Entered at the Postoffice at Marion, Va., as Second-class matter.

SELFISH JOHN CLARK.

The meeting was a good one in spite of the intense heat and that there was more singing done by mosquitoes than by human voice.

John Clark sat by an open window, where what breeze there was came in and kept him comparatively comfortable, and then he had on a clean linen suit which his wife had washed and ironed that day, notwithstanding the mercury mounted high in the nineties, and its freshness was an additional comfort.

His first crop of hay, much larger than usual, had that day been put in his spacious barns without damage by so much as a drop of rain. He was well, strong, prosperous, therefore happy.

The ride home was charming, and as the new horse took them through Cairuby woods, with sure, fleet feet, he felt that life was very bright; and, as he thought of Brother White's remarks about "weary burdens," "feet tired with the march of life," he concluded that the aforesaid brother was not in the enjoyment of religion.

John's wife sat back in the carriage, resting her tired body and turning over in her mind the remarks her John had made at the meeting. "Bear ye one another's burdens," had been the subject of the evening's talk, and John's speech had been listened to with evident relish.

"Your husband has the root of the matter in him," said the pastor as she passed out. "I hope we shall all take heed to his well-timed words."

"I think of hiring Tom Birch as a sort of spare hand and call-boy generally. I find this hot weather takes the starch out of me," John said, as the horse trotted through the cool pine grove; amid flickers of moonlight.

"Will you board him?" asked Mary Clark in a constrained voice, with the memory of her husband's exhortations still in mind.

"Of course. I want him evenings to take the horse when we come from meeting, or if I have taken a friend out. It is rather hard to have to go to work directly one gets home."

"You are to hire him to bear some of your burdens," said Mary, in the same hard voice.

"Just so, wife. It stands me in hand to practice, if I preach; don't you say so?"

"I do! I am glad you are to have help; as you say, it is hard to go to work the minute you get home. I have been foolish enough to have this ride spoiled by thinking of bread to mix, two baskets of clothes to fold before I sleep, for the ironing tomorrow, and dinner to get for four hungry men, and baby to care for."

"Don't crowd to-morrow's burdens into this pleasant ride. And it seems to me that it would be better to get all your housework done before meeting time."

"If I could, but that is impossible; milk to strain, dishes to wash, Benny and baby to put to bed—all these duties come together, and then I am tired enough to go to bed myself."

"Take it easy, Mary; keep cool, avoid all the hot work you can."

"I wish I could have a girl, John!"

"Mother used to say girls were more hindrance than help. I guess you would find them so, and then they waste, and break more than they wages. I don't see how I can afford a girl. Do what you can, and leave some things undone; that's the way to work it," and John sat back with a satisfied air, and Mary thought of her husband's glowing words in the prayer-meeting.

"I will do all I can," said Mary in a weary voice. "What I am obliged to do is much beyond my strength. The three meals come near together, washing and ironing must be done, baby shall not be neglected, and of course I must keep the clothes well mended."

"One thing at a time is the way to think of your duties. Pick up all the comfort you can as you go along. I have made up my mind to do so in the future."

"So I see by your thinking of having an extra hand."

"Yes. I feel that I must take care of my health for your sake and the children's."

"Certainly." Mary answered in a sarcastic tone, "how thoughtful you are for us!"

John made no further comment, but inwardly wished that prayer-meetings did Mary the good they had done once, and wondered why his wife had so changed.

"I am going with Squire Towne to see a new reaper; he says he hardly wants to buy without my opinion." This was next day.

John left his wife ironing, with the half-sick baby sitting by the table in the company of an army of flies; and in spite of the home scene enjoyed his ride along the pleasant, shaded road, well-pleased to be seen so much with the great man of the town. At supper time he came home with the new reaper behind the wagon.

"By taking two we make a handsome saving; and, as I intended to buy one, I thought I might as well take it now," he remarked by way of explanation. "It will save time and strength, and pay for itself in a year."

Mary made no comment, but set her teeth tighter together when she remembered that she had asked in vain for something to make her work easier. A sewing-machine had been pronounced "hurtful; better have fewer changes of clothing than run a machine," John had decided when the subject was discussed; a clothes-ringer would be constantly getting out of order. To bring the water in to the house would be just to spoil the water. Nothing, after all like good old bucker. Mother would never have a pump in her day!

"My mother used to say all men are selfish, and I begin to think she was right," Mary muttered as she went to the kitchen for the plate of hot biscuits John was so fond of for his tea.

Her husband's appetite was good, but from fatigue and overheating herself Mary could not eat. His ride and the society of the genial Squire had acted like a tonic, but there is no tonic in the air of a hot kitchen.

"A commonplace life," she said, and she sighed, as she cleared away the tea dishes, while John tilted back in his armchair on the cool, draughty porch and talked over things with Neighbor Jones.

"Why don't you buy Widder Patch's cranberry medder?" asked Mr. Jones; "it's going dirt cheap, and you can afford it." The sum was named, figures that astonished Mary, and she was more surprised when she heard her husband say:

"I've half a mind to do it. I've just had an old debt paid in, and, to tell the truth, affairs in the money market are so squally, I don't know just where to salt it down."

No tears came to Mary's tired eyes, but her heart went out in one mighty sob as she stood, dish-pan in hand, before the disordered table, and thought how cheaply she had sold herself, really for $2 a week and her board, to the man who had promised to love and cherish her until death. The beautiful piano she had brought to the farm was never opened, but looked like a gloomy casket wherein was buried all the poetry of life. The closed "best parlor" had long since assumed the grimness and mustiness of country best parlors, of which in her girlhood she had made much fun. John was a rich man, and, in spite of his marriage vows and his glowing prayer-meeting talk, was allowing burdens grievous to be borne to press on her slender shoulders, in order to "salt down" his dollars.

Had she not a duty to perform? Ought she to allow him to preach and never to practice? Had she not rights to be respected? which were not by her husband; for, she reasoned, if he allowed her to do what could be done by an ignorant Irish woman for $2 week, then he hated her at that price.

"Widder Patch has had a rough time out," said Neighbor Jones; "she is going to the Westward to Tom if she sells the medder, and Jane is going out to work. She's tried sewing, but it don't agree with her, and Dr. Snow recommends housework as healthy business."

"'Tis healthy business," chimed in

John. "Now, my wife is a good deal better than when I married her. Why, she never did a washing in her life until she came to the farm. I think washing and general housework is much better than piano-playing and reading."

"So I say to the girls, to pester me to buy an organ, 'Better play on the washboard, enough sight,' was the elegant response.

"Are you going to buy the cranberry medder, John?" Mary asked, as she saw her husband making preparations to go home.

"Yes—why?"

"Can you afford it?"

"We shall have to figger a little closer in order to do it; but it is going cheap."

"You will have to give up Tom Birch, won't you, and do the chores yourself?"

"I have thought of it; but Tom is poor, and to give him a home is a deed of charity. No, we will save some other way."

"How much do you pay Tom?"

"Three dollars and his board. And, by the way, he says you didn't wash his clothes. Washing and mending was in the bargain."

"I think Tom will have to go, for I have hired Jane Patch. She will be here to-night. You want to practise 'Bear ye one another's burdens' as well as preach from the text, so I will give you a chance. I take my turn at sitting on the cool piazza after tea with a neighbor, while you do the chores. I think the time has come for some of my burdens to be lifted. By exchanging Tom for Jane, you will have one dollar a week for the cranberry meadow. You say strong, active Tom is in need of a home; he can make one for himself anywhere. It is a deed of charity to give Jane a home, and an act of mercy to give your wife a little rest."

Before John could recover from his astonishment, Mary walked out of his sight, and taking the children went to the shut-up parlor. Throwing open the windows to let in the soft summer air, with baby in her lap, she sat down at her piano and began to play a "song without words," a piece John had loved to hear when he used to visit her in her home, where she was a petted girl. The song crept out through the open windows and around to John as he sat on the porch, and memory compelled him to give the song words. Not musical poetry, but rather sober prose, where in washing, ironing, hard days at the churn, hours of cooking for hungry men, stood out before his mind's eye in contrast to the false promises he had made the pretty girl he had won for his bride.

Jane Patch came that evening, and at once took upon herself many of Mrs. Clark's cares, and no one greeted her more cordially than the master of the house. Nothing was ever said about her coming, and Tom Birch did not go away; so Mary knew that her husband could well afford the expense.

She told me how she helped to make one man thoughtful and unselfish, as we sat on her cool piazza one hot August night; and I was glad that one woman had grit enough to demand her rights. If John Clark had been poor his wife would have borne her burden in patience, but she had no right to help make him selfish and indifferent as to her health and comfort.—Boston Watchman.

Having used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in my family for the last three years, I find it is the best preparation I have ever used for Coughs and Colds, giving almost immediate relief. B. WALKER, Gen'l Com. Merchant, 118 Light St., Balto., Md.

Speaking of the Langtry's lack of histrionic talent, the New York Times says the exhibition of her, merely as a good-looking woman, is a gross vulgarity which should humiliate both Mrs. Langtry and an intelligent public.

The Beauty of Money.

Among the beautiful things in this world which are rarely regarded in an artistic light, is the sight of a man with a pocket-book well filled with new bank notes, which he is dispensing with a liberal hand. There is something in the way in which a handsome elderly gentleman thrusts his right hand into the left breast pocket of his coat, and withdraws a new and plerotic pocket-book, extracting from a roll of new bank notes one of respectable amount for some purpose disassociated with business that is absolutely reviving, and it is of all attitudes the one most becoming to the best product of the nineteenth century—a man of means. You may talk of chivalry when knights in armor hammered each other with battle axes or transfixed them with lances. You may admire the vigor and fire of the orator, or the skill and science of the sage, but all these, and even the glory of the poet of ascertained fame, fail to give one the comforting sense of future possibilities derived from the sight of the man with the full pocket-book.

There is a condensed and concentrated power in an array of new bank notes which, juxtaposition with a prosperous man, is really overwhelming. Old or torn bank notes don't produce the same effect. Gold and silver taken from a safe or pocket don't give one the same agreeable feeling. Money paid for utility fails to compete in extraneous influence with the distribution of bank notes in the manner described.

Yet no man has ever had his portrait painted in the attitude of distributing new bank notes though such a representation would be infinitely more satisfactory to those who look at pictures than the meaningless stare which often appears upon a piteous face gazing into space.

There is an underlying sentiment in a scene that is infinitely comforting. It shows that the owner of the pocket-book not only has money, but means to use it, and as the intention promises circulation, and in the circulation of cash it slips into various channels, there is no telling but that one may have a remote interest in the source of supply.

New bank notes imply an intimate relation with moneyed institutions. One don't think that they have been worked for quite so hard as old bank notes, and though the latter may be as good, they seem to be more remote from the original promise to pay. Like the clear water that runs first from the spring, they bring out nearer to the fountain head.

Then one thinks about the man who carries new bank notes, that he likes to have the best of everything, and there is a sort of self respect in this that exhorts the observer's opinion of him.

The above is the discourse. Now for the inference. All rich men who desire to appear to advantage ought to carry pocket-books full of new bank notes; there is no use of carrying them unless they are displaced, and to make them real objects of beauty, the notes ought to be distributed. The distribution will excite "a proper pride which his pleasing features tell," and then, all other things aside, he'll be posing very well.

One of the drawbacks of married life is sickness of the little ones. For a Cold or Cough you cannot find a better remedy than Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Nearly all physicians prescribe it and no family should be without it.

It is said that Mr. Roscoe Conkling predicted Republican defeat in New York before the election. "We believe the ex-Senator didn't do much to avert the disaster to his party, anyhow."

The Guiteaus are a queer lot, to say the least. A married daughter of Mrs. Scovill's recently wrote to her mother: "Never send me a postal card again, since you are a sister of Guiteau."

Sixty Feet Under the Sea.

I was once a diver—not a wrecker, but a pearl diver—and hard business it was," recently observed the captain of a Spanish brig to a reporter of the California Times. "We worked off the Mexican and Pacific side. Sometimes we worked alone, but generally on shares, and sometimes for pay. We went to the grounds in small sailing vessels, then we took to the small boats, and covered as much ground as possible. Each man had a basket, a weight, and a knife. For sharks! Yes; but it is a poor defense, for it is almost impossible to swing the arm with any force under water. The best weapon is a short spear. When you reach the ground you strip, put your feet in a big sinker, take the basket that has a rope for hoisting, drop over and soon find yourself at the bottom. Then your business is to knock off as many oysters as you can and pile them into the basket before you lose your wind. It is a terrible strain, but I could stand it in those days for six minutes, and I have known some men who could stay down ten; but it is sure death in the long run. If the ground is well stocked you can get twenty or more shells, but it is all luck. When the basket is full it is hauled up, and after you come up for your wind down you go again, the sinker being hauled up with a small cord for that purpose. It was on one of these trips that I ran afoul of the animal that gave me a lasting fright. You will smile when I say it was only a star fish, but that it really was. I went down sixty feet with a rust, and, landing on the edge of a big branch of coral, swung off into a kind of basin. The basket went ahead of me, and I was in the arms of some kind of a monster that coiled about my body, arms and legs. I tried to scream, forgetting that I was in the water, and lost my wind. It was just as if the plant had sprouted under me and then threw its vines and tendrils about me. There were thousands of them, coiling and writhing, and I thought I had landed in a nest of snakeskin. I gave the signal as soon as I could, and made a break upward, part of the creature clinging to me, while the rest, I could see, was dropping to pieces. They hauled me into the boat when I reached the surface, and pulled the main part of the animal from me. It was oval, about three feet across, and the five arms seemed to divide into thousands of others. I probably landed on top of that one, which at that time was the largest I had ever seen. I afterwards saw the body of one that was washed ashore on the isthmus that must have had a spread of thirty-five feet. Their power of grasping is considerable, but touch them in a certain way and they throw off their arms in a regular shower, and are soon reduced to an oval body."

His Going to Heaven Interfered With Her New Dress.

He was a Galveston Sunday-school superintendent, and, owing to ill health, was compelled to resign a position of $2,000 per annum, and his care of the little ones on the Sabbath, having in view an idea to return to his childhood home (the birth place of so many Presidents), Ohio.

In bidding adieu to his school on Sunday last, he delivered a feeling address, and grief was manifested by his assistants and some of the scholars. At the conclusion of his address to the children he bid them all "good-bye," saying he would meet them in heaven.

One Young lady was noticed to weep bitterly and could not apparently be consoled, so the affectionate superintendent went to her and asked if his going away was the cause of her grief. There was no more tears shed, and, lifting her bright face that she might see him, said: "No, that is not the cause, but papa has been promising me that as soon as you paid him that $150 he kindly loaned you some time ago, I should have an elegant silk dress, and now you are going to heaven and I won't get it, as you have not paid him."—Galveston News.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is a compound of the virtues of sarsaparilla, stillingia, manrake, yellow dock, with the iodine of potash and iron, all powerful blood-purifiers, blood-cleansing, and life-sustaining elements. It is the purest, safest, and most efficacious alterative medicine known or available to the public. The serious effects of the Liver, Dropsy, Rheumatism, Rose, or St. Anthony's Fire, Pimples and Face-grubs, Pustules, Blisters, Boils, Furuncles, Tetter, Humors, Salt Rheum, Scald-head, Ringworm, Ulcers, Sores, Rheumatism, Mercurial Disease, Neuralgia, Female Weaknesses and Irregularities, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dropsy, Emaciation, and General Debility.

By its searching and cleansing qualities it purges out the foul corruption which contaminates the blood and causes derangement and decay. It stimulates and sustains the vital functions, promotes energy and strength, restores and preserves health, and infuses new life and vigor throughout the whole system. No sufferer from any disease which arises from impurity of the blood need despair who will give Ayer's Sarsaparilla a fair trial.

It is fully to experiment with the numerous low-priced mixtures of cheap materials, and without medicinal virtues, offered as blood-purifiers, while disease becomes more firmly seated. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA is a medicine of such concentrated curative power, that it is by far the best, cheapest, and most reliable blood-purifier known. Physicians know its composition, and prescribe it. It has been used for many years, and has won the unqualified confidence of millions whom it has benefited.

THE FALSE DEMOCRACY.

It is truly ridiculous and somewhat disgusting to read and hear the constant utterances of Bourbon-Funders about "Democracy!"

Either these persons, who write and say so much about Democracy know nothing of true democracy principles, or they think the people are too ignorant to be familiar with them.

"The right to a free ballot is the right preservative of all rights." This is a sound Democratic principle; but how has it been acted upon by the Bourbon-Funder party in Virginia, which claims to be Democratic?

Since 1876 our people have been cursed with a constitutional provision requiring the prepayment of a capitation-tax of one dollar before a free citizen is allowed to vote.

Do Readjusters owe this thing that calls itself Democracy anything? Do those Readjusters who were once Conservatives feel any of the ties of brotherhood for the faction which ratified the action of the Bump Committee that read them out of the Conservative party in 1879?

free suffrage. It has lauded and made its chosen, most popular, leaders from that class of men who have been declared enemies, by words or acts, of the public schools.

Do Readjusters owe this thing that calls itself Democracy anything? Do those Readjusters who were once Conservatives feel any of the ties of brotherhood for the faction which ratified the action of the Bump Committee that read them out of the Conservative party in 1879?

There will be a meeting at Frankfort, Germany, on the 6th of December of the German Colonization Society. The society aims at promoting the foundation of German colonies, which the members think are the only things wanting to the greatness and stability of the empire.

10-40 Coupons Flanked.

Day before yesterday the "concord" cause of Smyth vs. Commonwealth (decided adversely to the State on that day), notified Attorney General Blair that they would on yesterday move the Court of Appeals to certify its decision at once to the court below—the Hustings Court of the City of Richmond.

When the motion, accordingly, was made yesterday, the Attorney-General objected that the law required and the general rule of the court was that decisions should be certified only at the end of the term, unless for grave and special reasons urging greater dispatch.

To reinforce his first objection, Capt. Blair appealed to and recited the 18th rule of the court, which allows ten days after the rendering of any decision for an application of rehearing!

The result was that, in spite of the strong and abid disposition of Judges Christian and Anderson to grant the motion to certify, it was refused by a majority of the court—Judges Staples, Burks and Lewis concurring that it ought not to be granted.

Thus Funderism and the Brokers are again baffled; and we heartily trust that the speculators in the 10-40 coupons may have lost heavily on their ventures in this last swarm of the "cut-worm of the revenue."

The Auditor ascertains the aggregate sum due the schools for the year to be $535,401, which is largely in excess of any previous apportionment made to the cause of public education and about $57,000 more than they received for the year 1881.

lished upon a basis that promises at least to every boy and every girl in the Commonwealth a common school education.

One of the conditions laid down by the people of Virginia in the grant of their commission to the party now in power was the protection of the schools. The officers of the State Government, representing the party in power, are not unmindful of it, for while they reduce the taxes on real and personal property just 20 per cent, they increase the school fund, as the above figures will show, about 18 per cent.

There is every reason to believe that the very near future will develop an efficiency in the management of State affairs that will give fresh life and vigor to our people and put us on a tidal wave of prosperity that will amply vindicate the wisdom of some of the changes made in the recent past.—Richmond Whig.

THE SUN.

NEW YORK, 1882.

More people have read THE SUN during the year just now passing than ever before since it was first printed. No other newspaper published on this continent has been bought and read in any year by so many men and women.

We are credibly informed that people buy, read, and like THE SUN for the following reasons, among others: Because its news columns present in attractive form and with the greatest possible accuracy whatever has interest for human mind; the events, the doings and misdoings, the wisdom, the philosophy, the notable folly, the solid sense, the improving nonsense—all the news of the busiest world at present revolving in space.

Because people have learned that in its remarks concerning persons and affairs THE SUN makes a practice of telling them the exact truth to the best of its ability three hundred and sixty-five days in the year, before election as well as after, about the wharves as well as about the small fish, in the face of dissent as plainly and fearlessly as when supported by general approval.

Because it is everybody's newspaper. No man is so humble that THE SUN is indifferent to his welfare and his rights. No man, no association of men, is powerful enough to be exempt from the strict application of its principles of right and wrong.

Because in politics it has fought for a dozen years, without intermission and sometimes almost alone among newspapers, the fight that has resulted in the recent overwhelming popular verdict against Robesonism and for honest government. No matter what party is in power, THE SUN stands an unflinching advocate to stand like a rock for the interests of the people against the ambition of bosses, the encroachments of monopolists, and the dishonest schemes of public robbers.

All this what we are told almost daily by our friends. One man holds that THE SUN is the best religious newspaper ever published, because its Christianity is unspiced with cant. Another holds that it is the best Republican newspaper printed, because it has already whipped half of the rascals out of that party, and is proceeding against the other half with undiminished vigor.

If you already know THE SUN, you will observe that in 1882 it is a little better than ever before. If you do not, already know THE SUN, you will find it to be a mirror of all human activity, a storehouse of the choicest products of common sense and imagination, a mainstay for the cause of honest government, a sentinel for genuine Jeffersonian Democracy, a scourge for wickedness of every species, and an uncommonly good investment for the coming year.

Terms to Mail Subscribers! The several editions of THE SUN are sent by mail, post-paid, as follows: DAILY—55 cents a month, $6.50 a year; with Sunday edition, $7.70. SUNDAY—Eight pages, $1.20 a year. WEEKLY—Eight pages, $1.00 a year. The best matter of the daily issues; an Agricultural Department of unequalled merit, market reports, and literary, scientific, and domestic intelligence make THE WEEKLY SUN the newspaper for the farmer's household. To clubs of ten with $10, an extra copy free. Address: I. W. ENGLAND, Publisher, THE SUN, N. Y. CITY.

PURE FINE WHISKEY. H. ROSENHEIM, Wholesale Liquor Dealer, Proprietor and Patentee of the Celebrated Springdale Pure Rye Whiskey, No. 375 W. Baltimore St., between Emdaw and Paer Streets, BALTIMORE, MD. In inviting attention to the Celebrated Springdale Pure Rye Whiskey, patented and manufactured by Mr. H. Rosenheim, it is but doing justice to him individually, and conferring a favor upon those who desire or have use for an article of mid-published purity and unsurpassed in quality.

The fine Whiskey is constantly manufactured by Mr. Rosenheim, under letter-patent, and is for sale by him exclusively. There is no similar article offered to the Baltimore market, and, from its purity and excellence, should be in the cabinet of every one who values a fine and pure article. So pure from every adulteration is this Whiskey, and so carefully has it been manufactured, that it is largely prescribed by the medical profession in cases requiring a stimulant. As before stated, this fine Whiskey can be obtained only at the Wholesale Warehouses of Mr. Rosenheim, No. 375 West Baltimore Street. This Whiskey is five and eight years old.

The purity and careful manufacture of this fine Whiskey is attested by the Editor, DR. J. T. KING, Editor Baltimore Trade Exhibit. For sale by R. D. Candler, Rural Retreat, Va. sept28th

Some of the merchants in town are getting in their Christmas goods.

That wood you promised us is coming in very slowly. In fact it hardly comes at all.

Mr. E. N. Sprinkle has moved from the 'Marion House,' and will hereafter entertain his guests at the Sprinkle Hotel.

Fresh beef is now selling in this market, at five and six cents per lb. by the quarter.

Live merchants always advertise. Those who "can't afford" to advertise are behind the times.

County court did not adjourn until Monday. The term just ended was one of the most protracted and laborious that Judge Miller has ever held.

The first snow of the season fell on Sunday morning. It continued to snow or rain during the entire day; but Monday morning the ground was entirely free from snow.

Last Saturday was a stormy day in the court room. A difficulty occurred between an attorney and a litigant, and another was nearly approached by two lawyers.

J. B. RHEA has just returned from buying his fall and winter goods and now has opened one of the largest and cheapest stocks of goods ever exhibited by him.

We are requested by Mr. Thos. M. Rider to return his sincere thanks to his neighbors and friends for their kind treatment to him while suffering from recent family affliction.

On Tuesday morning before daylight snow began to fall, and continued to come down at intervals during the day.

A Large Stock of Canned Goods. Raisins and Candies at our usual low prices, special term, for Xmas parties and Sunday Schools.

Notice. OFFICE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT PUBLIC SCHOOLS, Nov. 30th, 1882.

Teachers holding receipts will get there warrants on Henkle fund, and present them to me at once.

A. G. PENDLETON, Superintendent.

A Needed Warning. The county is being flooded with so-called Reliefs. Everybody seems to think they can make one, and, knowing the great popularity of Dr. Hart's Great Relief, they attempt to deceive the public by palming off on the people a mixture having none of the virtues whatever of Dr. Hart's great remedy.

Received. We have received copies of the Reports of the Boards of Directors and Superintendents of the Western Lunatic Asylum and of the Central for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30th, 1882.

New Advertisements. Our readers will do well to give their careful attention to the advertisement of Crush & Co., who by their enterprise and dash have given a considerable impetus to trade in Marion.

Choice Seeds for Sale. 10,000 Bushels Choice Seed Wheat, New York white Flint, German, Amber, Lancaster Canadian, Balginton and select Fultz.

On account of the rush of customers on court day at Geo. F. Crush & Co., a great many persons had to leave without being waited upon. If they will call again they will receive prompt attention.

Sense or Nonsense, Which?

We do not like to be critical of things in general; but in the last issue of the Conservative Democrat, in the local column, there appeared "communicated"—a string of stuff which may have been intended for sense, and perhaps for humor.

It intended for sense it must have been written by a hidebound Bourbon-Funder—a man who is not good at thinking.

The writer seemed to be looking ahead twenty years, and predicting what would be the appearance and business condition of our little, inland town in the year 1902.

This would be seen exhibits a partiality that we cannot endorse or submit to. To his partial vision no one appears at that time in the role of a successful business man but those who are now Funders, or their descendants.

There is no future for the brave young Readjuster hearts and minds that are now growing up in our midst.

This partisan prophet would make it appear that only Funders and their descendants are to play any part in the development and future prosperity of the town, at least if we are to draw any conclusion from the names he uses.

To the brave, active men and boys of the town, regardless of class or party must our community look for its future prosperity.

Those who are now poor, as well as those who are now rich must have much to do with the future progress of Marion.

It is true that the scribbling correspondent mentions the names of three Readjusters, two in words that are a questionable compliment, and another in derision.

But one of the greatest absurdities of the writer is that wherein he intimates that "Post Master General Pres Francis" had declined to follow Mahone and his Lieutenant (Hon. W. C. Pendleton) into the Republican party.

This correspondent of the Democrat must be excessively stupid or extremely ignorant, or he would know that "Post Master General Pres Francis" has been in the Republican party for nearly twenty years.

Another gross absurdity is that wherein the writer speaks of boys who have not yet been born, and who are to occupy high positions in a National Bank and as a distinguished graduate at the head of his class at the University of Virginia.

These boys that are to be born will have certainly to be more precocious than the boys now living or the "correspondent," if they can be born and accomplish so much within twenty years.

If the writer for the Democrat intends to write sense, he should be more careful in the future. If he intends to try to be a humorist he had better quit or get some one to kill him.

Another Death in Marion. On Monday morning a little after six o'clock Mrs. Catherine Rider, wife of Thos. M. Rider, Mayor of Marion, departed this life, aged about sixty-eight years.

The deceased had lived in this town about twenty years. When quite a young girl she professed religion at Wabash camp-ground, in Giles county, and joined the Methodist church, since which time she has been a devoted and earnest member of the church.

On Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock the funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church—Rev. J. L. M. French, pastor of the Methodist church at this place, preached a sermon from a text selected by Mrs. Rider previous to her death.

He was assisted in the services by Revs. Frierson and Alexander. Though the weather was very bad a considerable congregation of citizens and friends were present.

After the services were concluded at the church the remains were taken to Round Hill Cemetery, followed by a number of friends and relatives, and buried. Mrs. Rider leaves a husband, nine children and a large number of grandchildren to mourn over her death.

J. B. RHEA now has a beautiful line of a wool cassimeres and very cheap.

Subsequently they reviewed a regiment of the Guards, who paraded to their honor.

Ten thousand people attended a meeting of the Irish National League at Tulse, Ireland, on Sunday.—Among the speakers were Messrs. Sullivan and O'Kelly. The latter referred to what he called the efforts of Mr. Davitt to split the Irish party and said they were tantamount to stabbing Ireland in the back. He threatened to resign his seat if the country wavered in its allegiance to Parnell. He advised the farmers to take advantage of the arrears-of-rent act. Votes of confidence in the speakers were carried.

OBITUARY. Died, of enlargement of the liver, near Newport, Giles County, Va., Nov. 4th 1882, Mrs. MARY J. CLEGGON, wife of Jerome B. Cleggion, in the 53th year of her age.

The subject of the above announcement was the daughter of Christopher Otry, of Smyth County Va. She was born June 24th 1825, and on June 21st 1851, was married to J. B. Cleggion. She was a most devoted wife and mother to the hour of her death.

In 1843 she was converted to God and connected herself with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in which she lived a consistent Christian life and died in the triumph of a "living faith."

For several weeks before her death she was a very great sufferer, yet she bore it all with a Christian fortitude that was as surprising as it was beautiful.

It was my privilege to visit her a short time before her death. I found her fully aware of her condition. She knew she must die in a very few hours; but death had no terrors for her. Indeed, she was happy in the prospect of it. The religion of the Lord Jesus, enabled her to exclaim in every face of the monster: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

After conversing with her a short time about her prospects for future happiness, I read a chapter and bowed with the assembled family in prayer to God on behalf of our dying friend. While thus engaged it did seem that

"Heaven came down our souls to greet, While glory crowned the mercy-seat."

The love of Jesus filled her dying sisters heart, and she rose superior to all her pains and in every transport of faith, shouted praises to God with a most feeble strength. I thought of those sweet words of the poet: "Jesus can make a dying bed, Full soft as downy pillow, and"

Thus she passed away, giving full proof of the ability of the religion of the Lord Jesus to triumph over the "last enemy"—even death.

She leaves behind to mourn her loss a stricken husband and several children. But they may console themselves with the thoughts that their loss is her eternal gain. We commend them to the God of all consolation in this sad hour of their bereavement. HER PASTOR of the universal success of Brown's Iron Bitters is simply this: It is the best Iron preparation ever made; it is compounded on thoroughly scientific, chemical and medicinal principles, and does just what is claimed for it—no more and no less.

By thorough and rapid assimilation with the blood, it reaches every part of the system, healing, purifying and strengthening. Commencing at the foundation it builds up and restores lost health—in no other way can lasting benefit be obtained.

77 Dearborn Ave., Chicago, Nov. 2 I have been a great sufferer from a very weak stomach, heartburn, and dyspepsia in its worst form. Nearly everything I ate gave me distress, and I could eat but little. I have tried everything recommended, have taken the prescriptions of a dozen physicians, but got no relief until I took Brown's Iron Bitters. I feel none of the old troubles, and am now much stronger, and feel first-rate. I am a railroad engineer, and now make my trips regularly. I can not say too much in praise of your wonderful medicine. D. C. MACC.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS does not contain whiskey or alcohol, and will not blacken the teeth, or cause headache and constipation. It will cure dyspepsia, indigestion, heartburn, sleeplessness, dizziness, nervous debility, weakness, &c.

Use only Brown's Iron Bitters made by Brown Chemical Co., Baltimore. Crossed red lines and trade-mark on wrapper.

MAKE HENS LAY

An English Veterinary surgeon and Chemist, who has traveled in this country, says that most of the trouble with the Hens is due to the fact that they are not properly fed. He says that his Compound Food is absolutely pure and invigorating, and that it will make the Hens lay more than twice as many eggs as they do now. It is sold by all the Druggists and Grocers. Price 25 cents per bottle. Sent by mail for 30 cents. L. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

Times and Seasons. There's a time—the proverb tells— For all things under the sun; Even so may be pre-arranged seasons For good works to be done, And for good words to be said. In the fear lest for you May miss the happy occasions, Let us here note down a few. When the trees are heavy with leaves, When the leaves lie underfoot, When fruit on the board is frequent, And while there is wind or root; When the rain comes down from the heavens, When the sun comes after rain, When the autumn fields are waving, With the weight of golden grain; When the hills are purple with heather, When the fields are black with cold, When the larkies are gay with their tassel red, When nuts are shrivel'd and old; Whenever there's growth in the spring-time, Or June close follows May, And so long as the first of January Happens on New Year's day; When mushrooms spring in the meadows, Or toadstools under the trees, When the gnats gyrate in the sunshine, When the oak-boughs strain in the breeze; In the days of the cuckoo and swallow, When the sea-gulls flee the foam, When the night-jar croons in the gloom- igit, Or the owl goes silently home; When the lake is a placid mirror, When the mountains melt in mist, When the depths of the lake are as pillars of gold On a floor of amethyst; When a rainbow spans the morning, When the thunder rends the night, When the snow on the hills is rose red, With the blush of the wakening light; When the soul is heavy with sadness, When the tears fall drop by drop, When the heart is glad as the heart of him Who climbs to a mountain-top; When youth unrolls like a broken-froud, When age is grandly gray As the side of a crag that is risen and scarr'd With the storms of yesterday;— Believe that in all of these seasons Some good may be done or said, And whenever the loving thought and will Are loving enough to wed; And well it is with the happy heart That hath thoroughly understood How the "time for all things under the sun" Is always the time for good. —W. J. Linton, in St. Nicholas.
