: "His will be done." The bodies were lowered in the following order: Spies, Fischer, Engel, and Parsons. All looked natural. The coffin lids were quickly screwed down. Paper tags were then pasted on each for identification. The remains of Engel and Lingg, the suicide, was taken to 286 Milwaukee avenue. Fischer's wife claimed his, Mrs. Spies then took August's and Mrs. Parsons took those of her husband.

Letters were read this morning by order of the sheriff to the relatives of the doomed men notifying them that they could take possession of the bodies after the hanging and make arrangements for the funerals. The letters were delivered in person by Deputy Johnson, who was visibly affected by his duty.

Mrs. Spies, August's mother, lives at 154 Bryson street. When the deputy arrived he was at first, refused admittance, because of the impression that he was a reporter. He went around to the back door, and there a most affecting scene met his gaze. Mrs. Spies sat at the table, wailing as if her heart would break. The lamentations of the household could be heard across the street. The deputy handed the letter to Mrs. Spies sister and left.

Mrs. Engel keeps a little top and notion shop at No. 286 Milwaukee avenue. Papers were upon the windows, but the door was not locked. Entering the deputy confronted Mrs. Engel. She was calm, passionless and pale. There was no excitement there, but an ominous calm pervaded everything. Last night a large crowd gathered around Engel's place, but it was not demonstrative.

This morning there was another mob, which stared at the windows for a while and then dispersed. Deputy Johnson found Fischer's house locked, silent and deserted. This was a German neighborhood, at No. 4 Dean street, where few English speaking people could be found. The letter was left with a neighbor.

GIRLS AMONG BONDS.

AN INDUSTRY IN WHICH WOMEN ARE SUPERIOR.

THE WAY GOOD LOOKING YOUNG LADIES MAKE A HANDLE MILLIONS.—THEIR AND THEIR PAY.

"Those are the girls who make money," remarked a gentleman as a long line of girls came laughing and chatting out of a big building. They were happy and cheerful and as handsomely dressed and jauntily arrayed as if they were just making their exit from a matinee. A reporter ventured up to the eighth floor of the big building to see the money making process.

Seated at their desks in the company's office are the young ladies who act as accountants and timekeepers. They are experts at figures and the whole business of the department has been reduced to such a system that almost at a glance the cost everything that enters into the work, even to the gum on the back of a stamp, can be ascertained.

A door to the left was opened, and disclosed to view ten or a dozen girls engaged in verifying numbers and counting perfected work. Here great skill and quick perception are required. Sharp eyes run with the speed of lightning down the long rows of coupons, and verify the numbers, while other eyes, equally as quick, examine each sheet and it is passed along or tossed out as imperfect, until the finished work reaches the "counter," by whom it is bundled, marked and certified with her signature. It then goes to the great safe, where it is received for, and the work is finished.

MILLIONS OF SECURITIES.

Standing in this safe, surrounded by millions of securities, including many of the South and Central American republics, as well as those of innumerable corporations in the United States and Europe, the process of engraving and printing was explained from the time the blank paper left the stock room until it reached this safe in its finished condition. The whole business is conducted on a series of orders and receipts, and not a sheet or scrap of paper can go astray from the time it enters the establishment until it is ready for delivery. Indeed, when the safes and fireproof vaults are locked at night there isn't paper enough about the establishment for a mouse to make a bed.

Although European competition is large this country secures the better class of bond and banknote work, for in no other land has engraving in this special line reached such perfection. To-day the money makes of the United States stand at the head of the list, its inventive genius having solved many of the problems of defeating the imitator and the counterfeiter. Here for instance, is a bond of Cuba. On the back is a map of the island, and in the net of the scroll work the word "Cuba" is woven 6,000 times. It is, however, but a sample of many others, the counterfeiting of which is absolutely impossible. In the passage of each one of these sheets of paper through the house it has been subjected to fifty-two countings from as many different persons. Every spoiled and defective sheet has also been accounted for.

The engraving rooms, where skillful artists were at their work; the process by which the engraved plates were transferred to the steel press plates and hardened; the geometrical lathe for engraving scroll work, which cannot be duplicated by hand; the printing and the ink rooms—all were visited, as were also the great iron vaults, containing hundreds of perfect plates, from which an average of 10,000,000 each of securities have been printed.

IN THE ENGRAVING ROOMS.

And except in the heavier parts of the business and the engraving rooms the girls who make money were everywhere. They were met in the halls and rooms of the building, their arms burdened with bundles of securities, which they were transporting on their way to perfection, the amount in hand being great enough to make them millionaires; in the rooms running numbering machines, as counters, pliners, flyers, and in the press room, where each girl was assisting "her man" in running the press, by damping, laying and flying the sheet, while "her man" applied the ink, prepared the plate and did the presswork. In this department each girl speaks of the pressman as "her man," the two working together, and when one is absent the other, perforce, is idle.

In fact whenever girls are employed in the mechanical department of making money, they appear as man's assistant and helpmate. In the tower of the building there was a perfect beehive of girls hard at work examining and preparing the money on the tables before them, and happy and cheerful looking ladies they were, too, as were about all employed in the establishment.

There, too, you find pure, unadulterated democracy. The girl who is engaged in counting $10,000 bonds and examining their coupons does not think herself a bit more elevated than the one who is assorting ten cent notes, nor does she believe herself justified in drawing invidious distinctions. She knows by this mimicry, as in real life, the whole of time may throw the bonds into the lap of her companion, and give her the small change as a portion.

The very character of the work precludes the possibility of much talking. The eye, the touch and the mind must be intent, on the task in hand, for negligence or inattention is certain to be detected at the next stage the money takes in transit.

"Why do you employ girls in the process of money making instead of men and boys?" asked the reporter of his guide.

"Because they are quicker of perception, have a more delicate sense of touch and are more tractable than boys. In fact, a girl of 17, if suited to our employ, has the fixed habits of a man of 25, combined with greater exactness. Then they have a deeper sense of duty, they are exactly as they are instructed and are in every way more reliable than boys, or even very young men."

Why a Man Burned His Will.

Christ Lutheran church, in Marion township, Berks county, Pa., which was last summer struck by lightning and destroyed, was one of the few Lutheran churches in America when the Rev. Henry Mathier Muhlenberg, the father of Lutheranism in this country, came here. Another Lutheran edition, Zion's is not far away. The two churches were the result of a split in Zion's over one hundred and fifty years ago. After the destruction of Christ a proposition was submitted to reunite them after a century and a half and build a handsome structure in Stouchsburg, a small village. This was voted down. Jacob Spatz, one of the members, who is childless, had long ago made his will, giving everything he possessed to Christ church when he died. He wanted the church built in Stouchsburg, and when he heard that the congregation had voted against his wish he called some friends together and in their presence burned his will. He is worth $20,000.

It is said that a prominent lawyer of Lynchburg is indignant at "attacks" on Mr. Tucker for his speech in the "anarchists' case," because a lawyer has a right to undertake any case he may see fit to engage in. Exactly so. But the wonder is that Mr. Tucker should have been willing to exercise this "right" when by so doing he would be compelled to advocate a federal policy, which he has heretofore consistently denounced as subversive of constitutional government.

TO THE WORLD.

MUSCLE AND NERVE.

BY A NEW YORK DETECTIVE.

"Clark," said the chief, "I'm going to detail you, with full power, to hunt down the West Side gang of burglars. Their games have been so daring lately that the papers are crying out against us, and I'm determined to have them tracked down if possible."

"Very well," said I.

"But," said the chief, "you must be on your guard to an unusual degree, for in some unknown manner they get information from this office."

"Never fear for me," returned I, and started away on my mission.

I knew that I had a hard job on my hands.

The gang referred to comprised among its members some of the most daring and skillful cracksmen to be found in the city of New York; men whose dexterity in their peculiar line was only equaled by their ferocity and utter lawlessness.

However, I had met with all kinds in the course of my work, and not hold even this much feared West Side gang in very great dread.

Days passed by and deepened into weeks before I got upon the track of any of the company.

Weeks more passed by before I could get a chance to accomplish anything, even though I shadowed my men constantly.

At length my time came; they were out for work.

I could tell this by the fact of their being in pairs, and also from the hours and the manner in which they acted.

"At last!" I muttered, and followed at a proper distance, keeping within the shadow of the doorways, as I passed over street after street in their wake.

At length they turned a corner, and I hastened forward in order that I might not lose sight of them.

As I turned the street I paused a moment and peered ahead.

By the light of the street lamps near to where they were standing, I could now see that they had commenced work on the door-lock of a large wholesale house.

Cautiously I creep forward, in order to obtain a better view of the silent operators.

The whole thing appeared in my eyes like a bona fide burglary, and I never suspected that it was a put-up job.

Such, indeed, was the fact, and I had not advanced ten feet nearer towards the little group before I was knocked senseless.

By the weight of the blow and the very peculiar pain I felt subsequently from it, I am led to believe that I was struck down with a "billy."

When I came to I was sitting in a big chair.

I started and looked around me, the hum of many voices in my ears, and I found myself in a large room half full of strangers.

I gazed around me.

The truth came to my mind as I gazed upon the faces of men who were standing near.

I was a prisoner in the midst of a gang of burglars I had been tracing down.

It was a terrible situation, fully as awful as anything that has happened to me in my danger-filled career; but I did not lose my self-possession.

I found that my foes had not bound nor manacled me, probably reasoning that I had no chance of getting away from such numbers.

I am not a large man, but I am well endowed with muscles.

I observed that no notice had been taken of my coming back to consciousness by the men who were in the room, talking, drinking and playing cards.

Forty feet from me, at one end of the large room, there was a door very slightly ajar.

Five feet from me stood a man whom I recognized at once, in spite of his disguise.

He was a clerk in the office of the chief, and a man who had always been trusted implicitly.

I made up my mind to trust to my muscle, to seize this man, to make him cover my body and retreat to the door. If I escaped it was quite sufficient; and if I failed—well, I had nothing to venture, and I resolved to carry the idea into execution.

By some over-sight they had not taken a little "pepper-box" pistol I

RIOTING MINERS.

ATTEMPT TO DRIVE OUT THE HUNGARIANS.

SEVERAL PERSONS WOUNDED—MINING OPERATIONS TEMPORARILY SUSPENDED—MILITARY, &c.

A few minutes before 8 o'clock yesterday morning fire alarm No. 9, which, as is generally known, is the general alarm for calling out the military of the city, in cases of riot or other emergency, was sounded from the City Hall. Its echoes had hardly ceased before there was considerable stir and excitement on the streets, members of the different companies hurrying to their respective armories and being stopped at every crossing by eager questioners desiring to know what it meant.

Inquiry at police headquarters explained the causes of the alarm. Mayor Maunson had received a telegram from the Mayor of Pocahontas, stating that there was serious trouble there between native white and colored miners and the Hungarian miners, and that Governor Lee, in response to an application from him, directed that a detachment of the military of this city should be sent to the scene of the disturbance.

In accordance with these instructions, details from the three companies were made as follows: Home Guard, 20 men, under the command of Lieut. Biggers; Light Artillery Blues, 30 men, under the command of Capt. Yancey; and 10 men from the Fitz Lee Troop, under the command of Capt. Page.

The detachment, properly equipped with arms and ammunition, left the city on a special train a little before 9 a. m., accompanied by Mayor Maunson.

THE FIRST NEWS.

The Virginian immediately sent a telegram of inquiry as to the nature of the disturbance to Pocahontas and

But 11 o'clock received the following reply:

"American and negro miners demand that the Hungarian miners shall be sent away, but the company desire to retain them. The native miners yesterday prevented the Hungarians from going to work in the mines, which resulted in the suspension of business for the day. The authorities have a strong force sworn to preserve the peace. Nobody has been killed, but several were wounded yesterday in the attempt to resume work. The Pocahontas miners are supported by those of the Blue Stone mines."

This was the first and only news concerning the trouble received during the day. It was placed on the Virginian bulletin board, which was surrounded during the afternoon by successive crowds of persons anxious to hear an authentic account of the alleged rioting.

Other telegrams of inquiry for further and fuller particulars were sent, but no replies were received for some unexplained reason. The probability is that the trouble was not so serious as was apprehended, and that when our soldier boys arrived there they found everything quiet and no signs of brimstone or bloodshed. They will probably stay over till Tuesday in order to prevent a renewal of the difficulty and protect the foreign miners from assault in the event that the Company decided to keep them on in spite of the demand of the native miners for their discharge.

LATER.

POCAHONTAS, VA., Nov. 13.—12:50 a. m. The strike which began Thursday morning in consequence of the action of the miners' meeting Wednesday, the object being to prevent the company from employing Hungarian and slave labor.

Friday morning the Hungarians were met at the mine's mouth by the white and black miners, and were driven with yells and pistolshots into the town.

One man was wounded. The Hungarians were aroused, and it is said, opened fire.

In the afternoon some new hands arrived on the train from Castle Garden were with difficulty escorted from the town to the company's store. The sheriff has a strong posse summoned from other parts of the county on the grounds. There are no serious apprehensions of a riot.

The rumors of Jefferson Davis's serious illness last week were without foundation.

INTERESTING FIGURES.

As the smoke of the battle clears away the Democrats do not show the same degree of joy as was first shown by them. While we have not all we fought for, we are in no degree cast down. Below we clip from the Bristol News and the figures here given may be relied on as very near correct: "The Democrats have carried the House of Delegates, but not by the large majority they have claimed. The Republicans have probably elected 43 members, and the Democrats 57. Having "fixed" a portion of the Senate two years ago so that they started into the race with thirteen majority, of course they have that body by a large majority.

And now comes the race for the U. S. Senate. Mr. Barbour has the right of way, but the right of way is not always respected by the Democracy and there is likely to be a collision. Gov. Lee, John Goode and Staples are alive. It is likely the tilt will come between Barbour and Lee. Senator Daniel is said to be for Lee. It is likely—a venture that Gov. Lee can get some aid from this county. As speaker Stuart has been snowed under by his beloved Alexandria, there will be a lively fight between Cardwell and Pollard for the speakership of the House. We shall look on with lively, but tender solitude while these anxious people worry over their captured prizes.

In this Ninth Congressional district, which the Republicans have carried eight, by about the following majorities: Wytke, 179; Scott, 313; Bland, 85; Dickenson, 90; Wise, 70; Lee, 51; Buchanan, say 50; Tazewell, say 1,000; (as there was no Democrat running and the majority for Moore, Rep. over Wingo, Rep. was 282.) Total Republican majority in district, say, ONE THOUSAND EIGHT HUNDRED AND THIRTY-FIVE.

The Democrats carry the following: Craig, 372; Giles, say 50; Pulaska, 140; Smyth, 180; Washington, avg'd 330; Russell, 533. Total Dem. maj's in district, 1605. So that it appears that the district has gone Republican by some 230, as near as we can now calculate it.

In addition to this the other white counties, west of the Blue Ridge, and beginning with Roanoke, have all gone Republican, to wit: Grayson nearly 300; Carrol, 85; Floyd, 250; Montgomery, 154; Roanoke, 216.

In other words of the nineteen counties usually called the southwest, the Democrats have carried six by some 1,600, and the Republicans have carried thirteen by some 2,800, or nearly so.

ELECTIONS were held in a number of States besides Va., and the result is quite satisfactory to the Republicans: The Democrats carried New York in the State officers, but the Republicans carried both branches of the Legislature.

New Jersey went overwhelmingly Republican.

Maryland went Democratic by a reduced majority.

Rhode Island and Massachusetts gives large Republican majorities.

Nebraska give thirty thousand Republican majority.

Ohio is the banner State. Gov. Foraker is elected by a largely increased majority.

How is it that at St. Clair's Bottom in the recent election six more votes were in the ballot box than voters polled? Why is it that when the judge drew these six votes out, all that were drawn out were Mustard votes? We don't like to be too inquisitive, but we would like to know this.

We are told that at one precinct in this county they voted in strips and when the votes were counted the tickets were torn apart and put on the string. Is this the way to count one vote two?

Official returns from all the counties Pennsylvania give Hart, Rep. for State treasurer a plurality of 44,888.

POCAHONTAS OUTBREAK.

While we do not sympathize with strikes on general principals, still we are with our home miners against the Hungarians. The policy of our country has been to encourage emigration from all the old countries and to protect those who choose to cast their lots with us; but when our country is to be filled with the lowest class of foreigners, it is time to call a halt. The miners of the Southwest are protected by law and by the votes of American citizens, and if the American people are to be put aside for the class of people employed by the Pocahontas Coal Company these outbreaks are to be expected. It is natural that our home people should like to do the work and not be crowded out by Hungarians. We do not think the way to drive the Hungarians out is by killing them—but it seems to us a corporation should have sense enough to see the way the wind blows. If our mines are to be run by foreign labor, better throw down the walls of protection and let this miserable horde stay on their side of the cat-pond and work their own mines. If a Protective tariff does not protect American labor then let us have no Protective tariff and our country will go to the dogs.

The Workingman and His Employer.

Philadelphia Record. When the employer puts a ballot into the hands of men who work for him and asks them to vote it as a "personal favor," he expects that his request will be treated as a command. People who talk of the ballot as a "personal favor" have an extremely dull appreciation of the duties and responsibilities attending the exercise of the elective franchise. The ballot is a sacred trust to be employed solely for the best interests of the political community of which the voter is a member. Workingmen, therefore, have no ballots to be distributed as "gifts to modern friends without." When a voter gives away his ballot as a personal favor or in servile compliance with an insolent demand, he surrenders along with it his manhood and his dignity as an American citizen.

It has been arrogantly asserted that an employer has a right to insist that the workingmen whom he hires have "no right" to vote against what he regards as his interest. Such a proposition contains the false assumption that the employer is the proprietor of what is best in political policy for the interest of the workingmen to whom he pays the wages of labor. It would convert the employer into a sort of feudal baron, and the workingmen into his thralls or serfs. In the presidential contest of 1880 a State committee in Pennsylvania issued electoral tickets of a peculiar fashion, in order that bosses superintendents of mines and factories might easily "spot" the workingmen who should refuse to vote it. The act was greeted with such a storm of denunciation that it has not been repeated. But the attempts to coerce workingmen in the elections have not yet been abandoned.

A Double Tragedy.

Richmond Dispatch. LOVINGSTON, Nov. 14.—Particulars have just reached here of a shocking tragedy that occurred near Greenfield post-office, in this county, Friday afternoon. It seems that John Beaver and Scantling, two men living in that vicinity, had been paying attentions for some time to a young woman in their neighborhood named Alice Woods. On the evening mentioned both were visiting here at the house of her brother, Hat Woods. While the latter was engaged in cutting Scantling's hair, the two men and Wood's wife, who also was in the room, were startled by a pistol-shot fired by John Beaver, who, with Alice Woods, was sitting a little apart from the others near a window in the same room. Alice Woods was seen to fall, and at the same instant Beaver placing the revolver to his own breast fired three times in rapid succession and fell to the floor. Both died instantly, the first bullet having entered the girl's right temple and two having pierced Beaver's heart. The pistol used was a 32-calibre. There were no witnesses to the dreadful scene except three persons mentioned, and they had not the slightest premonition of it until the first shot was fired. Jealousy is supposed to have been the cause of the fatal act, as Scantling was apparently the preferred suitor. Magistrate E. M. Harris held an inquest Saturday evening over the remains of the murdered woman and her slayer, and the jury rendered a verdict in accordance with the above facts.

The German ship Camelia, which arrived at New York from Hamburg Saturday, rescued the crew of the American brig Osco, which was in a sinking condition.

By an explosion of a stationary boiler in a saw-mill near Knoxville, Ga., yesterday, Forest Mathews, the owner, and two negro helpers were killed instantly and another negro fatally scalded.

The stock and buildings of the Os-good Manufacturing Company, at Pennock, Ill., burned last night.

The printers in the four leading job printing establishments of Louisville, Ky., struck yesterday owing to the refusal of the proprietors to advance the price of composition on book work to 4 1/2 cents per thousand.

The Election

Elections were held on Tuesday the 8th inst. in New York, Maryland, Virginia, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Oregon, Nebraska and Iowa. The results in many instances were great surprises, and upset all calculations. New York went Democratic by a plurality in the neighborhood of 20,000. In the city the entire Democratic ticket was carried, Fellows being elected district attorney by about 20,000 plurality. The labor or George vote fell off over one-half. The Legislature is Republican. In Ohio Foraker is elected governor by an increased majority. The Republicans have carried the Legislature in New Jersey. The Democrats have a majority in the Virginia Legislature, insuring the election of John S. Barbour to the Senate to succeed Riddleberger, but the Republicans have the popular vote in the State by about 5,000. Ames is elected governor of Massachusetts by the Republicans, who made large gains. The postponed election in Rhode Island for Congress resulted in a victory for Warren O. Arnold, Republican. Owing to the Republican disaffection in Philadelphia, the Democratic candidates for sheriff and controller are elected. The rest of the city ticket is Republican. In Maryland the Democrats elected Jackson governor by 10,000 majority. The scheme for a constitutional convention was not carried. Maxwell, Republican, was elected Supreme Court justice in Nebraska by over 20,000 majority. There will be the usual heavy Democratic majority in the Mississippi legislature.

NEW YORK. The Democratic State ticket was elected in New York by a plurality of about 20,000. The returns on the legislature indicate that it will stand: Assembly—Republicans, 73; Democratic, 55. Senate—Republicans, 19; Democrats, 13. The last Assembly contain 74 Republicans and 24 Democrats. The last Senate had 20 Republicans and 12 Democrats. The majority in New York city for Cook, Democratic candidate for secretary of State, is about 55,000. The total vote in New York city on the State ticket was: Cook, 113,634; Grant, 58,624; George, 35,053; Hall, 5,189. There were several surprising things in the vote in the State, and the most notable, perhaps, was the failure of the Republican rank and file to support Fred Grant. The greatest feature of the New York city election was the fearful out in the Henry George vote. He gets only about 1/2 of that cast for him last year, 38,000, against 68,000. This was not caused by the defection of the socialists, for, as shrewd judges predicted, they have not 5,000 voters in the city. They made noise enough for 40,000.

IOWA. The returns indicate that Larrabee, Republican candidate for governor, is elected by a plurality of 5,000 to 10,000.

NEBRASKA. The vote was extremely light and tickets badly scratched in Nebraska. But Maxwell, Republican, is elected justice of the supreme court by from 20,000 to 30,000 majority. The Republican candidates for regents of the State university are also elected by about the same majority.

RHODE ISLAND. The postponed election for representative to Congress in the second district of Rhode Island resulted in a Republican victory. Warren O. Arnold, Republican, received a majority of 542 over Bradley, Democrat.

MICHIGAN. There was a light vote polled at Detroit. The Democrats elect the mayor by 4,000 and entire State ticket, except treasurer (the third term defeating their candidate by 2,000). They also have thirteen out of sixteen aldermen and a majority of the board of estimates. The labor and prohibition candidates for mayor polled each about 1,300 votes.

DAKOTA. It is predicted at Bismark on the returns that have already come in that the majority in favor of division of the Territory will be heavy as South Dakota will poll its vote almost unanimously in favor of it. Full returns will not be in for at least two days.

OREGON. Prohibition is defeated by about 3,600 in Oregon. Only two counties are known to have voted in its favor. The salaries amendment is defeated. The amendment changing the time of the election is probably carried.

ILLINOIS. The Republican city and county ticket was elected in Chicago by a large majority. Judge Gary was practically unanimously re-elected, receiving nearly all the votes cast. Judge Longenecker, the Republican candidate for States attorney, was also elected by an immense majority. The vote for county commissioners was overwhelmingly Republican.

VIRGINIA. The State has gone Democratic. The returns show that the Democrats have certainly elected fifty-one out of the one hundred members of the lower house of the legislature, and twenty-seven of the forty Senators. The indications are, however, that the Democrats may have a two-thirds majority in the legislature. The Democrats carried Richmond by about 700. They carried Norfolk, Portsmouth, Lynchburg, Winchester, and other cities. Petersburg elect two Republicans to the house of delegates by 392 majority.

Plasterburg Notes.

Special Correspondent to the TIMES. I will give you a few notes from this point as you seem to have no correspondent from this place.

All is quiet along the Potomac since the election of Roberts. No one seems to be surprised.

Mr. C. D. Carter is minus a very fine steer which fell over a precipice 100 or so feet in the North Fork of the Holston river and broke its leg.

Miss Bettie Johnson attacked a very large hooting owl near the residence of Mr. John S. Meadows and killed it with a rock.

There has not been fewer than 600 red-eyes taken from the waters of the North Fork of Holston, with hooks and lines by two noted fishermen, viz. Wm. H. Poston and Jonas Moore.

Farmers are more or less surprised at the shortage in the corn crop which they find in gathering the same.

On last Sunday morning at 8 o'clock, Mr. James C. Roberts passed over the river and entered into the rest that remains for the pure in heart.

A few minutes before his death he told his father his prospects were bright for Heaven and not to raise any excitement as he knew the end was nigh, he then breathed his last, and his soul entered the pearly gates and is now basking in the sunlight of eternal glory.

It is hard for his devoted wife, father, brothers and sisters to give him up; but Heaven is richer if they are poorer. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. B. W. S. Bishop on last Monday.

The scripture upon which his remarks were based is found in 4th chapter, 13th to 17th verses of Paul 1st epistle to the Thessalonians. May the sod rest softly on his grave.

Walker's Creek Notes.

Special Correspondent to the TIMES. As this is my first attempt to give items, I trust the readers of the TIMES will avoid criticism, especially the space this occupies.

Mr. Chas. H. Anderson, on last Nov. 6th, was attacked by a snake which followed him about when they parted, I do not know what terms I suppose not on very good one as he held on to his fence rail until he had the door knob within his grasp.

Mr. Jos. Gollehon has moved into our neighborhood. We give him and his family a hearty welcome.

Mrs. Geo. Harris is still very ill. There was several "moonsailers" pass through our vicinity the day before the election.

Mr. H. Fox has about completed his new barn.

I have heard several compliments paid the TIMES, both public and private, and I trust the TIMES may have an over production of subscribers.

With kindest regards, I wish the enterprising Publishers a happy, long and prosperous life.

Mr. W. S. Baldwin, with Cone, Shields & Co., Knoxville, was in town Tuesday. He had just returned from N. C., where he made a very successful trip.

Miss Leona Palmer, attending the S. W. Institute at Glade Spring was visiting relatives in the city this week. Gil looked pleasing.

MINER OCCURRENCES.

The News of the Week Briefly Told

Wanted—1,000 subscribers to the TIMES.

Mr. A. C. Hill has returned from St. Louis.

The boys gave a public "calithump" Friday night.

Mr. S. Gregory and daughter, of Abingdon, was in town this week.

Mr. Jos. Atkins has having the paint brush applied to his dwelling.

Mr. M. F. Umberger and wife of Cedar Springs, are visiting Mr. T. J. Wilmore.

"Skint" and "Dud" have come out in bran new rigs. Look out for mashes now.

W. P. Francis has received a new supply of goods. Call and see them, we know you will buy.

"Shorty" took a buggy ride Sunday. We are informed that he went to Rich Valley this time.

Rev. S. W. Leake, of Bristol, will preach in the Baptist Church next Sunday morning and night.

Mr. Jno. P. Ford, of the law firm of Ford & Ford, Lynchburg, was in town Tuesday on legal business.

Mr. C. E. Iron, who is in the grocery business in Wytheville, was in town the first part of the week.

The chicken cholera played havoc in the Republican poultry yard last week. Another Democratic trick.

The campaign is over now and we want our correspondents to send us the news regularly from their neighborhood.

Mr. R. B. Dickey, of Pulaski City, paid our office a pleasant visit on last Monday morning. Ruff, 'twas ever thus.

We hope our readers will excuse the typographical errors in the poetry on the first page of this paper, as we failed to correct the proof. We reproduce it corrected on this page.

Wednesday morning Mr. Jos. Atkins slaughtered a hog that weighed 500 pounds net. This takes the "cake" as far as heard from.

Mr. Steve Bonham while out driving with a young lady Tuesday evening his horse became frightened and ran away. Fortunately, the parties were not hurt.

The marrying fever has struck the town, and the preachers says its epidemic. We are to have the wedding bells ring again, perhaps next week. Well, I'll be "darned."

From the appearance of Main street yesterday it looked as if all the wagons in the county of Grayson were in town. We liked to see our Grayson friends to come Marion.

On our third page to-day will be found a striking and instructive illustration of the comparative worth of the various kinds of baking powders not in the market.

On yesterday the dray-horse of Mr. C. F. Thomas's became frightened and ran through Main street at full speed, causing considerable excitement. Mr. Henry Hester stopped the runaway horse in front of J. B. Rhea's store. No damage was done.

A Pleasant Call.

The sanctum of the TIMES was made bright by a call on yesterday from Mrs. E. B. Brady, of 7 Mile Ford and Mrs. Maggie King, of Kansas City, Mo. The latch-string of the Truitts office is always found hanging on the outside to all such callers and they will always receive a cordial welcome. The ladies were accompanied by Messrs. R. L. Humphrey and Steve Bonham.

Wedding Bells.

On yesterday, the 16th inst. at 3 o'clock at South Fork church, by Rev. Mr. Maiden, Mr. Wm. C. Britton to Miss Laura Maiden, all of Smyth county. The father of the bride officiating.

Married, at the residence of the bride's parents, on the evening of the 15th inst. by the Rev. Geo. W. Summers, Miss Ida B. Campbell to Mr. H. P. Osborne, of Fairfield, Tenn. Tennessee again captures one of Marion's fair daughters and the TIMES congratulates the representative of our sister State.

Married in Wytheville, Va., Nov. 10th by the Rev. K. C. Atkins, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. W. H. Sult, C. A. Pruner, of Marion to Miss Nannie Sult. We congratulate Charley on his good fortune in having secured so charming and accomplished mate, and wish them a long and happy life.

Married, at the residence of the bride, near St. Clair Bottom, in this county, Mr. Jas. F. Scott to Miss Sallie Wells, Nov. 16th. The bridal party repaired to the residence of Mr. Scott's where the friends of the contracting parties were handsomely entertained.

GOOD FLOUR.

MILLING INDUSTRY OF SMYTH COUNTY.

THE GLENN MILLS WITH THE ROLLER PROCESS—FLOUR EQUAL TO ANY MILL IN THE WEST.

Yankee shrewdness and Western courage are proving the redemption of the South, especially in the matter of milling machinery. A year or so ago the Southwest could not boast of a single Roller Mill in this western section. To-day there are no less than three flouring mills alone in Smyth county, which are equipped with all the latest inventions in use for the grinding of wheat by the "roller process." We will not attempt to give a description of these three mills but will take one at a time, so that we may do equal justice to each. Sometime last spring,

THE GLENN MILLS which were formerly owned and operated by our late townsman, Mr. G. G. Goodett, were changed from what is known as the "old system" to the "roller system." Mr. H. P. Copenhaver the present owner, seeing he could not compete with his brother millers in the production of a certain grade of flour determined to place his establishment on an equal footing with those of the great wheat-producing section of the west northwest. He placed his order for remodeling the Glenn Mills with the celebrated Richmond Mill Works, of Richmond, Indiana, and from these works all his machinery was furnished. While the Glenn Mills ranked high as an "old system" mill, it now ranks equally as high if not higher as a roller mill. To those who have never had the pleasure of witnessing the operation of reducing wheat to flour by smooth corrugated rolls a short description of the process may be interesting.

LOCATION. The Glenn Mills are located about three miles west Marion on the south bank of the Middle Fork of the Holston River, which stream furnishes motive power for the entire plant. The building is large and of sufficient size to furnish storage for a large quantity of wheat. On entering the building the visitor is met by the polite and accommodating head miller, Mr. W. A. Shaver, whose dusty, dress and gaiter countenance is a familiar sight to those who have had "grinding done" for these many years. Coming down the hill is to be seen a small boy astride a beast upon whose back is laid the sack of golden grain that perhaps his grandfather rode upon when a lad not much older than this same boy. The sack is taken off and the wheat dumped into a small hopper in the center of the floor, which registers the number of bushels of grain; the bottom drops out and the grain starts on its journey to the top of the building where it is to be cleaned of all its impurities in the shape of oats, weeds, and cockle; it is then piped to the first break which is made on the "rock" formerly used for doing all the work; from here it is carried to the rolls and here is where the work is done, but not without the assistance of reels which play an important part in the manufacture of flour.

This Mill has the largest bolting capacity of any mill in this section. From the reels the flour is conducted to the flour-chest and the sack is filled with flour. "Let's weigh it," Mr. Shaver says, "the sack weighs 48 pounds to the bushel," the boy exclaims, and Mr. Shaver smiles.

Mr. Copenhaver is proud of his mill, and well he should be, for it makes first-class flour as every citizen in this vicinity will testify. We have given but a meagre description of the workings of Glenn Mill, but the short distance from town enables any of our citizens to visit the place and we will guarantee a cordial welcome from both proprietor and miller.

We call attention to the law card of Ford & Ford, Lynchburg, to be found in this issue. The senior member of the firm was late Judge of the 4th district of Virginia and a gentleman who stands high in the legal profession, while the junior member, Mr. Jno. P. Ford, is a young man of fine business capacity and a late graduate of the Law School of the University of Virginia. Any of our people in need of legal help in the Hill City could place their business in no better hands than with Ford & Ford.

Last Thursday at Russell, C. H., Mr. John Puckett was married to Miss Ruth Robinson. We extend congratulations.

SAD DEATH.

OF MRS. ELLEN VICTORIA APPERSON AT MARION.

A gloom was thrown over our community on last Monday, the 14th inst. when the sad news was given out that Mrs. Ellen Victoria Apperson, wife of Dr. Jno. S. Apperson, Assistant Superintendent of the Southwestern Lunatic Asylum had passed away. Dr. Apperson had but recently moved his family to the Asylum from their country home about 9 miles west of Marion. Mrs. Apperson had been in delicate health for several years, but her friends had no serious fears for her until within the last few months. It has been but a short time since she was called upon to give up her oldest daughter, a young girl just budding into womanhood, and resign her to her mother earth. This sad affliction together with her feeble health prostrated her and she gradually withered and died, and her soul was carried to that bright haven of rest where mother and daughter are now in each others embrace, nevermore to be separated. Mrs. Apperson was a lady of the highest type; a beautiful and consistent christian and those who knew her best loved her most. As a neighbor and friend she was all that might be implied by the terms. A modest, quiet life she led surrounded by a devoted family, but she was ever ready and anxious to assist the needy and afflicted. She was a devoted and faithful wife; a just and loving mother, and an affectionate sister. Perhaps no death in our community has caused such widespread sympathy as she had such a large circle of relatives and friends. Mrs. Apperson was aged forty-seven years, ten months and two days.

Funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church on Tuesday at 1 o'clock, and were conducted by Rev. George W. Summers, assisted by the Revs. W. H. McPheeger, J. B. Greiner and R. B. Boatwright. The church was filled to overflow, and many turned away, not able to gain standing room. The services were touching and beautiful, and when the last words were said and the last song sung, all that was mortal of the late Mrs. Ellen Victoria Apperson was laid to rest at Round Hill Cemetery by the side of her beautiful daughter. The editor of the TIMES extends his sympathies to the bereaved family and friends and although not an intimate friend of the deceased he admired the life of one so pure and good, and can appreciate the many acts of kindness she performed for one that is near and dear to him.

Inter-State Commerce. WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The Inter-State Commerce Commission to-day gave a hearing upon the complaint of B. F. Cows and other business men of Danville, Va., against the Richmond and Danville, Railroad Company, Colonel George C. Cabell appeared for the complainants and James T. Worthington for the railroad. The essence of the complaint is that the rates to Danville from various points are proportionately much greater than to towns with which it competes for trade, and that they are exorbitant and unreasonable. The railroad, in its rejoinder, denies any violation of the inter-State commerce law and denies that it has established rates purposely discriminating against Danville. It admits certain specific allegations, some of which it justifies, while in respect to others it pleads that overcharges were made by mistake, and that the amounts overcharged have been refunded. The complainants submitted a number of depositions in support of their complaint, and the respondents called General-Agent Drake to the witness-stand in rebuttal. The hearing will be continued to-morrow.

TO THE WORLD. Written by Essie R. G. Oury at the age of 15 years.

By request. When Death has claimed me for his own, And I am laid away, When those who loved me and whom I have loved Have placed my body 'neath the clay, When "ashes to ashes, and dust to dust," Has solemnly been said, And I am left in the quiet church-yard, To sleep alone in my humble bed, I would not have them mark the spot, With a monument grand and tall, In memory of one so obscure and small, If I were sleeping the sleep of death, Me thinks 'twould disturb my quiet rest, If sculptured marble, or granite rock, Were heaped upon my breast.

All I ask of the world, when I am gone, And whisper aside to some one, "We will miss her here," Or when some friend kneeling for the last time, To wipe the death damp from my brow, I only ask them to murmur, "Would she were with us now."

When I am numbered with the dead, Have met the last of foes, I only ask a quiet spot, Where I may sleep in sweet repose. Not even a slab, with my name carved there; Let nature plant flowers, to bloom o'er my head, If I am not missed from the dazzling world, Don't tell them I am dead.

If I cannot be remembered By some deed of kindness wrought, A gentle word or smile to some fellow man, I trust I'll be forgot.

Death.

Died at the residence of Maj. Goodpasture, Nov. 15th, near Mt. Carmel, in this county, Mr. H. C. Clutson, aged about 49 years.

Mr. Clutson was a German by birth and had been in feeble health for some time. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Geo. W. Summers, at Mt. Carmel church on Wednesday.

Arthur Love.

The Arthur Love Comedy Co., played at the Opera House on last Tuesday night to a small but appreciative audience. Mr. Love ranks high as a comedian and right well did he sustain his characters. His support is first-class in every particular, and taking the play all in all it was one of the best ever placed upon our boards.

Bold Robbery.

On last night thieves broke into the spring house of Mr. R. B. Pierce, in Rye Valley and stole about two gallons of peach and apple butter, fifteen or twenty pounds of cow butter, six gallons of molasses, five large crocks and three jars. The thieves broke the lock on the door and gained admittance to the house. No clue has been found to the guilty parties.

To Whom it May Concern.

Chas. Arthur Ramsey, commonly known of Charley Humphrey, a boy raised by and bound to me by his mother, Kate Ramsey, has been persuaded by certain parties to leave me. This is to give notice that I will prosecute all parties instrumental in his leaving, and all parties who aid or shelter to the said Charles Arthur Ramsey to the fullest extent of the law. When last heard from he was going toward the Clinch Valley R. R. Respectfully,

JNO. L. HUMPHREY. Any information as to his whereabouts will be rewarded.

Peachontas.

ORIGIN OF THE OUTBREAK—RETURN OF THE MILITARY.

Lynchburg Advance. As there is no doubt a great deal of misapprehension in regard to the trouble in Peachontas, our representative, who was on the ground, will endeavor to give as near the facts in the case as possible, he having interviewed some of the best men in the town, and there are not a few of them, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding, as our soldier boys are ready to testify, for they were treated with true old Virginia hospitality.

The facts are these: Some week or two ago, a large meeting of white and colored miners numbering 3,000, was held about one mile and a half from town, on the State line of Virginia and West Virginia, to devise some means to get rid of the Hungarians. The most incendiary speeches were made, both white and colored speakers declaring that the Hungarians were not human beings, but were outcasts, and not deserving life, and that the laws of the State were not framed in such manner as to give them protection, and that it was a christian duty to kill them or drive them out wherever found. Committees were appointed and watches set; signals were adopted, and everything made ready to go into a wholesale massacre, but owing to a misunderstanding or miscarriage of some message, the small riot that did occur was premature, and did not amount to anything, and no one was hurt. But there was some talk running on the part of poor Hungarian miners. This was known to the officers, and why they did not take proper steps to nip the trouble in the bud is very singular, but we suppose it was out of their power to do so.

We also interviewed one of the leading men of the Land and Improvement Company, the company who own and work the mines, and in reply to the question, "What is the cause of the trouble?" he answered as follows: "It is the vicious element which has been drawn here by the prospect of making big money out of the poor working miners; men who are not satisfied anywhere, and live on strife."

In reply to a question as to whether the report was true that the company paid the Hungarians more per car load than they paid the colored miners, the official said was false; they paid all alike, and those who were willing to work made splendid wages—from $4 to $7 per day—all miners working by the piece."

"The whole trouble is this," said the official, "the colored miners will not work steadily. They will go into the mines and work for a day or two, and if they make a good hit they will knock off for two or three days and probably a week. In consequence, the supply of coal would run short, and the company's business would suffer very materially. On the other hand, the Hungarians are steady hands; they work from 9 to 12 hours every day, and are very steady and obedient people, frugal in their habits and sober," and added the official, "they are the best miners in the world."

We believe this is a plain statement of the case, as it was verified by every business man with whom we talked on the subject.

COMPARATIVE WORTH OF BAKING POWDERS.

Table listing various brands of baking powder: ROYAL (Absolutely Pure), GEANT'S (Alum Powder), RUMFORD'S, HANFORD'S, REDHEAD'S, CHARM (Alum Powder), AMAZON (Alum Powder), CLEVELAND'S (shortest), PIONEER (San Francisco), CLEAR, DR. PRICE'S, SNOW FLAKE (Graft's), LEWIS', PEARL (Andrews & Co.), HECKER'S, GILLET'S, ANDREWS & CO. "Regal", BULK (Powder sold loose), RUMFORD'S (when not fresh).

REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS

As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphate, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVY, Ph.D."

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. H. A. MORTY, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome. S. DANA HAYES, State Assayer, Mass."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE.—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schoder. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schoder only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair-minded person of these facts.

"While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders tested below them, it is not to be taken as a fair test of their comparative strength. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous."

NOTICE!

That in pursuance of the terms of a decree of the circuit court of Smyth county had in the Chancery caused there-in pending in the name of A. S. Blair, Adm. of dec. against M. F. Umberger, I shall proceed on the 1st day of the Nov. term of the county court of Smyth, to expound to sale, the said tract of land, including the valuable mill situated thereon, being situated near Blue Spring, in Smyth county. This body of land containing 197 acres makes one of the best farms in this section, and there is also valuable mineral on the same. It is a rare chance for a bargain. By the terms of the same the land will be sold upon a credit of 3, 6 and 12 months, except a sufficient amount of cash to be paid on day of sale to defray cost of suit and expenses of sale. The purchaser will be required to give bond with approved personal security, bearing interest from date for the deferred payments, and the legal title will be retained as further security until the purchase money is fully paid.

A. M. DICKENSON, Comr.
I certify that A. M. Dickenson Comr. has given bond as required by the foregoing decree in the cause of A. S. Blair Adm. vs. M. F. Umberger.

THE FASHIONS.

WHAT THE LADIES OF THE CITY ARE WEARING.

RICH EVENING TOILETS—A HANDSOME COTUME—TEA GOWNS—RIDING HABITS—SUGGESTIONS.

NEW YORK, Nov. 12, 1887.—Evening toilets are exceedingly rich and elegant. Plainly-cut velvet bodices are very much in favor this season. They are made to set very short at the sides and upon the hips, with a little sharp in front.

One very handsome costume made with a bodice of this kind had the entire draperies and skirt of lace. The tablier was gathered in toward the right hip, and fell on that side to the foot of the skirt. On the other side, however, the side drapery supervised and spread in long, broad, flat folds toward the back, being also of lace. The back draperies, of the same diaphanous material, were bouffant and light in effect. So much of the lace skirt as could be seen upon the left side betrayed the saffron-hued satin foundation skirt beneath. The corsage was square, narrow shoulder-straps sustaining it. Wide edgings of lace gave these straps some resemblance to sleeves, and lace was used to partially fill the aperture at the bosom.

At the left side of the corsage opening three small ostrich plumes were also used in dressing the coiffure.

The gloves worn were of peau de suede, they begin now as ever fashionable for evening wear. The slippers of deep-yellow satin were covered with amber-head embroideries. The silk hose were pale-canary color, with lace stockings drawn over them.

Tea-gowns are still very elaborate creations. The craze for them has become a settled fashion. One very handsome gown prepared for a Brooklyn lady was in a peculiar shade of blue, not unlike Gobelins, the material being plush. The front was formed in cutaway-coat fashion, and a vest of light ciel blue surah, loosely gathered and falling below the waist, made the effect brighter. Antique rose-colored ribbon bows at the waist, upon the wide cuffs of the loose-hanging silk-sashed sleeves, and other appropriate parts of the robe completed it most attractively.

Applique braid designs play an important part in some of the new street-dresses. One, by a very fashionable house, is in smooth green cloth, whose draped drapery displays at one side a wheat-sheaf design in black braid. This design is again visible on the basque front and on some other portions of the costume.

This braid ornamentation is not expensive, is very effective, and is, as above stated, stylish, for all of which reasons it should be extremely popular. Of course, the designs to be used are matters of taste, but large, conventional flower and leaf-figures are most in vogue. Angular designs are inappropriate.

The redingote and raglan are both popular shapes in long wraps for the winter. They will be more stylish than the favorite newmarket, if not quite as frequently met with. The style of a garment is not determined by its commonness. One may see ulsters and newmarkets everywhere, but the above shapes are the stylish one.

Boucle cloth street-jackets are again in use as they were last year. Black Melton is the favorite material for riding-habits.

Bonnets have not got too much trimming on this season. Just enough of it. Felt shapes are chiefly worn by the young ladies.

Surplice revers are not out of style. They are particularly well liked on short waists for home-wear. The infrequency of the plastron is a surprising inconsistency of Dame Fashion. After basking in the full tide of fashion's favor last year it has gone—whither?

The bride's mother at a recent wedding here in good society was attired in black Chantilly lace over black silk, trimmed with sparkling jet pastermerie and ornaments. The corsage was a high one, very fitting to both the wearer and the occasion. The great facility and beauty with which draperies of lace can be arranged made this an exceedingly graceful costume, although plain and sombre. Black guests at weddings is becoming a favorite here.

Oxidized silver backs to toilet brushes, etc., are in favor. Set of oxidized silver combs and toilet articles are often utilized as wedding presents. It is related of a very zealous Hibernian servant of a newly-wedded couple that he wore his fingers to the bones in his endeavor to rub the oxidization from the surfaces of some of the wedding presents. He had fallen into the slight error of mistaking it for dirt, and was much annoyed at his little success in removing it.

Little velvet, lace-trimmed cloaks are seen for children's wear. They are for little girls from three to six years old, and it seems questionable taste to provide such elaborate garments for infants.

In one of my letters, several weeks ago, I described such a dress. At that time the new idea threatened to attain popularity. It seemed almost a novelty on account of its long disuse. Now, however, it is declared that there will be no more "pinkings." It is a very good decision on the part of the fashionables.

Tea Table Talk.

It will soon be time to hear all about what is new and captivating in toboggan suits.

A pair of scissors is about the only thing the girl of the period has not got dangling from her dress button.

Flora McFlimsey should be told that the turban hat, English or dome made, is it not intended to be worn on the right ear.

Who shall say that the milliners do not keep up with the procession? There is a "Mlle. de Bressier" bonnet already out.

Individual tables for afternoon teas are the latest three leg affairs that at first glance convey the idea of a stork at the age of 15.

The combination of clocks and calendars now is very ingenious, unique and pretty ditto convenient on the desk or library table.

Correspondents who says that Mrs. Cleveland sets the fashions now are about as innocent as all the babies born in an hour ago.

Raised figures of birds on game plates are voted a nuisance, and the lady of the house says they are the ruin of silver knives.

However luxurious may be the invalid's roller chair, it is inappropriate in the parlor as would be an upright piano in the laundry.

They are making blotting pads so dainty and delicate now that some women will be apt to put them on exhibition in the parlor cabinet.

With the venerable spinning wheel should now go ancient, time stained flax from Wayback, and not the new, fresh kind sold at linen stores.

People will find out this winter that a London dyed seal plush and a London dyed sealskin saque are two different kinds of garments.

Imitation black walnut picture frames are new, and are said by dealers to be finding favor. To let a secret out of the shop, they are made of paper.

Men in those salmon colored kid gloves look as if they had been painting the town fence, or had scalded themselves in some dudsish manner.

An exchange announces that "the style in hip bath tubs for travelers has changed." This may be very interesting news to carry to the Italians.

There are medical men who say oysters lose half their efficacy unless they are eaten raw.

Scalded chicken is about as palatable as would be shingles fried in best creamery butter.

A correspondent writes of the prejudice of the English, who decline to buy or eat Irish oatmeal.

Sweetpotatoes fried in juice of beef is a southern way that gives great favor in the north.

A dash of onions in the stuffing of wild duck is an acquisition of which no epicure ever complains.

The best quality of oysters is not used for cooking purposes at the average hotel or restaurant.

Fried apples for breakfast are nice on a cold day and for those who have got to saw a cord of wood.

The Italian mode of consuming macaroni recalls the farmer's loading a barn with hay from a wagon.

There is almost as much science required to gracefully eat Welsh rare bit as to manage asparagus stalks.

It cannot aggravate any epicure to read the published account of what Queen Victoria has for breakfast.

The condition in which much of the poultry comes to the market is not only disgraceful, but disgusting.

Considerable in the soup line labeled "turtle" just now can safely be described as "nothing of the sort."

An exchange says that the dainty way to "eat grapes" is to let nothing but the juice pass between the lips.

Potatoes are advancing in price with a rapidity that causes the economical housekeeper no little anxiety.

A "human dreadful" at the table d'hote is the novice at olives who invariably tries to crack the pits with his teeth.

An ancient mess at hotels, and one of which everybody is wearing, is "chicken liver, brochette," or any other way.

Peppermint candy among the last items on the hotel bill of fare, is, perhaps, to be regarded as both suggestive and insignificant.
