WHAT BECAME OF HER.

There was great commotion in Foxville when old Parson Fox died. It was not only because he was the pioneer of the place, having come there when the woods were one primeval mass of green, and himself having erected the old stone parsonage around which the thriving village had grown up with almost incredible rapidity.

All this had been received as a matter of course, and forgotten as soon as the necessities were past. But it was because Foxville curiously was on the qui vive about Joanna, his grandchild, the sole remaining blossom on the gnarled old family tree who was left quite unprotected for!

"I declare to goodness," said Mrs. Emmons, "I don't know what is to become of that girl!"

"She hasn't no faculty," said Sabina Sexton, the village dressmaker; "and never had."

"Books possessed no charm to her," sighed Miss Dodge, who taught the Foxville district school. "She always carried over her parsing and rhetoric, and I never could make her understand cube root!"

"There's no deuyin' that the old minister was as near a saint as we often see in this world," said Mrs. Leke Lockedge, piously. "But he hadn't ought to let Joanna run loose in the woods and fields the way he did. Why, I don't s'pose she ever made a shirt or fried a batch of fifters in her life!"

"Is it true," said Miss Dodge, peering inquisitively up under her spectacle glasses, "that she is engaged to your Simon, Mrs. Lockedge?"

Mrs. Lockedge closed her mouth, shook her head and knitted away until her needles shone like forked lightning.

"Simon's like all other young men, Miss Dodge," said she—"took by a pretty face and pair o' bright eyes. And they set on the same bench at school. And as long as we s'posed Parson Fox had left property why there wasn't no objection. But there wasn't nothing—not even a life insurance. So I've talked to Simon and made him hear reason. There can't no body live on air!"

"But that's ruther hard on Joanna ain't it?" said Mrs. Emmons, with a little sympathetic woeze.

"Reason is reason?" Mrs. Lockedge answered. "My Simon will have property and the girl he marries must have s'bevin' to match it."

So that Joanna Fox, sitting listlessly in her black dress by the window, where the scent of June honeysuckles floated sweetly in, and trying to realize that she was alone in the world, had divers and sundry visitors that day. The first was Simon Lockedge, looking as if his errand were now connected with grand larceny.

Joanna started up, her wan face brightening. She was only sixteen a brown-haired, brown-eyed girl with a solemn, red mouth and a round, white throat, banded with black velvet.

"Oh, Simon," she cried; "I knew you would come when you heard—"

Simon Lockedge wriggled uneasily into a seat, instead of advancing to clasp her outstretched hand.

"Yes, and he. 'Of course it's very sad, Joanna, and I'm awfully sorry for you. But—"

Joanna stood still, her face hardening into a cold, white mask, her hands falling to her side.

"I always set a deal of store by you, Joanna."

"Did you?" she said, bitterly. "One would scarcely have thought it."

"And you know, Joanna," he added, awkwardly, mindful of his mother's drill, "when poverty comes in at the door, love flies out at the window!"

Joanna smiled, scornfully. "It seems," said she, "that love does not always wait for that."

And she turned and walked like a young queen into the adjoining apartment; while Simon, sinking out of the door like a detected burglar, muttered to himself:

"It's the hardest job o' work that ever I did in my life. Splitting stamps is nothing to it. But mother says it must be done—and mother rules the roost in our house!"

Next came Mrs. Emmons, Joanna, said she. "I'm deeply grieved at this 'ere affliction that's befallen you!"

"Thank you, Mrs. Emmons," said the girl, mechanically.

"I've come to ask you about your plans," added the plump widow. "Because, if you have no other intentions, I'll be glad to have you help me with the housework. I'm going to have a house full of summer-boarders, and there'll be a deal more work than 'e and Elviry can manage. Of course you won't expect no pay, but a good home is what you need most, and—"

"Stop a minute!" said Joanna. "Am I to understand that you expect me to assume the position and duties of a servant, without a servant's wages?"

"You'll be a member of the family," said Mrs. Emmons; "and you'll set at the same table with me and Elviry, and—"

"I am much obliged to you," said Joanna, "but I must decline your kind offer."

And Mrs. Emmons departed in righteous wrath, audibly declaring her conviction that she would see Joanna sooner or later to have a fall.

"I have plenty of friends," said Joanna, courageously, "for rather dear grandpapa had. I am sure to be provided for."

But Squire Barton looked harder than any hint when the orphan came to him.

"Something to do, Miss Fox?" said he. "Well, that's the very problem of the age—woman's work, you know and I ain't smart enough to solve it. Copying? No, our firm don't need that sort of work. Do I know of any one that does? No, I can't say I do; but if I should hear of an opening, I'll be sure to let you know. Ahem! I'm a little busy this morning, Miss Fox; sorry I can't devote more time to you. John, the door. Good morning, my dear Miss Fox! I assure you, you have mine and Mrs. Barton's prayers in this sad visitation of an inscrutable Providence."

Old Miss Gringe, who had fifty thousand dollars at interest, and who had always declared that she wasn't very well and couldn't see company.

Dr. Wentworth, in visiting whose invalid daughter poor old Parson Fox had contracted the illness which carried him to his grave, was brusque and short. He was sorry for Miss Joanna, of course, but he didn't know of any way in which he could be useful. He understood there was a kid-glove factory to be opened on Walking River soon.

"No doubt Miss Fox could get a place there; or there could be no objection to her going out to domestic service. There was a great deal of false sentiment on this subject and he thought—"

But Joanna without waiting for the result of his cogitations excused herself. She would detain him no longer, she said; and she went away with flaming cheeks, and resolutely repressed tears.

When she got home she found one of the trustees of the church awaiting her. He didn't wish to hurry her, he said, but the new clergyman didn't want to live in such a ruinous old place; and it was their calculation, as the parsonage, was mortgaged much beyond its real value, to sell it out, and buy a new frame house near the depot, with all the modern conveniences, for the use of the Rev. Silas Spendwell.

was well known that to all intents and purposes the old place had long ago passed out of Parson Fox's ownership; and they were willing to accord her any reasonable length of time to pack up and take leave of her friends—say a week.

So Joanna, who could think of no remaining friend but her old governess, who had long ago gone to New York to fight the great world for herself, went down to the city, and appealed to Miss Woodin in her extremity; and Miss Woodin cried over her and kissed her and caressed her, like an old maiden aunt.

"What am I to do?" said poor, pale Joanna. "I can't starve?"

"There's no necessity for any one starving in this great busy world," said Miss Woodin, cheerfully. "And one o' wants is—faculty?"

"Joanna shrank a little from the hard, stereotyped word which she had so often heard from the lips of Mrs. Emmons, Miss Sabina Sexton, and that 'sterhood."

"But how do you live?" said she. "Do you see that thing there in the corner?" said Miss Woodin.

"Yes," answered Joanna. "Is it a sewing machine?"

"It's a type-writer," announced Miss Woodin, "and I earn my living on it."

"But what do you write?" said Joanna.

"Anything I can get," said Miss Woodin.

And thus, in the heart of the great wilderness of New York, Joanna Fox commenced her pilgrimage of toil.

First on the type-writer, then promoted to a compiler's desk in the 'Fashion Department' of a prominent weekly journal; then, by means of a striking original sketch, slipped into the letter-box of the Ladies' Weekly, with fear and trembling, to a place on the contributors' list; then gradually rising to the rank of a spirited young novelist, until our village damsel had her pretty 'flat' furnished like a miniature palace, with Miss Woodin and her type-writer snugly installed in one corner.

"Because I owe everything to her," said the young authoress, gratefully.

And one day, glancing over the exchanges in the sanctum of the Ladies' Weekly, to whose columns she still contributed, she came across a copy of the Foxville Gazette.

"Hester," she said, hurrying home to Miss Woodin, "the parsonage is to be sold to-morrow at auction, and I mean to go up and buy it; for I am sure—quite sure, that I could write better there than anywhere else in the world."

Miss Woodin agreed with Joanna. Miss Woodin believed most firmly in whatever Joanna believed. In her loving eyes the successful young writer was always right.

So Joanna Fox and Miss Woodin, dressed in black and closely veiled, went up to Foxville to attend the auction sale.

Everybody was there. They didn't have an auction sale at Foxville every day in the week.

"Squire Barton was there, with a vague idea of purchasing the old place for a public garden.

"It would be attractive," said the Squire. "These open-air concert-gardens are making no end of money in the cities. I don't see why the Germans need pocket all the money that there is going."

Mrs. Emmons came because everybody else did. Miss Dodge thought that if the place went cheap she would pay down a part and give a mortgage for the remainder.

"Eight!" said Simon resolutely. "A thousand!" uttered the voice of a quiet, veiled lady in the corner.

Everyone stared in that direction. "Tain't with that," said the Squire, sotto voce, "all run down—fences gone to nothing."

But Simon Lockedge wanted it very much.

"E-le-ven hundred!" said he, slowly and unwillingly.

"Fifteen hundred!" spoke the soft voice, decidedly.

"Fifteen hundred!" bawled the auctioneer. "I am offered fifteen hundred dollars for this very desirable piece of property. Fifteen hundred—fifteen-teen-teen-teen! Fifteen hundred, once—fifteen hundred, twice—fifteen hundred, three times, and gone. What name, ma'am, if you please?"

And the lady, throwing aside her veil, answered calmly: "Joanna Fox!"

The old parsonage was rebuilt, and studded with little bay windows and rhododendron porches. Laurels and rhododendrons were set out in the grounds, the little brook was bridged over with rustic cedar-wood, and Joanna Fox and Miss Woodin came there to live in domestic comfort.

But Mrs. Lockedge and her son Simon moved out of Foxville when the mortgage on their old place was foreclosed, and the places that had known them knew them no more.

And Mrs. Emmons said: "She's done real well, Joanna has. I always knew there was something in her."

And Mrs. Wentworth and the Misses Barton tried desperately to become intimate with the young authoress, but without avail.

For there is nothing in the wide world so successful as success, and it is a fetish which has many worshippers.

The funeral of the wife and the marriage of the husband the same day.

About three weeks since the wife of Mr. Wyatt Wallis, an old and decrepit man of seventy-five years, an inmate of the county poorhouse, died. Since that time he has formed a very warm attachment for Mrs. Campbell, a widow of seventy years, who is also an inmate of the same institution. The attachment seemed to be mutual, and in order to kill two birds with one stone the funeral of the deceased will be preached at the poor house on the first Sunday in August, and immediately after the funeral services are over the widower of the deceased and Mrs. Campbell will be joined in the holy bonds of matrimony.—Pittsylvania Tribune.

The National Tobacco Association. WASHINGTON, July 15.—The National Tobacco Association are in convention in obedience to a call from the President. At a meeting to-day it was unanimously agreed to seek for a reduction of the tobacco tax to 8 cents to take effect January 1st 1883. They recommend also that the tax on cigars be reduced to 22, and on cigarettes to 50 cents per thousand.

After the Norman conquest the distinction between Saxon and Norman was strongly marked until the reign of John. In the time of Richard I. the form of indignant denial from a Norman gentleman, was "Do you take me for an Englishman?"

In the year 1628 the government of Canada, civil and military, was confided by Louis XIII. to 100 associates at the head of whom was the celebrated Cardinal Richelieu. Hostilities commenced the same year between England and France.

The family name of the English Protector was not originally Cromwell, but Williams. Morgan Williams, of an ancient Welsh family, married the sister of the famous Thomas Cromwell, created Earl of Essex by Henry VIII. His son Richard was knighted by Henry, and took the name of his uncle Cromwell, though he retained the Williams coat of arms.

Salt in the South.

Among the stores of mineral wealth which the South is constantly discovering, none are more remarkable than the great salt mines of Louisiana, a few miles south of New Iberia. The salt is found in a solid rock mass which assays ninety-nine per cent. of pure material, and the deposit covers an area of 140 acres, which appears in exhaustible. The mines are situated directly upon the Dayou Teche and convenient to the terminus of great railroad lines, and although they have been systematically worked only three years, the industry has already assumed great proportions. Salt from these works can be delivered throughout the South at less than the price either of foreign imports or the product of northern works; and Mobile, which is the chief distributing point, counts upon soon becoming the great Mississippi Valley.

Every genuine work of art has as much reason for being as the earth and the sun. The gayest charm of beauty has a root in the constitution of things.

The less government we have—the fewer laws and the less confidence—the more power. The antidote to this abuse of formal government is the influence of private character, the growth of the individual.

The Victoria Furnace Company have constructed a chimney 125 feet in height on the property lately purchased near the Cold Sulphur Springs in Rockbridge county. They have constructed houses for their workmen, of whom they will require 1,500 when the works are in full operation. A railroad eleven miles long is already built, connecting the works with the Chesapeake, and Ohio Road at Goshen. There is iron and coal on the property. The company is composed of English capitalists, and they are sparing no expense to make the enterprise a successful one.

A steam plow, the invention of an Englishman, has been used with success on the Aurora Farm at Blanchard, Dakota. It will break from 25 to 30 acres per day, according to the soil, location and lay of the land. It also does harrowing.

Sir Henry Bessemer says that last year 154,184,300 tons of coal were mined in England. This is sufficient to make a wall 200 miles long, 100 feet high and forty-two feet thick—a mass which exceeds that of the celebrated Chinese wall by sufficient to add 346 miles to its length. It would construct fifty-five pyramids as large as the great pyramid of Egypt, or more than one every week. It will be curious to know how long the energy born of the combustion of the mass annually will require to exhaust itself.

Craig, Tuesday, August 8, court-day. Dickerson Thursday, August 10, court-day.

These Coalition mass-meetings will be organized under the immediate supervision of the chairman of the Executive Committee, or of either of them, or where the chairman of either of them shall be present, then as the Coalition voters present may determine.

Certificates of election will be issued to each Delegate and Alternate by the Secretary of the Coalition meeting, the same to be countersigned by the Chairman of such meeting.

Each Delegate and Alternate will take care to secure such foregoing certificate of his election as proper evidence of his right to a seat in the Congressional Convention.

- J. H. BALLARD, Washington County. P. H. MCCALL, Pulaski County. J. C. KOSLEY, Wynth County. H. A. JAMISON, Pulaski County. W. C. PENDLETON, Smyth County.

TO YOUR TENTS!

Now that the campaign is fairly opened, it behooves every true Readjuster to enter for the fight against the Bourbon element of our State. This is a fight that will determine the strength of the contending parties in our Commonwealth, and it will determine whether Virginia is to be held in the hands of those who have for the past seventeen years retarded her onward march to that position which nature has designed she should take, or that she shall, under the supervision of live men, who have the true interest of our State at heart, take the head as the manufacturing center of this great nation. There are millions of dollars in the North awaiting investment in mineral property in the South; but under the old rule this same capital has been debarr'd from entering our domains on account of the proscriptive tendency of the men in power, who were afraid, or did not want Northern men among us. The Readjuster policy has been to foster the feeling of good will between the North and South and encourage all the capital that was seeking investment. Since last year more money was invested in mineral lands in Virginia than was ever known before. With Jno. S. Wise in Congress we will have a man who will encourage all who have money to invest and will tell a true story of the resources of Virginia. The duty of every Readjuster is to stand by the party nominee and use all his influence in the advancement of our cause.

On the 17th of next month our party will hold a convention in this town, and who the nominee will be we know not, but whoever the fortunate man will be, he will be elected. We have men who will represent the party in that convention, and they will vote for whom they think will best advance the interests of the party, and every Readjuster in this district will stand by that nominee. The Readjusters have been vilified and outraged in every manner, shape and form; they have been called dishonest, the riff-raff and the scum of society, and with this abuse heaped upon them they will not be the ones to support a traitor to their cause. To your tents, then, oh, Readjusters! and show to the Bourbons that you are free men and will not lend an ear to their dictation. You have enlisted for the war, and will fight it out to the bitter end.

PROTECTION.

Since the boom in iron the question of protection has agitated the politics of Virginia. The iron fields of Virginia are larger and more extensive than those of Pennsylvania, and are now being developed by the capital of the country, which requires that a protection be placed on the products of this enterprise. There are thousands of working men in this State who have only received a mere pittance for their work per diem, because they have been compelled to work on farms or not work at all. Now that the minerals of our mountains are being brought to light the demand for labor has increased, and it demands a better price. This has been brought about by the rule of Readjustment and Liberalism. The workingman has but one duty to perform, and that is to stand by the party that has been the means of developing the mineral resources of this State. The Readjusters have said to Northern capitalists, "Come down here and we will protect your enterprises." As long as the raw material can be utilized just so long is it our duty to protect it. Not only is the farmer protected thereby, but all classes of people are benefited. The farmer, who furnishes all that we live upon, will receive a better price for his grain, his live stock will advance in value, and everything that he may have to sell will bring a better price. All the talk about no protection by the Funder element is only meant to deceive the people. There is no enterprise which can be started in the South but what needs protection. The Readjuster party has seen this, and been governed accordingly.

There is not a man of business sagacity in Richmond who has not, for the last few years, been wishing either openly or in his heart for at least friendly if not cordial relations with the National Government. During all that time the people of this city have been paying into the United States Treasury revenue collections aggregating seventy millions of dollars. Why should we not desire to get some of that money back in the form of appropriations which we very much need? And we are anxious, and have made repeated efforts, to have the weight of the duties from which those large revenues have been derived abate from time to time, as a favorable opportunity might occur. The tobacco trade of Richmond may send their most intelligent and most influential members to Washington, as they have over and over done, and what will be their success without a representative from this district who has influence with the Administration? Would you send your representative agent anywhere to antagonize the party whose influence or power you were earnestly endeavoring to have exercised in your favor? This thing is a business matter, and must be looked at from a business point of view.

We put it to the common sense of the merchants and manufacturers of Richmond, how much good have sentimental politics done your business interests during the last decade? Do you want your representatives in Congress, or representatives who will leave the war to the care of the historical societies, of which there are quite enough to do ample justice to both sides, and who, recognizing and appreciating their true representative character, will cultivate with all men the arts of peace and good will?

Business iron of Richmond, this is a matter of no ordinary importance to and the future prosperity of this beautiful and growing city. Powder it well, banish prejudice from your minds, and leave severely alone the foolish theories of narrow-minded political fossils who would imbed you with them in their native mud.

The Governor of Iowa has distributed $28,244, contributed from various sources, for the relief of the sufferers by the cyclone in that State.

The Attorney-General of Tennessee has decided that the matrimonial associations and nuptial guilds in that State are illegal, and has ordered their prosecution by the District Attorneys.

A man over 80 years old applied for a marriage license at Kingston, Ontario. When asked the name of the woman whom he was to wed, he said that he had not yet made a choice, but was looking around, and did not wish any delay for formalities after selecting one. He went away disappointed.

The pastor of a Congregational church at Mancelona, Mich., cautioned his people against the excitement likely to be caused by Revivalist Burns, who was about to begin work in that place. But it was not long before he was himself wrought up to a high pitch of feeling, and now he has become a helpless maniac.

WISE ON THE WAR-PATH.

John Wise's Success in the Southwest—His Ovation in Smyth County—In Tazewell—the Son of Henry A. Wise will not be forgotten by the Banner County of Democracy in 1855.

TAZEWELL C. H., VA., July 19th, 1882.

John Wise's reception in Smyth county on Monday was a splendid augury for his campaign in the Southwest. His speech, in the satisfaction it gave the Readjusters of that staunch little county, was prophetic of the enthusiasm with which Tazewell was to greet him and send him covered with the trophies of victory to Russell and Scott.

There is a legendary power in the name of Wise in this old county, which gave Henry A. Wise one of the most splendid of the majorities he received nearly thirty years ago. Marshal John Watts was modest when, in taking charge of Captain Wise at Marion as his escort to fight the demand for labor has increased, and it demands a better price. This has been brought about by the rule of Readjustment and Liberalism. The workingman has but one duty to perform, and that is to stand by the party that has been the means of developing the mineral resources of this State. The Readjusters have said to Northern capitalists, "Come down here and we will protect your enterprises." As long as the raw material can be utilized just so long is it our duty to protect it. Not only is the farmer protected thereby, but all classes of people are benefited. The farmer, who furnishes all that we live upon, will receive a better price for his grain, his live stock will advance in value, and everything that he may have to sell will bring a better price. All the talk about no protection by the Funder element is only meant to deceive the people. There is no enterprise which can be started in the South but what needs protection. The Readjuster party has seen this, and been governed accordingly.

There is no man of business sagacity in Richmond who has not, for the last few years, been wishing either openly or in his heart for at least friendly if not cordial relations with the National Government. During all that time the people of this city have been paying into the United States Treasury revenue collections aggregating seventy millions of dollars. Why should we not desire to get some of that money back in the form of appropriations which we very much need? And we are anxious, and have made repeated efforts, to have the weight of the duties from which those large revenues have been derived abate from time to time, as a favorable opportunity might occur. The tobacco trade of Richmond may send their most intelligent and most influential members to Washington, as they have over and over done, and what will be their success without a representative from this district who has influence with the Administration? Would you send your representative agent anywhere to antagonize the party whose influence or power you were earnestly endeavoring to have exercised in your favor? This thing is a business matter, and must be looked at from a business point of view.

Despite the demands of the harvest time the crowd to hear Wise was quite large—enough to fill the courthouse. Southwest Readjusters are famous for their enthusiasm, and to-day sustained their reputation by their enthusiasm over Wise's speech. His sallies at Massey and the "Big Four" were especially enjoyed by an audience in which fidelity to Readjustment on the part of men calling themselves Readjusters is a test of manhood. Endorsing the Administration heartily, Wise eloquently stated the reasons which justified Virginians in sustaining a President who loses no opportunity to enlarge the influence of Virginians in national politics and to exalt representative Virginians in places of dignity and trust.

Watts, Bowes, Barnes, Gillespie, Leece, Peery, Yost, and numerous others of the "Old Guard" of Tazewell Readjusters were present, and pledged the county by a handsomely increased majority over that of last November. It is simply truth to say that Funderism has absolutely collapsed in the Southwest. Said Pendleton at Marion, on Monday: "I do not know a single Massey man in Smyth county who is not a Funder." The same declaration is the unanimous statement of the Readjusters of Tazewell as to the status of their county.—Cor. of the Whig.

The following says of the late Sir Henry Bulwer, about the national character of the Turks, is good: "When the Turk does anything, consider what is the reasonable, straightforward interpretation to place on that act. Then eliminate absolutely that conclusion. Any other may be possible; but that certainly will not be."

Dervish Pasha, who represents the Sultan in Egypt is at once the most vigorous and unscrupulous of all the Generals of the Ottoman army. Although he is now 70 years old, he is quite as capable of ordering a massacre of the Mamelukes as was Mehmet Ali himself. He speaks nothing but Turkish, and brought two dragomans with him to Egypt, one Arab and one French.

The scene of Irish crime seems to have somewhat shifted of late. In driving through the King's County, or Tipperary, a few years ago, a resident would point out at every mile or two the spot where "poor so and so was shot," but to-day Galway seems to be the most murderous of counties. Three of her landlords have fallen in nine weeks, without the least prospect of the perpetrators being discovered.

The secretary of the National Cigar makers' Union has telegraphed to the Milwaukee strikers that they will receive no more weekly payments. About fifty strikers have gone to Cincinnati to get work.

William McCarthy, aged 45 years, committed suicide by taking arsenic at Capron's Hotel, Albany, yesterday. He also attempted to shoot himself. The cause was mental depression on account of ill-health.

THE WAR IN EGYPT.

Reported Massacres at Cairo—Water Gradually Failing—Europeans Ruthlessly Murdered.

ALEXANDRIA, July 21.—A refugee from Cairo reports that there were massacres of Europeans in the outskirts of that city on Monday. The killed at Tanta include two Engineers named Crowther and Maclean. A shiek and the Governor tried to save them, but without success. At Calmb a family was taken from a railway train and put under the wheels. All the employees of the Canal were killed. A rifle regiment occupies a fort 400 yards outside of the Rosetta. These are the only troops outside the walls. M. de Lesseps has telegraphed from Alexandria to Paris that immediate action is necessary, especially to protect the Suez canal, and that awaiting the result of the conference is ridiculous.

The official native report of the bombardment of Alexandria said that eight iron-clads were sunk, two burned and four captured, and that the latter would be brought to Cairo. All the French ships have left here, and the United States flagship has gone to Brindisi. The markets and the bourse are reopening for business.

ALARM ABOUT THE WATER SUPPLY.

LONDON, July 22.—The News has the following dispatch: "The position in regard to the water supply is becoming alarming. There has been a sensible fall of the Mahommed canal of two inches. Unless more troops arrive soon to enable Gen. Allison to drive Arabi Pasha from the pumping stations, the consequences will be terrible. Lieut. Pigott, of the Monarch, and two sailors, by dint of climbing, have reached the lantern of the lighthouse and re-lit the lamps. They found the staircase leading to the top cut away by shell. The European cotton factories at Damamhour have been destroyed.

Two transports sailed from Bombay for Aden to-day with a battalion of foot, a company of Madras sappers and 218 highlanders for Egypt. They will pick up a company of highlanders at Aden. Assym Pasha, formerly minister of foreign affairs, has been appointed sole delegate to the conference.

A dispatch to the News from Constantinople reports that all the European officers who have been serving with Arabi Pasha have deserted to the Khedive. Admiral Seymour in his dispatch to the admiralty giving his account of the bombardment of Alexandria, says the Egyptians fought with determined bravery, firing until they must have been decimated.

Why the Suez Canal is Closed.

There is no doubt that England shows a wise discretion in closing the Suez canal to all vessels. It has seemed strange to many people that merchant steamers of other than British nationality should not be permitted to go through, since they would not be the object of attack by the Egyptians; but this assumption ignores the fact that almost all foreigners are regarded by the Egyptians as enemies, although the English are the special objects of their hatred. Even were this not the case, however, there would still be grave danger to any ship going through the canal. It is well known that the canal is cut through on the sea level, there being no lifting and lowering locks; it runs through a sandy soil almost the entire distance, and there are no means of bringing obstructions to it; it cannot be cut like an elevated canal; for the banks are not dykes, but are the natural level of the country. To destroy or obstruct it for more than a few hours, even by exploding large masses of torpedoes, would seem almost impossible, since the sand would fall back again and the dredging machines would quickly restore the channel. But if a ship could be sunk and so shattered that no amount of temporary patching and pumping would float her, the canal would be effectually clogged, and weeks, if not months, might be needed to restore navigation. If this result could be accomplished the Egyptians would not care what flag the ship carried; they would let England settle that question with the aggrieved nation. They would have inflicted a severe injury upon England, both financially and strategically; for the longer the canal lies idle the more England loses, and the choking of it prevents the bringing of the Sepoy troops through. If the Egyptians seriously try to use torpedoes in the canal it will be interesting to see how England will keep it clear. A barren waste ninety-three miles long is a difficult thing to keep entirely free from an enemy, but perhaps a steady patrol of light gunboats supplemented by army stations on shore would be successful. In this case, as in the attack on Alexandria, the English can count upon the ignorance, incapacity and laziness of the Egyptians more than upon their own efforts. In the face of a fearless, energetic and able enemy the British troops would hardly dare to venture into the canal, except conveyed by protecting gunboats, the sacrifice of which might save them. It is very improbable that the Egyptians will have the pluck or skill necessary for aggressive operations, but they certainly have an excellent opportunity.

Heroism of New York Firemen.

During a tenement-house fire in New York Friday afternoon three policemen who happened to be in the vicinity displayed extraordinary courage and gallantry in rescuing the inmates. The sudden outbreak of the flames on the second floor interposed an impassable barrier of smoke and flame to the escape of those on the floors above. The New York Tribune thus describes the efforts of the policemen to rescue the inmates: "Officer Reynolds, noticing the danger of people on the floors above the fire, bravely rushed through the smoke and flames, and succeeded in reaching the front windows of the burning apartments. He kicked out the window sash, and took a position on the sill below the floor which was on fire, and, holding on with one hand to the window-frame, he called on the people above to drop one at a time into his disengaged arm. An infant three months old was first lowered to him, and he passed it into the window. Then followed seven children and three women, all of them being safely caught by the officer. Policeman Deever rescued three children from the tenement house. He found Henrietta Mullor slowly crawling along the third floor, nearly suffocated, and carried her down stairs. Then returning he carried down George and Jennie Lanciere from the same floor. Patrolman O'Neil rescued a woman who had fainted, and another woman was rescued by Officer Nolan, of the Steamboat Squad. All the persons in the two buildings were taken out with the assistance of the firemen, who soon arrived.

A writer on France in 1816 says "the best claret is made on a farm called La Fite, which is not large, and can furnish but a small portion of the wine sold under that name. People say that the quality of the fruit differs on the adjoining ground even close to the partition fence."

Massey and the Bourbon State Committee.

A telegram received after the close of our former last Wednesday night announced the failure of the "State Central Conservative Democratic Committee" to call State Convention to nominate a candidate for Congressman at large. The simple statement was sufficient to interpret what was meant, and that Hon. John E. Massey was to be its standard-bearer in the coming contest. As we have before remarked, Mr. Massey had the bulge on the demoralized forces of the Bourbon faction, and this action of the committee was a tacit admission that Boss Massey had his foot on the neck of what was left of the great and good Conservative party, and intended to press it down. The committee did not dare to hold a State Convention. Of the twenty-odd members present only two favored such a policy. All the rest of these veterans of a hundred warmly contested fields furl'd their colors and ingloriously surrendered to Boss Massey without a decent show of resistance, or a defensible plea to justify their action.

It is a strange picture indeed to contemplate. There were Payne, Daniel, John S. Barbour, Harris, and others equally popular and influential in the Bourbon ranks, either one of whom could poll 20,000 more votes than Massey, yet the necessities of the case—some occult understanding or arrangement—prevented the necessary steps being taken to bring one of these favorite leaders to the front. Not even a formal consultation of delegates fresh from the people was allowed to consider the situation. The small bosses usurped the rights and authority of the constituent body, and determined upon a line of policy that ignored the popular voice and treated with contempt, the will of the people. They even did not have the courage to directly endorse Boss Massey. Instead of bravely marching up to the issue and openly announcing Mr. Massey as their candidate, they abandoned the field of contest without a recognized representative, and tacitly assented to his candidacy and impliedly pledged him their support. It is certainly a humiliating position for what was once a great, defiant and despotic party to occupy. It excites the commiseration of even its enemies, and invokes alternate disgust and pity that any political organization should deliberately assume a relation to an important political contest that places it beneath decent respect. Its vaunted devotion to principle is exemplified in submitting to a leader who actively and bitterly opposed every measure of public policy it has ever proposed or advocated. It takes up a man who has not for years entertained a single thought on State affairs in sympathy with its declared faith. It enters upon a canvass without a formulation of principle, without a candidate, and virtually without an organization. Its courts defeat and ruin, in that it seeks not to win or retain the confidence of the people, and exposes itself to every charge that could be framed against a political force that is devoid of every element of courage, conviction, or high public aim.

The canvass will expose in what light the great mass of the people view such a cowardly abandonment of professed principles, such a craven desertion on the eve of battle, and witness a rebuke such as has political power. Not only will Wise defeat Massey by a majority unparalleled in the history of the State, but the action of the "Central Conservative-Democratic Committee" will jeopardize every district in the State if it does not defeat every candidate of that faction that offers for Congress.

The Tobacco Tax.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The Tax bill has been under consideration in the Senate over a week, and less than one-half of the bill as reported from the Finance Committee has been acted on. In fact, only two of the sections have been passed upon. Two important amendments have been adopted: First, Beck's amendment reducing the tax on manufactured tobacco and snuff from sixteen to twelve cents per pound; and, second, Beck's amendment giving farmers and producers of leaf tobacco the privilege of selling leaf tobacco of their own production to other persons besides licensed dealers, provided the amount thus sold by any producer shall not exceed one hundred dollars worth in any single year. The latter amendment was adopted by a vote of 24 to 23, Kellogg and Mahone voting in the affirmative with the Democrats and Bayard voting in the negative with the Republicans.

Another amendment of some importance, offered by Morgan and approved by Commissioner Baum, was adopted. It provides that farmers, planters and lumbermen may sell to their employes one hundred pounds of manufactured tobacco each year without paying the special tax now required of a licensed dealer.

As a rule the votes on various amendments have been pretty close. The repeal of the tax on patent medicines and perfumery was retained in the bill by three majorities. The Democrats voted solidly to strike it out. They also voted solidly against repealing the tax on play-gards. The vote, on a motion to strike out the repeal, was a tie, and hence the motion was lost.—Special to The State.

John Wise has got the start of Massey in the Southwest, has he, like Cameron got the start of Daniel last year? But what of it? The Dispatch has declared that public speaking has little or no effect upon the people...

HOSTILE MEETING

Between Hon. Jno. S. Wise and Mr. J. S. Crockett, Near Christiansburg.

We take the following telegram from the Bristol News this morning: BANGS, Va., July 25, 1882.

Wise and Crockett fought near here this morning at five o'clock. First fire neither hurt. Between first and second fire Crockett's pistol went off accidentally.

We hear it reported over the wires that Mr. G. W. Ward acted for Mr. Wise and Mr. Stewart Crockett for Mr. Jno. S. Crockett.

The Rev. Frank Stringfellow will preach at the Episcopal Church in Marion on the first and second days of August.

Water Works.

With all the natural advantages which Marion possesses it seems strange to us that our Council will not try in some way to protect the property of the town by having water at hand in case of fire.

Ex-Sanitary Com. Rufus K. Hireman, of New Orleans, was cured of rheumatism by St. Jacobs Oil, so we see by an item in the Columbus Ga. Enquirer-Sun.

Wise and Massey

Are both trying to get to Congress and it is more than probably that one of them will succeed, but Geo. G. Crush & Co., are selling good goods so cheap that they are bound to succeed.

Fighting a Snake.

Boston Special: Joseph Garbwee, of Millville, had a terrible encounter with a black-snake in Mendon the other day, and, after a hard struggle, managed to kill his snake-ship, which measured twelve feet in length and twelve inches around the body.

The Longshoremen's Provident Union of Boston has voted to make a demand for the following rates of compensation after the 15th of August: Day work 40 cents per hour, night 50 cents, and Sunday 80 cents...

John Wise has got the start of Massey in the Southwest, has he, like Cameron got the start of Daniel last year? But what of it? The Dispatch has declared that public speaking has little or no effect upon the people...

There is an apricot tree in Fresno County, Cal., that measures sixty inches around the trunk three feet from the ground. It is estimated that there is not less than a ton of fruit on the tree.

John S. Wise at Abingdon.

Wise had an audience of Readjusters, almost exclusively yesterday at Abingdon. The Funder, with few exceptions, were absent, but the court house was full nevertheless...

Capt. Wise's speech was bold, manly, incisive, humorous, and invincible. Capt. Wise is in fine condition, and is to-day in Christiansburg.

Gala Day at Cape May.

Beginning with the 18th instant Cape May puts on holiday attire, and from that time until the close of the season sojourners there will be at no loss for amusement.

Are both trying to get to Congress and it is more than probably that one of them will succeed, but Geo. G. Crush & Co., are selling good goods so cheap that they are bound to succeed.

Mr. Arbuttle, the famous cornet virtuoso, and other distinguished soloists have already been engaged. Siman Hassler, Carl Sentz, and J. P. Zimmerman will lead an orchestra of one hundred and twenty-five and a chorus of three hundred voices.

Queen Victoria sometimes gets as many as 40 telegrams in a day.

VIRGINIA.—At Rules held in the Clerk's office of the Circuit court of Smyth county, on Monday the 3rd day of July 1882.

COMPL. Against James H. Buchanan, P. C. Buchanan, Jr., Israel H. Buchanan, and James H. Gilmore Receiver.

The object of this suit is to attach in the hands of Jas. H. Gilmore Receiver the funds claimed in the Bill to be liable to Plaintiff's demand. And the appearing from the Sheriff's return that P. C. Buchanan, Jr. is a non-resident. On motion of Compl., by his counsel, it is ordered that said P. C. Buchanan, Jr. do appear here within one month after due publication of this order and do what is necessary to protect his interest in this suit.

New Life

is given by using BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. In the Winter it strengthens and warms the system; in the Spring it enriches the blood and conquers disease; in the Summer it gives tone to the nerves and digestive organs; in the Fall it enables the system to stand the shock of sudden changes.

In no way can disease be so surely prevented as by keeping the system in perfect condition. BROWN'S IRON BITTERS ensures perfect health through the changing seasons, it disarms the danger from impure water and miasmatic air, and it prevents Consumption, Kidney and Liver Disease, &c.

H. S. Berlin, Esq., of the well-known firm of H. S. Berlin & Co., Attorneys, Le Droit Building, Washington, D. C., writes, Dec. 5th, 1881:

Gentlemen: I take pleasure in stating that I have used Brown's Iron Bitters for malaria and nervous troubles, caused by overwork, with excellent results.

Beware of imitations. Ask for BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and insist on having it. Don't be imposed on with something recommended as "just as good." The genuine is made only by the Brown Chemical Co. Baltimore, Md.

FARM and HOUSEHOLD.

Farm and Garden Notes.

Give the cabbage and cauliflower plants frequent hoeing...

See that the bees have shelter during the hot days.

Peat trees need a great deal of water, a daily application of liquid manure is excellent.

Experiments and chemical analysis prove that after grass has passed the flowering period the wool fibre increases and its feeding value diminishes.

B. Huribart, Portland, Michigan, is reported as having said: "Two years' successful experience makes me know that a dash of strong scap-suds is death to currant worms."

Stable the young calves and colts through the heat of the day and they will make a better growth than if allowed to run at large and waste their flesh in fighting flies.

Washing with kerosene and water containing sulphur of fuming will kill lice on hogs. In the stables use quackling, sulphuric acid, petroleum or turpentine, first deluging them with boiling water.

A correspondent says his fowls have white scales on their legs, and what will cure it. The disease is known as scaly leg or elephantiasis and is occasioned by damp fowl houses or exposure.

Insects of different species are attracted toward the wants of plants suited to the wants of their offspring, by the sense of smell, and that if some odor, strong enough to overcome the natural odor of the plant, can be applied to the plant, or the earth around it, it will no longer attract the insect.

In poultry, diarrhea is generally caused by too much soft food. The diet should be changed directly the symptoms of this malady are perceived.

Other crops may be more profitable than corn, but corn is cash to the farmer, and may be relied upon every year if properly managed.

The Value of Liquid Manure.

A cow under ordinary feeding, furnishes in a year 20,000 pounds of solid excrement, and about 8,000 pounds of liquid.

Bonnets are gradually encroaching over the ears.

White alpaca, trimmed with velvet, is coming in vogue.

Society in Paris is adopting English styles, huits, and costumes.

Brandeburg and fourages fasten and decorate many corsages.

Bonnets with back curtains falling over the chignon are revived.
