OUR SAVIOUR'S SENTENCE OF DEATH.

An Alleged Copy of the Most Memorable Judicial Sentence Ever Produced.

The following is a copy of the most memorable judicial sentence which has ever been pronounced in the annals of the world, namely, that of death against the Saviour, with the remarks which the Journal Le Droit has collected, and the knowledge of which must be interesting in the highest degree to every Christian. It is word for word as follows: Sentence pronounced by Pontius Pilate, intend of the Lower Province of Galilee, that Jesus of Nazareth shall suffer death by the cross. In the seventeenth year of the reign of the Emperor Tiberius, and on the 24th day of the month of March, in the most holy city of Jerusalem, during the pontificate of Annas and Caiaphas.

Pontius Pilate, intend of the province of Lower Galilee, sitting in judgment in the presidential seat of Praetors, sentences Jesus of Nazareth to death on a cross between two robbers, as the numerous and notorious testimonials of the people prove.

1. Jesus is a misleader.
2. He has excited the people to sedition.
3. He is an enemy to the law.
4. He calls himself the Son of God.
5. He kills himself, falsely, the King of Israel.
6. He went into the Temple followed by a multitude carrying palms in their hands.

Orders from the first centurion Quirinus Cornelius to bring him to the place of execution; forbids all persons, rich or poor, to prevent the execution of Jesus.

The witnesses who have signed the execution of Jesus are:

1. Daniel Kobani, Pharisee.
2. John Zorababel.
3. Raphael Kobani.
4. Capet.

Jesus to be taken out of Jerusalem through the gates of Tournes.

This sentence is engraved on a plate of brass in the Hebrew language, and on its sides are the following words: "A similar plate has been sent to each tribe."

It was discovered in the year 1280, in the city of Aquila, in the kingdom of Naples, by a search made for Roman antiquities, and remained there until it was found by the commission of arts in the French army in Italy. Up to the time of the campaign in Southern Italy it was preserved in the sacristy of the Carthusians, near Naples, where it was kept in a box of ebony. Since then the relic has been kept in the chapel of Casert. The Carthusians obtained, by their petitions, that the plate might be kept by them, which was an acknowledgment of the sacrifices, which they made for the French army. The French translation was made literally by members of the commission of arts. Dennon had a fac-simile of the plate engraved, which was brought by Lord Howard on the sale of his cabinet for 2,890 francs. There seems to be no historical doubt as to the authenticity of this. The reasons of the sentence correspond exactly with those of the gospel.

DR. SCHAFFON THE REVISED NEW TESTAMENT.

PITTSBURG, PA., May 29.—Dr. Philip Schaff, Chairman of the American Branch of the Bible Revision Committee addressed a large audience to-day on the subject of the revised New Testament. After briefly reviewing the different translations made from time to time, the speaker said that for fifty years there had been a growing demand for a new translation. There were two reasons for such a revision: First, the changes in languages, and, second, the progress in biblical scholarship. Every living language, he said, changes from time to time; certain words have changed to direct opposite meanings, such as "represent" used in the sense of "precede," "let" for "hinder," "carriages" for "baggage," "by-and-by" for "forthwith," etc. The most important reason, however, is the growth of knowledge. The forty-seven persons who made the King James translation had none of them been in Palestine, and knew little of Biblical geography. They were thus liable to make errors and did make many. Since then Egypt has been explored, Palestine has been traversed, Babylon and Nineveh have risen out of their graves to testify to the truth of the Bible and lend their manuscripts, and inscriptions to the explanation of its passages. Older manuscripts, since discovered, have been in the present revision, and many actual errors rectified. "Strain at goat" has been changed to "Strain at goat," and a great many such typographical errors have been corrected. Two words in the original were both translated "Hell" in the King James version—"Hades" meaning the abode of souls after death, and "Gehenna" meaning the abode of the damned. In the revision this has been corrected. So also has the distinction between "Devil" and "Demon" been brought out. The division into chapters, first made by a Roman Catholic Cardinal in the thirteenth century, and that into verses, first made by a Paris publishing house in the sixteenth century, have been done away with, and the text has been divided according to sense. Italicized passages, when they were unnecessary and weakening to the true sense, have been discarded.

Parents who contemplate making railroad men of their boys cannot be too careful how they bring them up. We learn that the cause of many of our railroad disasters is defective training.

Mrs. Spriggins was boasting of her new house. The windows she said, were oil stained. "That's to bad!" But won't turpentine or benzine wash it off?" asked the good Mrs. Oldbody.

"Are you engaged?" asked Colonel Mark Anthony of a Galveston hack-driver. "Engaged! Why, man alive I have five children down with the measles and two more to take it. I am engaged in sitting up with them all night long."

A dandy of 26, having been termed an "old bachelor," appealed to an elderly man to decide whether he should be called old or not, giving his age as 26. Said the elderly gentleman: "It is owing to how you take it. Now, for a man it is young enough; but for a goose it is rather old."

A lecturer was once in a dilemma which he will probably never forget. While talking about art he ventured the assertion, "Art can never improve nature." At that moment some one in the audience cried out in a gruff voice, "Can't eh? Well then, how do you think you would look without your wig?"

ONE COUNTRY, ONE DESTINY.

The Hon. Cassey Young delivered the address in Memphis, Tenn., on Sunday last, upon the occasion of the decoration of the graves of the Confederate dead. He closed his oration with these sensible and patriotic words: "While doing this, we owe duties and obligations to the living that we cannot, and ought not, to escape, for honor of the South, that jewel which was preserved unstained through all its disasters and ruins, is held in pledge for its performance. When the soldiers of the South laid down their arms, under military conditions that would have made further resistance a crime, and accepted the generous terms of the great Captain to whom they surrendered, they pledged no puny faith, but the sturdy honor of soldiers, to abide faithfully the issue of the war. This they have done. But they must not be shrank in steadfast adherence to their pledged faith and honor by the taunts and brickbats of the inguible few who witnessed from afar their heroic struggle with a worthier foe. The brave and true and many of our countrymen know now that the struggle was inevitable; that its seeds had germinated in the very structure of our Government had grown with its growth until they had given life and vigor to a parasite too strong to be torn away save by the strength of our whole people struggling in the throes of a giant civil war. They understand the sources of our convictions and appreciate the courage with which you maintained them, and the time will soon come when the most ardent of your admirers and eloquent of your eulogists will be among your own countrymen with whom you crossed lances on the field of battle. They are now anxiously looking to you for aid in making greater, and more beneficent our common country to tear out the thistle and thorns sown by the hand of hate, and add brighter and sweeter flowers to the chaplet of liberty—to stud with richer and rarer jewels the crown and sceptre of freedom. In this noble, patriotic work it is our duty to join. The passions and animosities of war should be forgotten—over all its wickedness and hates, over all its dark and forbidding places, should be thrown the mantle of Christian charity, gentle and softly as the hand of nature has spread the beautiful mantle of Spring over the quiet graves of those who perished in its fury. Your sacred task for to-day is done—you will soon leave your dead to the solitude of their dreary homes; but a holy memory will guard this hallowed spot, and the aroma of love and faith and prayer will ascend from this consecrated ground until you come again. You have planted to-day among these humble tombs, flowers and vines, and which watered with dew of heaven, falling in tears from woman's eyes, will grow and bloom and spread until their opening petals will smile on every grave, and their tender arms twine in loving embrace around every grassy mound and marble slab."

If you should boast that you never told the truth perhaps you would do it at that very moment for the first time in your life.

A gentleman was complimenting a pretty young lady in the presence of his wife. It's lucky I did not meet Miss Hopkins before I married you, my dear." Well, yes, it is extremely—for her," was the dry rejoinder.

A young lady was caressing a pretty spaniel and murmuring, "I do love a nice dog!" "So?" said a dandy standing near, "I would I were a dog!" "Never mind," retorted the young lady, sharply, "you'll grow."

Last of a scene with an importunate creditor: "No sir, after the way you have damned me, I solemnly vow that I will never pay you a penny, and when an honest man pledges you his word about anything, that is the end of it!"

"Bub, did you ever think?" asked a grocer, recently, as he measured out a half peck of potatoes, "that these potatoes contained sugar, water and starch?"

"No, I didn't," replied the boy, "but I heard mother say you put beans and peas in your coffee, and about a pint of water in every quart of milk sold."

A gentleman from the north was spending a few days in Galveston. He was spending the evening with a Galveston gentleman whose acquaintance he had made. On reaching the house the stranger asked: "Have you any Texas relics or curiosities?" "Certain," was the reply; "allow me to make you acquainted with my mother-in-law."

R. E. LINDAHOOD ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,

THE STATE CONVENTION—ITS NOMINEES.

The State Convention which met at Richmond on Thursday, the 2nd inst., was in session two days, and was a most harmonious but enthusiastic body. On the fourth ballot Col. Wm. E. Cameron, of Petersburg was nominated for Governor. He is a man of whom even his political enemies can say nothing but in compliment. He is a gentleman of great ability, being one of the best debaters in the State, and the finest journalist in the South. His physical courage was tested during the war in many a field of battle, and he possesses all the moral courage requisite to conducting the campaign of his party in a most successful manner. Col. CAMERON is now in the vigor of manhood, being only thirty-eight years old. He has done much for our party, and it will not be likely to fail him in the coming contest.

The Hon. Jno. F. Lewis, of Rockingham, was nominated for the Lieutenant-Governor on the first ballot. Mr. Lewis though a Republican Readjuster, is a man of decided integrity, and true to any cause in which he holds. He was elected Lieut. Governor, as a liberal Republican, by the Conservative party in 1869, and afterwards elected by the same party to the United States Senate.

Capt. F. S. Blair was nominated for the position of Attorney-General by acclamation. It is unnecessary for us to say anything of the ability and merit of this gentleman as all our readers know him well, and what grand work he has done for Readjustment. A ticket has been placed in the field that all Readjusters, irrespective of past party affiliations can rally upon. The platform of principles adopted by the convention is liberal and progressive. Victory, we believe, is sure to perch upon our banner. With the gallant CAMERON to lead us on the Southside; with LEWIS to direct our forces in the Valley, and with BLAIR to marshal the Readjustment hosts of the Southwest, an army will be organized that Funderism will not only find invincible, but before whose united, energy and devoted hearts Funder-Democracy will tremble, and fall, and die.

The following is the Platform adopted by the Convention:

The Readjusters of Virginia, in convention assembled, affirm that the work of their organization for two years has been such as to commend itself to the majority of Virginia tax payers, whose voice spoke them into authority in the legislative department and over the Capitol and other offices in 1879. They affirm that the fruits of the triumph of the people over such immense difficulties as then confronted them should be preserved; that within two years they have averted the menacing peril of increased taxation; that they have successfully met and answered the aspersions of eight years upon the character and fame of the Commonwealth and her people, and have completely restored to her the acknowledgment of the "outside world" of her just claim to her superiority as a faith-preserving State over those who have been chief among her assailants and defamers; that they have brought back to the Virginian mind the once deprostituted and fundamental conviction that a State Constitution fixes the limit of legislative power and must be represented; that the sovereignty resides with the people and cannot be alienated; that government is not supported by force, but depends upon free will; that the great desideratum and governing principle should be the least government consistent with the preservation of order, the protection of life, liberty, and property, and this at the least possible cost to those who must pay taxes for its support; that the State should be freed from defaults in the management of the public revenues and public institutions aggregating over 20 per cent. of the gross revenues of the State for any one year; that they have opened 4,854 public schools for five months as against 2,604 for the year previous, with terms of three months, and have paid much of the diverted funds to the colleges and humane institutions; that they have collected the revenues and have honestly and constitutionally disbursed them. Upon this record they ask the continued confidence of the people, and this Convention stands for their approval the following statement of principles and purposes, which will continue to guide and inspire the Readjusters of Virginia:

First. We recognize our obligation to support the institution for the Deaf, Dumb, and Blind, the Lunatic Asylums, the public free schools, and the government out of the revenues of the State; and we deprecate and denounce that policy of ring rule and subordinate sovereignty which for years borrowed money out of banks at high rates of interest for the discharge of these paramount trusts, while our revenues were left the prey of commercial exchanges available to the State on the option of speculators and syndicates.

Second. We reassert our purpose to settle and adjust our State obligations on the basis of the "bill to re-establish public credit," known as the Riddleberger bill, passed by the last General Assembly and this measure recognized our adherence to the Virginia in this, that it assumes two-thirds of all the money Virginia borrowed, and sets aside the other third to West Virginia to be dealt with by her in her own way and at her own pleasure; that it places those of our creditors who have received but 2 per cent. upon an exact equality with those who, by corrupt agencies, were enabled to absorb and monopolize our means of payment; that it agrees to pay such rate of interest on our securities as can with certainty be met out of the revenues of the State; and that it cedes to all the essential features of finality.

Third. We reassert our adherence to the constitutional requirement for the "equal and uniform taxation" of property, exempting none excepting that specified by the Constitution and used exclusively for "religious, charitable, and educational purposes."

Fourth. We reassert that the paramount obligation of the various works of internal improvement, to the people of the State, by whose authority they were created, by whose money they were constructed, and by whose grace they live; and it is enjoined upon our representative officers to enforce the discharge of that duty to insure to our people such rates, facilities, and connections as will protect every industry and interest against discrimination, tend to the development of their agricultural and mineral resources, encourage the investment of active capital in manufactures and profitable employment of labor in industrial enterprises, grasp for our cities and whole State those advantages to which, by their geographical position, they are entitled, and fulfill all the great public ends for which they were designed.

Fifth. The Readjusters hold the right to a free ballot to be the right preservative of all rights, and that it should be maintained in every State in the Union. We believe the capitation tax restriction upon the suffrage of Virginia to be in conflict with the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States. We believe that it is a violation of that condition of reconstruction wherein the pledge was given not to so amend our State Constitution as to derive any citizen or class of citizens of a right to vote except as punishment for such crimes as are felony at common law. We believe such a prerequisite to voting to be contrary to the genius of our institutions, the very foundation of which is represented as antecedent to taxation. We know that it has been a failure as a measure for the collection of revenue, the pretended reason for its innovation in 1876, and we know the base, demoralizing and dangerous uses to which it has been prostituted. We know it contributes to the increase of monopoly power and to corrupting the voter. For these and other reasons we adhere to the purpose hitherto expressed to provide more effectual legislation for the collection of this tax, dedicated by the Constitution to the public free schools, and to abolish it as a qualification for and restriction upon suffrage.

Sixth. The Readjusters congratulate the whole people of Virginia on the progress of the last few years in developing mineral resources and promoting manufacturing enterprises in the State, and they declare their purpose to aid these great and growing industries by all proper and essential legislation, State and Federal. To this end they will continue their efforts in behalf of more cordial and fraternal relations between the sections and States, and especially for that concord and harmony which will make the country to know how earnestly and sincerely Virginia invites all men into her borders as visitors or to become citizens without fear of social or political ostracism; that ever man, from whatever section of country, shall enjoy the same freedom of thought, speech, politics, and religion, and that the State which first formulated these as fundamental in free government is yet the citadel for their exercise and protection.

The Funders will begin to twit Readjusters about having a Republican on the State ticket. Ask them if they didn't have the same man on their State ticket in 1869, when they were the Conservative party. They will say, "oh yes; but we took him then as a compromise man and to relieve the State from Carpetbag rule." Just tell them that we have taken him now as a liberal man to relieve our State of Funder rule, which has been about as disastrous to the interests of the State as carpetbag rule could possibly have been.

MAJ. H. C. WOOD, of Scott, Wm. C. PENDLETON, of Smyth, and P. H. McCAULL, of Pulaski, were appointed members of the State Executive Committee of the Readjuster party to represent the 9th Congressional district.

EVERY county in the State but two, was represented in the Readjuster's Convention, and all of them represented were represented by representative men. In this respect no better convention ever assembled in Virginia.

The June moon falls on the 12th, and gives us the rarest treat of a total eclipse. No celestial phenomenon is easier to understand. The earth passes between the sun and moon and obscures his light. It commonly occurs at the time of full moon, and there would be a total eclipse of the moon every month if the sun's path and moon's path were on the same plane or level. But the moon's orbit is inclined to the elliptic about five degrees; therefore the moon must be at her node or crossing point at the time of the full moon in order to be totally eclipsed. She is, however, much oftener far enough from her node to be above or below the earth's shadow when there is no eclipse or she may be near enough to her node to pass through a portion of the earth's shadow when she is partially eclipsed. But on the morning of the 12th the conditions are favorable for a grand exhibition of the darkening power of the earth's shadow. The moon is full, she is at her node, she is in perigee, or at her nearest point to the earth, and she will pass centrally through the earth's shadow. The eclipse begins—that is, the dark shadow enters upon the moon—at 29 minutes after midnight. The total phase commences at 1 hour 29 minutes. The eclipse ends at 3 hours 52 minutes, and ends at 2 hours 51 minutes. On the 21st the moon is in conjunction with Mars and Saturn. On the morning of the 22d the heavens will present a superb picture, made up of the waning moon, the bright planets Venus and Jupiter. Between 5 o'clock on the morning of the 21st and 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the 22d the moon is in conjunction with five planets Mars, Saturn, Neptune, Jupiter and Venus.

The Daily News' St. Petersburg dispatch says the projects for a diminution in the rents of the peasants in thirteen northern governments and for compulsory purchase of the lands not yet ceded to them will not be carried out in their present form. They have been referred for further consideration by experts.

Col. William E. Cameron. The unanimous nominee of the Readjuster convention—Col. William E. Cameron—is a native of this city and is its present mayor, having served three years in that office. When the debt settlement was introduced as an issue in party politics he took an early and earnest stand in behalf of Readjustment, and so great has been his personal popularity that at each election afterwards he was strongly supported for the mayoralty by many not in sympathy with his political views. He is 38 years of age, attended school here as a boy, and afterwards was at Chapel Hill, in North Carolina awhile. He is not the graduate of any institution of learning by reason of the early age he entered the army, but native talent and individual application have supplied the defects of early education. As a journalist he is brilliant, as an orator he is graceful and fluent, though he has to contend against the difficulties of a weak voice. As a debater he is ready and full of resources, and has made quite a reputation in this State. He has been recently admitted to the bar in this city.

His career as a soldier is creditable. While under age he joined the Petersburg City Guards, Twelfth Virginia Regiment. At the reorganization of the army he was elected a Lieutenant of Company D (Captain Wm. H. Jarvis). Subsequently, upon the resignation of Captain Louis L. Marks, he became Adjutant to the regiment, serving as such until the battle of Gettysburg, when he was transferred as Assistant-Adjutant General to Cavis' (Mississippi) brigade, with the rank of Captain. On promotion of Colonel Weisiger to the command of Mahone's brigade he was appointed Assistant-Adjutant General of that brigade. He served throughout the war, was wounded at the second battle of Manassas, and surrendered at Appomattox Courthouse.

EDUCATION IN THE SOUTH.

THE AUTHOR OF "A FOOL'S ERRAND" ON THE NEEDS OF THE NEGRO—THE DUTY OF THE NORTH—JUDGE TOURGEE'S PLAN.

[New York Herald.] Judge Albion W. Tourgee, the author of "A Fool's Errand," spoke at the hall of the Union League Club last evening before some of the most distinguished members of the organization upon the question of national education, with special reference to his bearings upon the future of the South. Mr. Jackson S. Schultz presided and introduced the speaker in a few complimentary phrases. Judge Tourgee, who was listened to with much interest, is in favor of a national appropriation for the educational benefit of the negroes and poor whites of the South. He showed in forcible language the prevalence of ignorance and the need of education in the South, and advocated the expenditure of money to be provided by the Government in the same economical and judicious manner the Peabody fund is disbursed. He holds that inasmuch as the North has profited by the material advantages of slavery it owes it to the South to help pay the expenses of educating the negro. In the course of his address he said:

The people of the country have made three great mistakes, in my opinion, with regard to the situation of the South since the war. The first was to infer that the South is to-day just what the North would be tomorrow if we had an infusion of thirty per cent. of colored blood among the population of the North. We have determined to be blind to the past, and not only blind but false. The differences of social construction that made slavery possible were not only superficial and skin deep. They were of the heart, of the brain, in the essence of society. They are in the hearts and brains of the people to-day; and they are going on by inheritance into the hearts of their children. They are going away slowly, very slowly, but it will be very many years before they disappear.

The second mistake was which we assumed that the age of miracles had not yet ended, and acted on the hypothesis that five years of war had transformed the master into a saint and the slave into a revised and improved Solomon. You don't change hearts by touch of the sword. You may cut the shackles of a man's hands, but you don't make him free by a constitutional amendment. [Applause.] The speaker went on to describe how idiots are taught to work by closing their hands over the rounds of a ladder, saying that it was sometimes six months before the dull, blinded mind could learn to save the body from shock and harm by holding on to the rounds. Continuing, Judge Tourgee said: "You have made the slave as free as the winds, but have never taught him how to hold on for his own salvation. [Applause.] I am sorry that from the lips of one of the founders of this club should have come that cruel barbarism as applied to the colored race, 'Root hog, or die!' We have no right to take that view of it. We do not stand on any such plane of civilization. We have yet to lift up that race or be drawn down by it. [Applause.]

The third mistake which we made was when we attempted to cheat ourselves into the belief that we had no more responsibilities, because we had by a seeming shrewd trick shifted it upon the South itself. It was a fool's cunning. Let us not continue it. Let us stand up like men, meet the question fairly, find a remedy and do our share of the work. My life is in this thing. It was with much suffering, after terrible phases of experiences, that I came to feel as I do on this subject. I do not speak of this as a matter of evolution on my part because of any overweening trust that I have in my own reasoning powers, but because from day to day, from year to year, I faced the problem.

As I stand before God, I sought the remedy earnestly and prayerfully, and I feel that there is but one. [Applause.] I would not have the country take a single backward step, but I would have it rise to the dignity of making every man self-supporting, the subject race a self-supporting and independent and strong race. It will not take half as much time as it did to advance the white race, because our hands will be under them, lifting them up. As a supplementary act of reconstruction, as a conclusion of that great work, nothing could be so conducive, so thorough, so effective in that matter as a national aid to education, extended in a sensible, business-like, unassuming method. In the first place, we are doing an act of justice. Here are some millions of black people who must be educated. It has got to be done some time by somebody. No man ever thought of raising a question upon that. Now, who ought to do it? I hold that when we rolled the burden of education the slave and the poor white upon the South alone we did a mean piece of business. New York reaped the benefit of slavery. You didn't take the curse of it, though. [Applause.] You got the money. And not only New York, but New England, with its busy spindles, took toll from every bale of cotton, put it in its pocket, and then said, "Down with slavery!" There were not many of us at the North before the war who were brave enough to be told of slavery. Considered as an evil slavery was a national crime; considered as a productive institution it was a national bonanza. You and I are as much responsible for the evil of slavery as the most villainous slave owner. Nor for that reason we ought, in equity and good conscience, to help pay the costs.

It is a mighty gratifying thing to know that even partisan malice, with all its uncharitableness, can find anything worth mentioning against the character, capacity and standing of the Readjuster candidates. The State of Friday was full of eulogy of Col. Cameron, our nominee for Governor, and the Dispatch of Saturday said: "We have nothing to say against Mr. Cameron personally. The worst thing we know of him is his Mahonianism. The editor of the State, who knows him well, having been associated with him in the conduct of a Petersburg journal, speaks in terms of high commendation of the new nominee. When a man's partner in business speaks well of him it is a good sign for that man."

And of the Hon. John F. Lewis, our candidate for Lieut. Governor the Dispatch says:

"Mr. Lewis is a man of good name and fame, barring his Radical proclivities and his unreasoning hatred of the Democratic party."

Of Captain Blair, our candidate for Attorney-General, the Dispatch affects to know little, and that little is founded on slanders and libels heretofore refuted. But we tell our contemporary that Blair is a power in the South-west—that his character is unimpeachable, both as a private citizen and a public man—and that his abilities and eloquence will lead great strength to our cause. Of untiring energy and enterprise, his voice will rouse the people to the great battle for popular rights with unflagging vigor and effect.—Whig.

A "Paralyzed" Waiter

Several gentlemen quietly partaking of breakfast at the Crawford House restaurant, recently, were thrown into consternation by a sudden crash. Milk pitchers, plates, coffee dishes and individual butters leaped into the air as if by magic. When the earthenware settled down a waiter, paralyzed with fear, was observed standing on the cloth precisely where the caster had been an instant before. The waiter had never figured as a dumb one before, but there he stood in the centre of the table, surrounded by gentlemen whose open and elevated mouths contained various quantities of various kinds of food in different stages of mastications, apparently unable to move any more than the caster which he had displaced with his foot and deposited in the stomach of a breakfaster. After gazing at the figure for a moment the gentlemen surrounding the table closed their mouths and looked around for the cause of the unprecedented demonstration. A policeman was observed on either side of the board who wanted the waiter for the larceny of a clock. The would-be fugitive, whose name is Thomas Alinson perceiving an officer about to corner him, attempted to escape by springing over the table but from the caster point of view he also perceived another policeman, hence his failure to proceed. He gazed for a moment at the officers, then into those open but sympathetic countenances above referred to, and seeing no hope, yielded.

Terrific and Fatal Accident at Low Moor.

Richmond, June 3.—A gentleman who arrived here this morning on the Chesapeake and Ohio train, reports a terrible accident yesterday at Low Moor, Alleghany county, by which four persons were so frightfully injured that they will probably die. It appears that a negro boy employed at the iron works at the above-named place, who was conveying a can of dynamite to the powder house, stopped at the blacksmith shop, which he entered with the dynamite can in his hand. In a few moments afterwards, persons in the vicinity were startled by a thundering detonation, and saw the debris of the blacksmith shop flying in the air in all directions. Upon hastening to the scene, it was found that the building was entirely demolished. The bodies of the boy who had the fatal explosive and three men who were at work in the shop were discovered in the ruins in a dreadfully mutilated condition, but none were actually dead. They were taken to the hospital attached to the iron works for treatment, but it is not likely that any of them will recover. What caused the explosion cannot now be learned, as none who were in the shop at the time are in a condition to give any information.

A Happy Woman.

Miss Bernhardt being home again the rumors are beginning to fly. Without pausing to analyze the latest attention may be profitably directed to the manner of her reception at Havre. If we may credit the Figaro, it was one of the greatest events in modern French history. There were more than 50,000 people on the quay. The ships in harbor were decorated with the national colors. Frenchmen ran about shouting; "Vive Sarah!" "Vive Bernhardt!" "Few sovereigns," says the veracious chronicler, "have had such a reception." A party of enthusiasts set out in a yacht to meet the actress. Maurice Bernhardt, her son, was with them. When they caught sight on the vessel of "une grande silhouette blanche," they tried their handkerchiefs to their sticks and waved them in the breeze. When Miss Bernhardt caught sight of her son, she "trapped him literally de joie." "Ah, mon fils," she said, borrowing the language of Little Red Riding Hood, "comme te grand, et quelle grosse voix tu as maintenant!" To which the youth replied, "Dame! maman, ce n'est pas ma faute." When they reached the quay they were received by a brass band. Miss Bernhardt waved a flag to the crowd and wept with joy. A little girl offered her a bouquet, but forgot the speech she had to make. So the actress made it for her, and the correspondent telegraphed it to Paris. In short the event was a very remarkable one, and it is satisfactory to foreigners to observe that there is still a fund of vitality in that famous old French institution, blague.

In the Guards.

For ages it has been customary for certain families with aristocratic aspirations to bring up one or two of their sons to go into the army as officers, and who would feel themselves degraded by having to earn a living by any species of commercial enterprise. To get a son into the guards is the height of their ambition no matter that he has not the brains to acquit himself properly and may have to retire, in by no means a creditable manner. The man who can say, or write after his name, "lete of the Guards," occupies a position quite as enviable as the person who has been a member of Parliament, and is unseated after three months, for bribery, but who all the rest of his life can proudly say, "When I was in the Honors!" Small puffs of this kind go for much in our social economy. On whatever grounds, the getting of sons as officers into the army becomes a sort of superstition, calculated to enlarge the sphere of Jingoism. It is hard to say so, but to all appearance, the army is in some degree an institute for the cultivation of idleness and contempt of honest industry. We are fortified in the remark from what has been lately said by Sir Garnet Wolseley, on the subject of military service, in the Nineteenth Century. "Hitherto," he says, "our army has been a pleasant home for idle men; generation after generation of officers have been attracted to it by the ease and pleasure it secured to the English gentleman—enjoyment that was only heightened by the opposite extremes of privation and hard work which an occasional campaign afforded."

Political Matters.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—An inquiry concerning the rumored appointment of a successor for First Assistant Postmaster-General Tyner results in ascertaining from the highest official sources that no change has yet been ordered. It is true however, as heretofore stated, that Gen. Tyner's resignation has been at the disposal of the President for some time, and that in fact, it was the usual custom almost immediately after the present Administration came into power. The resignation has not yet been accepted on an early day, and that ex-Senator Spencer will probably be appointed to fill the vacancy if one be thus created.

The representatives of the Attorney-General and Postmaster-General, now and heretofore in charge of the Star contract investigation, emphatically discredit the published rumors that Secretary Blaine has been implicated in the matters referred to, and that in the interest of himself or of implicated friends he has endeavored to stop or impede the investigation. The committee of investigation and their superior officers unite in denouncing all such reports as utterly groundless, and say that on the contrary Mr. Blaine has from the very first encouraged the investigations most heartily, and has constantly taken the ground that it should be prosecuted to the utmost.

General Milutine has finally tendered his resignation as Russian Minister of War.

FARM WORK FOR JUNE.

[Maryland Farmer.] June is always a busy and trying month to the farmers, and particularly so to the tobacco planters. The tobacco crop is, or should be planted this month, the growing crops must be worked and kept clean, and both hay and grain harvest comes on, so that, any way, it demands all the energy and management at the command of either, but the planter has double labor on his hands, and if the weather is favorable to the "weeds," it is unpropitious, sometimes ruinous to the harvest and other crops. Therefore it is always safest to be prepared for the worst. This is measurably done by having the corn and root crops clean and weeded before harvest begins, and have the land ready for tobacco planting, if the plant beds indicate that the plants will be ready to set out when a good "season" comes. And before the clover is fit to cut, or the grain heads, let every preparation be made, implements all put in order, and a large force of hands engaged, so that the crop of grain can be secured in a day or so. This is true economy and often has saved much loss. If it takes five men to secure a wheat crop, two days; ten will do it in a day and at the same cost, and one day often makes a wonderful difference in the actual value of the crop.

Grain Crops.—Rye is usually ripe ten days before wheat. Both should be cut in the dough state.

We again urge the importance of securing the wheat at the earliest moment by stacking or putting it in the barn, and thereby saving much loss by its being exposed in small shocks, in the field, to the ruinous effects of rain, storms, and depredations of birds and animals. Some seasons, immense loss happens to the grain crop, from this bad management of the farmers. It is better policy to thresh it in a few days after it is shocked, which saves much labor in hauling, stacking or putting in the barn, and then the grain is safe in the granary, to await a rise in the market, or to be sold just when it suits the owner. No matter when it is threshed, let it be the duty of the farmer to secure the straw in large ricks, put up with as much care as is bestowed on clover hay. Bright, clean straw is good feed and valuable. Rye straw, in bundles, is worth usually as much per ton as clover, or rough hay. The run to a well built straw rick, is all the long food that young cattle or sheep want in the Middle States in winter. Indeed, it will afford shelter as well as food.

Clover Hay.—Clover, for hay, should be cut just before a majority of the blossoms turn brownish. What is cut in the forenoon should be put in 100 pounds cocks in the afternoon. Do not begin to cut it until the dew is off. After standing two or more days in the cocks, they should be opened and exposed for some hours to the air and sun, and then hauled to the hay mow, or ricked neatly and well covered on top with straw. If possible, it should not have a drop of rain on it from the time it is cut until it secures in rick or mow.

Corn Broadcast or Drilled.—Select a few acres of good land and manure it well, then sow broadcast three bushels of tall growing corn sweet corn is best, and harrow it in. Or drill in corn, so as to have the grain about an inch apart, and the drills two-and-a-half to three feet apart. Cultivate it well until the corn is three feet high.—This will give you fine, green food to help out your pastures when they fail or if it be cut and cured, after it has tasseled, will give you a great amount of valuable fodder to supply any deficiency in the hay product, or you can sell your fodder, which if nicely cured, will be worth to you as much as like quantity of timothy hay. It will usually yield from 25 to 40 tons, per acre, green, and when cured will save lost not over three-fifths, which would be 10 to 16 tons of dried fodder per acre.

Millet.—Every person who may be likely to want hay during the winter should sow a few acres in millet or Hungarian grass—the latter we prefer.

Corn.—If you followed our directions about this crop, given in our March and April numbers—deeply plowed land, highly manured and thoroughly prepared before planted with good seed of prolific variety—and you will cultivate it well every six or ten days, you need not fear of a poor crop.

Pumpkins.—Be sure and plant pumpkin seed among your corn, when you thin it.—Plant every fifth or sixth row of corn, with one pumpkin seed, about twenty feet apart, in the row. If the land is rich, plant much closer.

AGRICULTURAL ITEMS. The aggregate number of live stock in the United States is set down at $2,000,000 head. Sixty-eight thousand pounds of maple sugar have been shipped from Nashville, Mich., this season. Mangel wurzel plants and also sugar beets can be transplanted with success. The best we raised last year were those we had transplanted. Pumpkins seeds act as a diuretic, on cattle. Cows in milk should never have access to them. Before pumpkins are fed the seeds should always be removed, for they decrease the flow milk very rapidly. Farmers must learn to get more produce from less acres. In New England we are cultivating lands which should be growing timber, and only half cultivating those which should be producing double the amount they are now.

48 GENUINE STEEL SPRINGS FIVE DOLLARS BROWNS PATENT SELF FASTENING SPRING

Equal to any spring now in use! This is without doubt the cheapest, best and most durable spring ever offered to the public and is far superior to any bed in the market as a smooth Nicholson pavement is over all others are—1st It is clean, noiseless and strong. 2nd Each Spring is made of the best Bessemer Spring Steel, and having an individual strength of sixty pounds. 3rd The body rests smoothly and evenly upon this Spring as a swan floats upon the water, and a light and heavy person sleeping in the same bed does not cause it to sag, as with slat or woven wire beds. 4th, This is the only Spring in the market that can be adjusted to any bed, and moved from one bed to another with the same ease that you can move ordinary slats. 5th It makes a smooth, even surface for the mattress to rest upon, with no ends to chafe and wear the mattress. 6th This bed we guarantee to be noiseless, elastic and adjustable; to be hard or soft at the will of the occupant (by simply adding or removing a few springs, which can be done in five minutes) and to fit the body in all its parts and positions, and to give way under any strain; each spring being severely tested before sold. No backache on this bed. County and State rights for sale by T. G. HANBERRY & CO., WYTHEVILLE, VA.

References:—Having purchased and are now using the above Spring Bed, we cheerfully recommend it to our friends. Respectfully, E. L. Stanley, G. W. Ward, Jr., S. G. Keller, Chas. Harris, D. H. Ayer's Hair Vigor, FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR. It is a most agreeable dressing, which is at once harmless and effectual, for preserving the hair. It restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray, light, and red hair, to a rich brown, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use thin hair is thickened, and baldness often though not always cured. It checks falling of the hair immediately, and causes a new growth in all cases where the glands are not decayed; while to brash, weak, or otherwise diseased hair, it imparts vitality and strength, and renders it pliable. The Vigor cleanses the scalp, cures and prevents the formation of dandruff; and, by its cooling, stimulating, and soothing properties, it heals most if not all of the humors and diseases peculiar to the scalp, keeping it cool, clean, and soft, under which conditions diseases of the scalp and hair are impossible. As a Dressing for Ladies' Hair The Vigor is incomparable. It is colorless, contains neither oil nor dye, and will not soil white cambric. It imparts an agreeable and lasting perfume, and as an article for the toilet it is economical and unsurpassed in its excellence. Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Practical and Analytical Chemists, Lowell, Mass. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.
