MY SON'S WIFE.

BY E. LINWOOD SMITH.

She was only sixteen years old when my boy brought her to the country village where I lived in solitude...

I was seated by myself, reading my Bible, when Hugh opened the door, and said to me—'Mother, dear, here is a daughter for you!'

'That is unfortunate,' said Hugh, gravely. 'But I can tell you now what I wrote you last week—that I am married to Margaret Sinclair. Have you no welcoming kiss for my wife?'

'Come into the parlor, my dear,' said I, and take off your hat and shawl. I suppose you are very tired with your journey, and would like a cup of tea.'

'For mercy's sake, who is she?' asked Hugh when I rejoined him, after leaving her in the one spare room of my cottage.

'She is the daughter of a broken-down actor, who lodged in the same house where I did, and died suddenly from an overdose of morphia.'

'Do you really mean it?' 'He as good as told me so himself,' said I.

'When the tea-bell rang, Margaret was nowhere to be found. 'I supposed she has gone out to meet her husband,' said I.

'The man, however, was but half over, when Hugh came in, very pale, and with a set look about the muscles of his mouth which I had never before seen there.'

which she has left, tells me that she has gone forever, poor girl; but she knows no home but the one I brought her from.

'Ob, Hugh! how glad that I could say, as I wrung my hands in mute despair. 'I am sorry. I didn't mean any harm! I didn't, indeed!'

'I can hardly remember how that autumn and winter passed away. But it was the next spring, just as the crocuses began to show their emerald points through the snow that covered the March world, when Hugh fell ill of typhoid fever.'

'Who is Madge?' the doctor we had called in suddenly asked. 'Who ever she is let her come to him. It may be his salvation.'

'Put an advertisement in the paper,' said the doctor. 'Do you think it will do any good?' I asked piteously; and he answered:—'It is worth the trial at all events.'

'Is it true?' she asked me, with a wild vehemence of manner, of which I had scarcely believed her capable, 'that he is sick, dying, and I not by his side?'

'Stand back!' she cried passionately. 'I have neither pay nor favor to ask of you. But I loved him. Oh, I loved him, even though he did not care for me.'

'Margaret!' cried I, 'listen!' And from the sick room came the pitiful reiteration of the word—'Madge!'

'Tell me,' she faltered, 'that my ears are not deceiving me! Tell me does he want me?'

'I stood listening while she hurried into the darkened room; listening with one hand pressed over my heart. And still came forth the pleading cry—'Madge! Madge!'

'And from that day to this there has never been the slightest shadow

Journalistic Gossip. [Rambler.] Journalists are proverbially wealthy. To be sure we once knew one who was accustomed to write his 'copy' on the soles of his shoes, and then go barefoot while it was being 'set up'...

St. Paul Pioneer Press: Bill Nye, the humorist, and wife were thrown from their buggy at Hudson, Wis., last evening, and had a marvelous escape from a very serious accident.

She was wading across the mud on Woodward avenue when a butcher cart came along and splashed her from bonnet to shoes.

'How do you like apple pie, Mr. Cross?' asked the landlady. 'Why, cut up in large pieces and served with cheese,' replied the level-headed boarder.

A Toast to the New Year. [The Baltimore American.]

Come, fill up your glasses and drink to the health Of the year that is dead—'85! We may not be rich; but what care we for wealth!

Its dying— Its dead! And we're glad It is dead. Here's a toast to the babe '86! Good-bye, '85!

Let your colt be domesticated and live with you from his tenderest age, and when a horse, he will be simple, docile, faithful and inured to hard work and fatigue.

Use the horse as you do your leathern bottle; if you open it gently and gradually you can easily control the water therein; but if you open it suddenly the water escapes at once and nothing remains to quench your thirst.

Never let your horse run up or down a hill if you can avoid it. On the contrary, slacken your pace. 'Which do you prefer,' was asked of a horse, 'ascend or descend?'

Observe your horse when he is drinking at a brook. If in bringing down his head he remains square without bending his limbs, he possesses sterling qualities, and all parts of his body are built symmetrically.

Four things he must have broad—front, chest, loins and limbs; four things long—neck, breast, forearm and croup; and four things short—posterns, back, ears and tail.

The harvest gathered in the fields of the past is to be brought home for the use of the present. Many people mistake stubbornness for bravery, meanness for economy, and villainess for wit.

Promises made in the time of affliction require a better memory than people commonly possess. The most credulous, since they most believe themselves, and advise most with their falsest flattery and worst enemy—their own self-love.

History that is good, faithful and true will survive for ages; but should it have none of these qualities, its passage will be short between the cradle and the grave.

King Thebaw to King Milan: 'Shake, brother! We were both a little too previous.'

Purged of Contempt.

Henri Litz a German butcher in Central Mississippi, was recently indicted by the grand jury of his county for profane swearing upon the public highway in the presence of two or more witnesses.

When the case came on for trial he appeared as his own counsel and admitted that he had used the oaths as charged, but justified himself on the score that the cattle were his own property, and argued that if he had the right to kill them he certainly had the right to curse them.

'I won't buy it,' said Henri. 'Mr. Clerk,' said his Honor, 'enter up a fine of $5 against the accused for contempt of court, and Mr. Sheriff remain the prisoner to jail until the fine and costs in both cases are paid.'

'Shudge, I appeals der gas to der Supreme Court. Dis ish a hellefer gourt and gundry vod doud led a mans cuss his own gattles.'

By that time the sheriff had got Henri out of the court-room and a deputy was taking him to jail. The Judge sent him word next morning that if he would purge himself of contempt of he would remit all the fines except the original one.

Henri agreed to the proposition, and after some instructions from the Sheriff, who told he had made a mistake in not employing a lawyer, presented himself at the bar of the court.

'Are you an actor?' said one of the 'profess' to a stranger, yesterday. 'No, sir.' 'That's strange. Your face looks very familiar to me.'

WHAT CAN WE SAY OF IT?

Since our last issue the year 1885 has been completed, and is now numbered with the years that are past. From a business standpoint there are different views held and different estimates placed upon the year just gone. There are some who try to deceive themselves into the belief that it has been a year of prosperity; but the majority of toilers in the land have not been encouraged by the fruits gathered from their labor during 1885. There are some, perhaps, who being of a philosophical turn of mind, are disposed to think we should be thankful that things should have been no worse. The great mass of the people, however, will not be so blind as to take comfort from such false philosophy. In a business sense, the year has been a blank, comparatively, in all sections of our country. The man who has prospered is a rare exception, while the general rule has been to suffer. The great business depression has affected men of all classes and callings. We find that the farmers in most of the states have nothing in the shape of profit to show for the work they have done and the capital they have invested in 1885, while in some places the agricultural interests have almost been ruined. So it has been with the manufacturers. Those who have continued to run their factories have done so, generally, at a great loss; but a large number of the workshops have been closed. This, of course, has brought disaster and suffering to a large class of our citizens, who with their families were dependent upon the wages they received as skilled mechanics and operatives. Never in our history as a nation has there been such a large proportion of our working population idle; and let us hope that we will never have to record such a state of affairs again.

We can't see much in the year 1885 to boast of in a business sense. Let the people take courage, try to solve the problem of the puny cause of such disaster in our business affairs, and correct it in the future.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND has recently written to a friend a letter in which he makes a most wanton attack upon the press of the country. He charges that there never was a time when newspaper lying was so general, and is exceedingly bitter and coarse in his remarks. Some of the Democratic papers are disposed to resent the insult, among them the Richmond State. We agree most fully with the State in its estimate of the conduct of the President, and append its utterances:

The President has seen fit to write the following remarkable letter, which unfortunately speaks too well for itself:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, Dec. 12, 1885.

My Dear Sir,—I have just received your letter with the newspaper clipping which caused you so much annoyance.

I don't think there ever was a time when newspaper lying was so general and so mean as at present, and there never was a country under the sun where it flourished as it does in this. The falsehoods daily spread before the people in our newspapers, while they are proofs of the mental ingenuity of those engaged in newspaper work, are insults to the American love for decency and fair play of which we boast.

While I am sorry that any friendliness you may have felt or exhibited for me has been the cause of embarrassment to you, I cannot refrain from saying that if you ever become the subject of newspaper lying and attempt to run down and expose all such lies you will be a busy man, if you attempt nothing else.

GROVER CLEVELAND. To Jos. Keppler, Esq., N. Y. City.

Are these the words of some Buffalo tough? They may be, and yet they are the words of the President of the United States. Shades of Washington and Jefferson and Adams! Had the President chosen to spend a minute of time, a drop of ink and the infinitesimal wear and tear of a pen point he might have explained that what he charges was directed only against an unhappily large number of unscrupulous and disreputable newspapers. He might have shown that for an exalted and patriotic press which has thousands of representatives in the country he had over forty years of an active public life and I think I have earned the rest that I am enjoying. I haven't a grievance against a soul on earth—not one, and the shades to which I have retired are serene. I have to thank Providence for that, and for the fact, also, that I am in better health now than I have been for several years.

proverbially forgetful of the services of the press, and it seems that Mr. Cleveland has not risen above the average politician in gratitude. This course and sweeping denunciation of one of the most powerful and useful forces in affairs is as serious a blunder as it is an inexcusable exhibition of folly and arrogance.—State.

The Legislature is again in session. A number of bills are now being introduced in both houses of the General Assembly.

MR. CLEVELAND will meet with great opposition on the part of Democrats in Congress when he tries to enforce his views on the stopping of silver coinage.

It is said that Mr. Cleveland is now quite careful to ascertain the views of applicants for office upon the silver and tariff questions before he makes an appointment.

Gov. LEE was sworn in last Friday in the hall of the House Delegates, in the presence of the Senators and Members of the House. The oath of office was administered by Judge L. L. Lewis, President of the Court of Appeals. Gov. Lee and Gov. Cameron entered the hall arm in arm.

The Power of an Old Song.

There is something about an old song that picks a man up, body and boots, and carries him back to the long ago, when a dime looked as big as a barrel hoop, and no one can recall the days of childhood without being warmed with thought of good, and feeling sad regrets that those bright moments should have an end. An old fiddle with a string missing will make a grandmother forty years younger in two minutes, if it happens to get in the neighborhood of a tune that was whistled by a blue eyed lad who now sleeps on the hillside under a willow, and the song of a young mother to the babe on her bosom, when the shadows of evening were beginning to gather, have been known to bring tears to the eyes of a man who would dye his hands with the blood of a fellow being for two dollars and a half.

Music, divinest gift of the gods, what treasures have thy melodies not given us? With a mouth organ at his lips a young man may feel rich in his soul without a cent in his pocket or a crumb in his stomach, and with an old cracked piano at her tender mercy a young woman may flood an entire neighborhood with memories so precious that death could have no terror, no matter in what shape it might come.

Even an accordion as wind-broken as a preacher's horse may carry a Dutchman bigger than a woman's trunk from Milwaukee to Berlin in the twinkling of an eye, without putting out his pipe, and set him down in the midst of gladness cheap at $100 a minute. The whistling of a school boy may flood the heart of an old maid with memories more precious than beaten gold, and a few squeaking notes on the bugle of a fish peddler may have power to make a millionaire feel as wretched as a tramp in a bath tub.

The settings of torment to ordinary mortals that come out of the end of a flute in the hands of cold blooded amateurs across the way, will brighten the eyes of a young man with beard of snow, reverse the wheels of life, and carry him back to days deep buried with the dust of time. Once more he will be young rolling in the haymow and sucking eggs on the sly. He may have won eminence and be honored of men, but memory holds the glass, and he sees a little barefoot, shock-headed boy, with holes in the knees of his pantaloons, drinking from an old moss-covered bucket a draught of water sweeter than fame, and he feels that fortune has no joy attainable by man equal to the pure delight of innocence in easy fitting garments.

It is announced that Miss Mary Gladstone, daughter of William E. Gladstone, is to be married to the Rev. Harry Drew, a curate of the Church of England at Hawarden.

Signor Bombicci supposes the detonation of meteors to be that of an explosive gas formed during the surface-heating of the mass in the atmosphere and accumulating chiefly in the vacuum space left behind the mass in its very swift flight.

Mr. Gladstone received over 1,000 letters and telegrams of congratulations on his birthday. The rejoicings on Tuesday were terminated by a servants' ball at Hawarden Castle, Mrs. Gladstone leading off with the butler and W. H. Gladstone following with the housekeeper.

David Davis is not anxious to return to public life. In a recent interview he said: "I am out of politics and political life, never to return. I had over forty years of an active public life and I think I have earned the rest that I am enjoying. I haven't a grievance against a soul on earth—not one, and the shades to which I have retired are serene. I have to thank Providence for that, and for the fact, also, that I am in better health now than I have been for several years."

Explosion in a Coffin. A Greenville (S. C.) special says: Details were received Wednesday night of a remarkable occurrence in Yorkville, this State. In 1875 Jas. A. Watson, whose family then resided in Yorkville, lost a child, aged four years, by death. At that time Watson was living in Baltimore as a teacher in the Bryant-Sadler, Commercial College, and he could not conveniently leave his business to attend the funeral. In his absence only a temporary burial was given the body, awaiting his return home to secure a permanent burial lot in the cemetery. Tuesday he went into the cemetery to remove his child. The burial-case, a metallic casket, was raised from the grave and a natural desire to look upon the face of his child which had died and was buried in the father's absence prompted Mr. Watson to ask for the removal of the lid covering the glass panel over the face. Just as the undertaker was about to remove the cover a loud explosion occurred, shattering the glass, which was a quarter of an inch thick, into numberless fragments, several of which struck Mr. Watson in the face cutting him severely. One piece struck the bridge of his nose, cutting entirely through it. The casket had been out of the ground several minutes when the explosion occurred. The report was equal to that of a dynamite cartridge, and was noticed by persons on Main street, more than a quarter of a mile distant. The face of the child was in excellent preservation, as were also its burial clothes, and a wreath of flowers on the breast seemed to be nearly as fresh as when buried, ten and a half years ago.

The Shah's Fool's Paradise.

(London Globe.)

The Shah is courageous and brave, a fine rider, an indefatigable sportsman, and a dead shot. It must have been nervousness which made him shoot so badly in 1878 when out with the Emperor of Austria. The Emperor's opinion is that he is mostly missed, and he said so to a member of his suite. His talents are neither those of a statesman nor those of a soldier. He has the best of intentions, and devises schemes of reforms and progress, but lacks the necessary patience and perseverance. It often happens that he sends for a Minister to give him some orders regarding some important affair of state. The Minister arrives as quickly as he can, but when he presents himself the Shah has forgotten what he wanted him for; his thoughts have already run off to another subject. He is said to love the army and to be a soldier at heart. But his love is only apparent. He inspects his troops not for the sake of acquiring any knowledge of his army, of the individual officers and men, of the weapons, of military discipline, &c., but a mere for the sake of a pastime. It flatters him to see officers and men bow down to him, and he likes to hear the national hymn played as he enters and leaves the drill ground. He is incapable of directing a manœuvre. Flattery has spoiled him. His Ministers, his attendants, the members of his harem, all flatter him; not a soul dares to give him any advice or hint that he is not infallible. He lives in a kind of fool's paradise, and is probably convinced that Persia is a powerful and well governed empire.

Local News.

GATHERED FOR THE HERALD.

The Occurrences of the Week, Gathered from the Town and County.

Briefs and Personal.

W. C. Pendleton, is in Staunton, attending to business.

John Iron, Esq., we are glad to announce is improving.

Snow fell on Tuesday night to the depth of about two inches.

Before another week the new iron bridge at Hall's Mill will be completed.

W. Z. Iron, son of our townsman Esq. Iron, spent several days in our town during the holidays.

Shooting boots are extensively advertised. Shooting boots are probably those fired at cats.

Never trust a secret to professional cornet player. His business makes him a blower.

To-day is the birthday of one of our oldest citizens. He refuses to give his age. It is believed that he is in his fifties.

Mr. V. S. Morgan and wife, left a few days ago for Florida, where they will spend the winter for the benefit of their health.

We are glad to state that the Railroad authorities promise to build a new Depot at this place during the coming Spring. We hope how soon to see it.

A colored man by the name of Harry Fain had all of the fingers of his right hand very badly mashed between some heavy joist whilst working on the iron bridge on Monday last.

Geo. W. Wilmore, of the Progressive Age, Scott county, is in town on a visit to his family and friends. We are sorry to state that George is suffering a great deal with a severe cold.

Isabella, wife of Mr. Hanly Dowdy, died at her home in this place on the 27th of Dec., aged 76 years. Memorial services were held at the Methodist church. The remains were taken to Roundhill cemetery.

We are sorry to chronicle the death of Mrs. Kitty C. Wheeler, who died on Wednesday the 23rd ult. She was a good christian lady, and was loved by all who knew her. She was buried on Friday the 25th.

Died on the 31st of Dec., Vivian Allen, infant son of Mr. K. H. and Cynthia Brown, aged 19 months. Services were held at M. F. College Chapel. The remains were interred in Roundhill Cemetery.

Dr. J. S. Pendleton was appointed by Governor Cameron a member of Board of Visitors of the State Medical College at Richmond. The appointment was made a few days before Gov. Cameron's retirement from office.

The farmers around Marion have taken advantage of the mild month of December, and have done much plowing. We learn that many of our small farmers are going to try their luck in the tobacco cultivation. There is money in the weed, and a factory we need.

Christmas day and the week following passed off unusually quiet in our town, but our young folks enjoyed themselves very much in the way of socials, etc., very little drunkenness was seen, which speaks well for the influence caused by the Temperance movement in Marion and vicinity.

Mr. James Francis, brother of Mrs. Mary Carper of this place, and cousin of our townsman, J. H. and W. P. Francis, died near Raleigh C. H., West Va., on the 23rd of December. Mr. Francis was quite a prominent business man, and had many relatives and friends in Virginia and West Va.

Mr. Jno. Hyden Paris, who has been sick for several months, died on yesterday evening at about 6 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. S. B. Henritze, at the age of 28 years. Memorial services will be held at the house to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock, after which his remains will be buried in Roundhill Cemetery.

On Tuesday last a man and woman were crossing the railroad bridge near Look & Lincoln's mills, when a freight train overtook them whilst on the bridge, the man seeing his danger and not having time to cross over before the train would overtake them, layed down on the edge of the bridge (which is about 35 feet above the water) and held the woman by her arms over the side of the bridge while the whole train passed over, and then he lifted her up and both went their way rejoicing.

J. W. Mort, and family, of Bristol, have been visiting friends in Marion during holidays.

Four persons joined the Methodist church last Sunday. One of the number was quite an old gentleman.

The Mother Hubbard style of ladies dress is still adhered to by some our ladies and by many of the young Misses.

Some of our young men thought it proper to change signs, gates and stiles Christmas Eve.

Mr. Peter Carrin, who lives on Staley's creek, four miles from town has lost two of his children within the last ten days from Scarlet Fever.

Mr. J. B. Rhea, and wife, who have been visiting friends in Charlottesville for the last 10 days, returned home on yesterday.

Mayor Nickels has been conducting a short series of courts in the last few days. Several persons were fined for selling liquor without the proper credentials.

On Tuesday the Master workman on the new iron bridge, let his pocket-book fall from his pocket in the river, which floated down the stream about two hundred yard. It was recovered by a young man who ventured into the swift current.

Our citizens were very much amused on Christmas day at the appearance of a number of tramps all of whom came to town about the same time, but from their early departure it seems that they were not well patronized.

1st was a razor grinder with his grind stone, ringing a bell.

2nd was an organ grinder, and with him was another tramp in female attire leading a little dog dressed up like a monkey. This personage carried the charity box around whilst the music was ground from the instrument.

3rd was a repairer of umbrellas with a lot of old ones and all parts of umbrellas.

4th was a boot-black with his brush and stove polish offering his service to the dirty boot and shoe wearers on the streets.

5th was a tinker with tools and old tins to repair, etc.

6th were two news boys with their newspapers and periodicals for sale, all which was carried out in real style by the different performers.

All that was lacking was the bears and their keepers to sing and have their bears to dance.

Notice.

Delinquent lands in Smyth county from 1865 to 1883 inclusive, will, if not redeemed before, be sold at the January term of the county court 1886. List of same can be seen at Saltville, Holstein Mills, my office, the Clerks Office, and at front door of courthouse.

Jno. W. RICHARDSON, Jan. 1st, 1886-2t.

A Happy New Year to All.

We tender our heart-felt thanks to the people of Marion and vicinity for their liberal patronage in the past and kindly solicit the same in the future. We promise to sell our goods at the lowest figures, and treat all alike. A very large discount in all winter goods will be made in order to reduce our stock. Come and secure bargains. M. WELER, the clothier.

A Pleasant Affair.

Lone Lodge of Good Templars had an oyster supper at Seaver Opera House on last Thursday night. It was a pleasant affair and was largely attended by members of the order and invited guests. The young people of the town are now taking great interest in the cause of temperance, and the order is doing much good in an our community.

A Darling Paper

Is the Knoxville Daily Journal. This is the best paper published in the South. No paper ever before, in so short a time, reached such widespread popularity. It is neatly gotten up, and distinctly printed. It is Republican in tone, and contains the very best, and latest news. We can recommend the Journal to all who wish a first-class newspaper.

The New York Ledger for 1886.

Now if you want a paper that has something in it—something to amuse to entertain, to instruct—the best and truest love stories, sound, wholesome doctrines about right and wrong and an infinite variety of interesting, agreeable, and diverting articles, subscribe for the New York Ledger. The cost is nothing to compare to the value of what you get. Terms—Single copy $3 per annum; four copies $10 which is $2.50 a copy; eight copies $20, postage free. Address, Robert Bonner, cor. William and Spruce Sts., New York.

Unlucky Thief.

During the Sunday School exercises at the Methodist church on Christmas eve, a colored youth entered the residence of Rev. Mr. Hawkins, pastor of the Lutheran congregation, who, with his family were at the Methodist church and stole from a bureau-drawer about ninety dollars in bills, but upon examination the bills proved to have been issued in 1882, '83 and '84, by the Confederate authorities, which Mr. Hawkins was keeping merely as a relic of the past.

The same thief then entered the residence of Wm. P. Bonham, Esq., and was investigating matters generally when he was discovered by one of the family who had just returned from the church, seeing his cause hopeless, he skipped the premises, but since has been identified and arrested.

Boils and Carbuncles.

These are the volcanoes of the human system. They proceed from impure blood and from a riotous demoralization of the digestive organs. They are annoying, painful and sometimes dangerous. They can be driven out by toning up the system, and this can best be done by the use of Brown's Iron Bitts. Messrs. Handy & Rullman, druggists, Annapolis, say, "We sell lots of Brown's Iron Bitts. All who use it seem pleased. We hear not one complaint."

Sunday School Entertainments.

On Christmas Eve the Methodist Sunday School had quite a new and novel entertainment for the benefit of the scholars. It was a Chinese Temple, brilliantly illuminated with small Chinese lanterns, suspended in and around the temple, in which the many beautiful presents were deposited. The temple was between groves of cedar, and in the grove on the right was an image of a Chinese God or Idol, imitating mode of religion. Several appropriate pieces were sang by the choir, and a very instructive lecture was delivered by the pastor, W. H. Leith relating to the Chinese and their mode of worship. The Chinaman and his wife came to the front of the temple, dressed in Chinese style. A few remarks were made him, and the presents were then distributed by the Chinaman and his wife, and others members of the school to the scholars.

The credit of this occasion is due to Mrs. Dr. Pendleton, G. W. Richardson, Mr. Geo. R. Elder, Woa Poo Pau, and his wife, Miss Katie Pendleton, and other ladies.

At the Baptist church was a Christmas tree, and was arranged so as to revolve; on either side were a number of smaller trees. The large one was loaded with beautiful presents, and lighted up in brilliancy with hundreds of small wax tapers. The stage was nicely decorated with pictures and other ornaments, giving a lovely appearance. Excellent music was discoursed by the school by different classes, conducted by Prof. T. J. Davenport. San Claus was called for by Mr. S. D. Jones. When Santa Claus made his appearance, the audience and particularly the children greeted him with shouts. A few appropriate remarks were made by old Criss to the children, and he gave the presents to the children. Santa Claus made an excellent effort on this occasion, and will, in a few years, be an "Arthur."

The Presbyterian Sunday School had a bundle distribution at the Courthouse on Saturday evening, which was very entertaining, and was enjoyed by all the scholars. A number of beautiful presents was given to the children.

J. Wagner, Esq., Springfield, Va., says in the year 1883 he used Powell's Prepared Chemicals for wheat, and harvested double the quantity where he used it where he used none, and would advise all who use fertilizers to try it. Powell's Prepared Chemicals, cost only $6.00 per ton, a sufficient quantity to make one-half ton of complete fertilizer. Brown Chemical Co., manufacturers, BALTIMORE, MD.

How to Clear the Complexion.

A sallow complexion, a face all covered with pimples, freckles and blotches is a sure indication of a diseased liver and impure blood. Dr. Hart's Blood and Liver Pills will cleanse the blood and remove all disease from the liver thereby making a clear skin and give to the system renewed youth, health and vigor. For pains and aches use Hart's Great Relief.
