THE Mysterious Marriage.

OR HOW A RUSSIAN SOLDIER FOUND HIS BRIDE.

Toward the end of 1881, an epoch so memorable in the history of Russia, there dwelt on his domain of Menarodowno, Gabriel Gabrielowich with his wife and only daughter Nona a charming young girl about seventeen years of age.

Gabriel Gabrielowich was much loved and respected; generous to an unusual degree, his house was ever open to all who chose to accept his lavish hospitality. Nona Gabrielowich, had of course, many suitors, attracted both by her many personal charms and reputed wealth, but in spite of all importunities she remained obstinately indifferent to all. Her romantic and impressionable mind, affected by the constant reading of many French novels, led her to imagine herself desperately and irrevocably in love. Unfortunately, the object of her affections, who undoubtedly returned her love, met with the contemptuous disapprobation of her parents, in whose mind a poor non-commissioned officer was no fitting match for the heiress of Menarodowno. He was relentlessly forbidden the house, but in spite of this the lovers met daily at the old forest well, and there plighted their troth. When winter came, these stolen interviews were, perforce, discontinued. At length the separation became intolerable, even with the solace of a daily interchange of love-letters, and Vladimir Nicolawitch, in one of these, poured forth in glowing words all his love and misery, and besought his lady love to fly with him, assuring her of her parents' forgiveness—for who, indeed, could withstand the humble prayer—the lovers would make forgiveness, or failed to be touched by such love and constancy? Nona's romantic imagination was fascinated; she could not resist, and soon all preliminaries for the flight were settled. She would feign headache, and retire early; at ten o'clock a sleigh would be waiting at the small garden gate, and in this she would be driven, with her maid, through the forest of Jadrino, where Vladimir would find his bride in the village chateau.

On the eve of her contemplated elopement, Nona, who was restless and unhappy, retired early to her room and spent part of the night inditing a long and sentimental epistle to her dearest friend, and also a shorter one to her parents, in which she entreated their forgiveness for the step she was about to take, impelled by her unaltered love for Vladimir, who, as her husband, would return to beg their indulgence and blessing. After sealing this effusion with two flaming hearts and an appropriate motto, the rest of the night was spent in all the terrors of manifold and complicated nightmares, so that dawn found our heroine up and dressed, pale, and with no need to feign headache. Every anxious inquiry on the part of her affectionate parents cost her a pang, yet she managed to get through the day without exciting their suspicions, and retired immediately after dinner. The maid, entering a little after nine to make the final preparations, found her young mistress weeping bitterly. In less than an hour, though, she must go; so quickly drying her tears, Nona and her maid went softly down stairs, and reached the garden in safety. It was dark as pitch; the piercing cold wind whistled dimly through the trees and blew fiercely in their faces as if bidding them turn back. At length through the darkness they could discern the sleigh and Vladimir's trusty servant vainly trying to quiet the restive horses, who, as if aware of the danger of freezing where they stood, impatiently struck the hard frozen ground with their hoofs.

Meanwhile, let us follow the happy bridegroom. Vladimir Nicolawich had a busy day, what with his persuading the priest of Jadrino to perform the marriage ceremony, and searching for witnesses among the neighboring land-owners. The first he found was an ex-officer, Dravine by name, who accepted the duty with pleasure—it reminded him, he said, of his escapades when in the regiment of hussars. He begged Vladimir to dine with him, and undertook to find the other two witnesses himself. One of these was Smidt, the surveyor, and the other young Ispraconeck, just turned seven teen, and about to enter the Fifth Lancers. These two not only promised to be witnesses to Vladimir's marriage, but enthusiastically swore they would face death itself to help him. Vladimir thanked them heartily, and left to make the final preparations at his own place.

It was already dark; so, after dispatching his faithful Berodoka to Menarodowno with a troika (two-horse sleigh), he ordered a one-horse sleigh for himself, and started. It was nine o'clock; he would reach Jadrino fully half an hour before Nona, for he could certainly drive there in thirty minutes. But driving was no easy matter; the wind was full against him, and blew the blinding snow-flakes sharply into his face. Soon the very road disappeared under a white cloud, the horse stumbled blindly at every step and Vladimir was obliged over and over again to get out and disengage the sleigh from some snow-heap. With feelings akin to despair, the poor fellow realized that he had gone astray, and stumbled along, scarce daring to hope chance might yet lead him straight. At length the sight of a little black speck ahead aroused his failing courage, and fervently thanking God, Vladimir made for the friendly hut.

"Jadrino cannot now be far, thought he; I will stop here and ask my way." An old man, half asleep, answered the knock.

"What do you want?" "How far is it to Jadrino?" "Jadrino! Not far—a matter of ten miles." Poor Vladimir!

"Can you let me have a horse? Mine is half dead!" "A horse! Where would I find a horse?" "Well, can one get a guide here about?" "Wait—maybe my son can show you the way."

After what seemed to Vladimir an interminable delay, the door opened and a small boy came out.

"What time is it?" inquired Vladimir.

"It will soon be daylight! The baffled bridegroom was silent. The cocks were crowing and the day breaking when they reached Jadrino. The church was closed. After rewarding his guide and bidding him goodbye, Vladimir knocked with trembling hand at the priest's house; his troika was not in the yard. What did it mean?"

Pot's Purchase. "I think, my dear, March pork is a good purchase," said Mr. Potts, taking another pancake and skimming over the morning paper.

"I guess we don't need any, thank you," said Mrs. Potts. "If you see any good October butter anywhere, you might send up a jar."

"You don't understand me, my dear. I mean a little speculation. Let me show you how it works. Now I buy 250 barrels of pork at $12.37 1/2 a barrel."

"Heaven and earth, Mr. Potts, where are you going to put it all?" "Don't be so fast, wife. I don't ever see the pork myself, or have anything to do with it."

"I thought you just said you were going to send up 250 barrels." "No, I didn't. The pork I am going to buy is way off in Chicago."

"How did you know whether it is good or not, then?" "Dear me, wife; what do I care whether it is good or bad? I merely go long."

"You mean you go long minding your own business?" "No, no. That's a technical phrase. Let me explain it to you. You see when I go long, the bucket shop goes short."

"Short?" "Short, Mrs. Potts." "Short of pork? Why don't they get some more, dear?"

"Good Lord, wife, the whole thing is plain as day. Here I go to a bucket shop and buy 250 barrels of pork; that, don't you see, makes them bears and me a bull."

"Don't you know any better, Mr. Potts, than to talk like that before your own children? I should think you'd be ashamed of yourself, sir. You get worse and worse every day."

"You don't know what you are talking about, Mrs. Potts. When I buy 250 or 500 barrels of pork it shows I feel like a bull."

"I should think you'd feel like an idiot." "I buy 250 barrels of pork, as I said before, Mrs. Potts, and cover it with margius."

"What kind of margius?" "Oh, 5 per cent margius to begin with."

"I shouldn't think margius as cheap as that would be good for anything. You'd better let me go and pick them out for you, Mr. Potts. Men never know about such things."

"I buy 250 barrels of pork Mrs. Potts, and hold on to it until March." "I thought you said you wouldn't have any to hold on to."

"As I said before, Mrs. Potts, I buy 250 barrels of pork and hold on to it until March comes, and then pork, according to my way of thinking, will be worth a dollar or two more a barrel than I gave for it, and I'll be anywhere from $250 to $500 ahead. What do you think of that, Mrs. Potts?"

"Where is the $500 coming from?" "From my deal."

"What deal?" "The deal I just told you about."

"I haven't heard a word about a deal, Mr. Potts. I guess you are out of your head, this morning. I don't know what has got into you lately."

The Medium Was Right. Mr. Greville was persuaded, when he was over 60 years of age, to attend a spiritualistic seance. Foster, the presiding medium, was in great form, and the revelations were astounding. Greville sat silent, and his aged, wizened face was emotionless as a mask. Suddenly the medium grew excited, and said to the old gentleman:

"A female form is bending over you. Oh, the extraordinary likeness!" Greville sighed.

"She lifts her hands to bless you." Greville sighed again.

"It is your mother?" "Ah, poor thing," said Greville; "I am glad!"

"She smiles! She says all is well with her?" Greville sighed again and said, "I'm delighted!"

Profuse Directions. When a man has missed his way, and is wandering around in perplexing search of the right road, nothing is more annoying than for some one to give him directions which he cannot understand. It is a difficult matter for any man, no matter how well informed, to give directions in a satisfactory manner. A gentleman while en route to Morey's mill, below Little Rock, missed the right road. After wandering over a large extent of territory, he met an old negro.

"Uncle, can you show me the road to Morey's mill?" "Wan's ter go dar, I reckins?" "Of course."

"Uh, huh." "Yer wants ter go de bes' road, I s'umes?" "Yes."

"Wall, dis road heah," pointing, "is de bes' one, but Lawd, white man, yer doan wanter go dat way."

"Why?" "Case its so fur."

"Wall, its there any other road?" "Oh, yes, sah; yer ken take dat road ober dar," pointing again, "but law me, yer doan wanter go dat road."

"Why?" "Case its so bad."

"How far is it by the good road?" "Clare ter goodness, I doan know for it 'peers like yer jis' keep on er goin' an' neber stops."

"How far then by the bad road?" "I tell yer, boss, dat road is so rough dat airter erwhile yer's jis' boum' ter git outen it."

"Can I go around some way?" "Oh, yes, ef yer wants to go roun' yer ken do it easy nuff. Jis' go fru' dis gar in de fence. De fas' place yer comes ter is Martin White's. He's reatin' it dis year but it 'loughs ter ole man George. Yas, de fas' place is Martin Whites. Mar. ain' at home now he's dun summoned on de jury. Den yer takes ter 'de left' an' airter dat keeps straight on. De next place is Dan Thomases. He's runnin' it dis year. Said some time ergo dat he 'lowed ter buy it but he ain' done it yet. Wall, yer ain' apt'er fine Dan at home 'caze de Gubernment tuck him erway for makin' 'a wild-cat whisky. De naixt place—"

"Never mind the place. I don't care who lives on any of them."

"Cose yer doan sah, 'caze I doan care much mys'f. Can't speak er stranger ter take much interest in er neighborhood. De next place is whar I lib. Been libin' dar sense last May when ole man Brauhm tuck sick an' died 'fore son what wuz workin' down in de swamps could git ter de house. Yer'll find some good law in dat—"

"I care nothing for the land. I want to find my way to Morey's mill."

"In co'se, sah; in co'se. Doan kere nuthin' 'bout de law' an' why should yer ef yer doan wanter buy some. Yas, sah, de next place is mine. Yer needn' stop fur I ain' at home. I'se out hidin' while de Gran' Jury is in session an' I blebes dat yer's—a deputy sheriff an' er good-by—"

and leaping over a fence and dodging behind a tree, the colored gentleman was lost to view.—Arkansas Traveler.

Sounds Like a Prevarication. Deacon Bodkin has recently received a visit from his brother, who lives at the West, and last Saturday he took him down to Nautasket for a fish and clam dinner.

"Wall," said the deacon, as they sat on the piazza after dinner, "isn't this here about the tallest you ever see, Jacob? I tell ye, we don't do anything by halves here in the East. Just look at them waves. 'Spose, though, you do raise some garden sass out West?"

"Yes, we do raise some," said Jacob. "The other day a stranger stopped over night with me. He got there just about dark and wanted to stop, so of course I told him that he might. Then, aftr supper we went out on the doorstep for a smoke, and says he:

"Stranger, what do you do with so many barns? Do you have a large hay crop?"

"Barns, stranger?" said I, "they ain't barns; them is punkins, nothing but punkins."

"The next morning," continued Jacob, "my wife said she wanted to make some punkin pies. So I hitched the horse into the cart, took the ladder and ax and went to the nearest punkin. I put up the ladder and climbed to the top and went to work with the ax. After I had nearly filled my cart the ax slipped and fell down inside of the punkin. So I pulled up the ladder and let it down inside and went down to search for my ax."

"Well, I searched for an hour or two, but I didn't find the ax. By-and-by I met another man inside the punkin."

"Hello," said he, "what are you doing here?"

"I've been looking for my ax," said I.

"Your ax?" said he, "well you may look. I lost my horse and cart in this infernal punkin only three days ago, and I have been searching for them ever since, and haven't found them yet."

"Jacob," said the deacon, after a solemn pause, "I'm afraid that story is a prevarication."

THE BALLOT-BOX STUFFERS.

Already have the Bourbons begun their game of ballot-box stuffing, and already have they been caught at it.

A MISTAKE.

Last week our foreman clipped from an exchange and published in our local columns a piece which stated that a number of new furnaces were going into blast in Wythe county.

The debt question and the State finances are in a deplorably complicated condition, owing in part, it must be admitted, to careless and ill-digested action on the part of the last Legislature.

When an ultra Bourbon paper like the Lynchburg Virginian will confess as much as is contained in the above paragraph, what must the full truth be.

If we remember correctly it was Grover Cleveland that announced the policy of stopping the coinage of silver.

The News well knows that a Republican President vetoed the silver bill of 1878—now the silver law.

Yes he has the New York, Wall Street theory, and he intends to enforce that theory, and the Democratic party will swallow the theory just as the Readjuster theory was swallowed by the Bourbon-Funders.

Cleveland made a successful leap from Mayor to Governor and President, and now they are talking about putting up the Mayor of Albany, N. Y., as candidate for Governor.

Why not tell the people that he made a successful leap from the place of public hangman to the Presidency of the United States, and thereby encourage another ambitious class of citizens or office-holders.

WE met a gray haired man on the streets Tuesday who voted with the Democrats last fall. He is a farmer and not an office-seeker.

CLEVELAND'S administration is a promising one. It promises to be, if it is not already, the greatest failure of all the administrations since the formation of the government.

Just wait till an account of the wasteful expenditures of the last Bourbon Legislature is placed before the people, and the eyes of many will open with astonishment.

Do you here the Democrats' Noting the "infernal revenue?" Not much. It gives them a lot of offices, and is a good thing now.

"GOOD Democratic times." How sick the people are getting of them. They are worse even than the "good old Funder times" in Virginia.

Cadets in Revolt.

A Columbia (S. C.) telegram says: The Cadets of the State Military Academy at Charleston are in revolt. It appears that Cadet Schirmer, of Charleston, was recently promoted to be an officer of the cadet corps on account of meritorious character.

The Outlook for Wheat.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 26.—S. W. Talmadge has prepared his monthly crop report and second estimate on the probable wheat yield of the United States for 1885, as follows: There is no longer a question as to the damage and loss to the winter wheat of this country.

An Odd Character.

A Boston telegram says: Sumner Hartwell, the octogenarian hermit of Shirley, is dead. He lived and died in the room where he was born. He passed his life in a locality where he could hear the locomotive whistle daily, yet he never rode on a train of cars, and knew not the appearance of the inside of an ordinary freight caboose.

Seeking Hidden Treasure.

A Detroit special says: James Crabtree, who lived in Croton township, Newago county, has left home on an extraordinary mission. During the Mexican war, in which Mr. Crabtree served, he became intimate with a man named Antonia, with whom he chummed until the close of the war.

Mr. Crabtree is now eighty-three years old, and has been blind for years, but he still thinks that from the descriptions given him he can go to the exact spot where treasure is buried. He is accompanied by his son and one neighbor.

He Turns Up in Pitiable Plight.

An Albany (N. Y.) telegram says: E. E. Palmer, of New Haven, a student, aged twenty-two years, who left that city for Jersey City on June 17th, and who was to have returned Sunday night, presented himself at the farm-house of Albertus W. Becker, at Becker's Corners, Albany county, Wednesday afternoon.

Oil Failures.

NEW YORK, June 29.—The sudden advance in petroleum certificates this morning was followed by the failure of three brokers, G. Muelliere for about 30,000 barrels on calls that he had sold and could not deliver, and S. H. Osborne and J. H. Oddie on contracts for smaller amounts.

ITEMS GATHERED FROM THE TOWN AND COUNTY.

Briefs and Personals.

The new Republican council took charge of the town on yesterday.

Butter now sells in this market for fifteen cents a pound.

If you want a nice suit of clothes from $4.50 (which cannot be beat) and upwards go to J. B. Rhea's.

The baseball club from Fawcett O. H., will come to Marion, and play our boys on Saturday evening.

An infant child of Mr. H. O. Jones died Tuesday night. The cause of its death was whooping cough.

We are offering great inducements now in the price of goods. We quote Zephyr at 6c, a lap; Hosiery and Gloves at greatly reduced prices and Ladies and Misses Hats at cost.

The Board of Supervisors have examined and received the new law offices built by Sheffey & Richardson and Pendleton & Pendleton on the courthouse square.

A polar wave came upon us Monday evening at about sundown, since which time the air has been quite cool. Serious apprehensions were felt on Tuesday night that frost might come.

A beautiful line of children's and Ladies' Slippers and shoes and Gents Boots and Shoes (latest styles) can be found and very cheap at J. B. Rhea's.

The colored base ball club of this place played a match game with a club from Wytheville on last Thursday. The Wytheville club beat the Marion club very badly.

A party of gentlemen will start from our town and go to New River to-morrow on a bass fishing excursion. They will go to Giles county where bass are said to be quite numerous.

My Stock is Complete and Nice and I am Determined not to be Undersold by any one in anything, and every one is Respectfully Invited to Examine my Goods and Prices. My terms are Strictly Cash. J. B. Rhea. Apl. 15-85.

Mr. McDowell, who was selected by the Building Committee of the S. W. Asylum, to superintend the construction of that building, arrived at Marion with his family on Tuesday, and will remain with us until the building is completed.

Examination for Peabody Scholarships in Nashville Normal School will be held at Marion on the 6th of August during the session of the Normal Institute. The examination will be on Grammar, Geography, Arithmetic, Algebra, Book-keeping Physiology and Geology. There are seven vacancies. A. G. PENDLETON.

J. B. Rhea is now opening a very large and attractive stock of Spring goods embracing full lines of White Goods, Lawns, Parasols, Clothing, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Wool, Fur and Straw Hats, Hardware, Notions, Groceries &c. Go and see his goods. His prices will astonish you?

Next Saturday will be the 4th of July. We hear of no arrangements to celebrate the day in this community. Our people have all the veneration, no doubt, that should be felt for this veritable holiday; but times are so hard that few feel disposed to spend any money in show or fun while numbers of people in the community who are almost suffering for bread.

On Tuesday morning, at 11 o'clock, Mr. John W. Richardson, Treasurer of Smyth county, was married, at Dawson, Ga., to Miss Minnie McNulty, daughter of Prof. M. A. McNulty, who taught a number of years ago at Marion. Mr. Richardson is now en route for this place with his bride, and to-night a reception will be given them at the Marion House, to which a number of guests have been invited.

How do you feel? Have you got the headache? Do you sleep restless? Are you troubled with sour stomach, heartburn, dizziness, loss of appetite, a bad taste in your mouth, loss of energy, constipation, palpitation of the heart, pains under the left shoulder, and sallow complexion? If you have any such symptoms, it is a sure sign of a diseased liver. A few doses of Hart's Blood and Liver Pills will cure you. Try them. Give your children Mrs. Winslow's Vermifuge, or Worm Candy.

The Alleghany Sentinel says: By the caving in of a wall at Low Moore mines on Tuesday evening last, a negro laborer, whose name we have failed to learn, was instantly killed and another had his arm and leg broken. The accident was totally unexpected.

Photographs! Photographs!

I have opened my photograph gallery for the season, and am prepared to take pictures in the best style. My gallery is at the same place, opposite the post-office. Come and see me. Respectfully J. L. THORNTON.

New Goods at Proper Prices.

I have just returned from the eastern cities where I laid in a first-class stock of goods, paying cash for them, which I propose to sell at prices as low as they can be bought. I will not undertake to undersell others, but will do as well as the best. The stock consists of everything to be found in a first-class General Merchandise Store. I will sell strictly for cash or good produce, which will enable me to do better by those who wish to buy right. I am at the former stand of Crush & Co., and have Mr. Will Francis with me. He will be glad to see and wait on his friends. Respt. S. C. PAINTER.

NOTICE.

OFFICE OF SUPT. PUB. SCHOOLS. MARION, VA., June 1885.

TO THE TEACHERS OF PUB. SCHOOLS.

Those who expect to teach in the Public Schools of Smyth county are notified that the Normal Institute will open in Marion on the 21st day of July, and you will certainly be expected to attend this school. It has been brought here right at your door, and unless you take advantage of such an opportunity to prepare yourself for the work of teaching you cannot expect to be employed as teachers. Board can be obtained at cheap rates and the instruction given will be of a very high order, and no teacher should miss this opportunity to gain a correct knowledge of how to do their work. I expect to hold my annual examinations during the session of the Normal, and no examination of white teachers will be held by me, except at that time. I shall expect you all to attend. Make your arrangements for board before the school opens, and be present at the opening on the 21st of July.

A. G. PENDLETON, Supt. Pub. Schools Smyth Co.

Normal School at Marion.

Lectures will be delivered before the Normal School by Dr. W. H. Ruffner, of Farmville Female Normal, Prof. F. V. N. Painter, of Roanoke College, Dr. J. L. Buchanan, of Martha Washington and Prof. T. W. Jordan, of Emory & Henry. Let all the teachers come and receive instructions from these great educators. A. G. PENDLETON, Supt.

Another Cancer.

About three years ago there appeared on my right breast several hard lumps which gave me almost intolerable pain. They continued to grow, and finally developed into what the doctors called cancer of the breast. In a short time I found my strength gone and my constitution a total wreck. From a robust woman I was reduced to a helpless invalid. Several of the best physicians of Atlanta treated me for cancer, but without improving my condition in the least, and finally agreeing that they could do nothing more for me. The cancer by this time was eating out my very life, and for five months I was helpless, bedridden creature. About one year ago, at the suggestion of a friend, I commenced the use of Swift's Specific. The first influence of the medicine was to increase the discharge, but after a month or more I began to improve, and this wonderful medicine has brought back my health again. I now do all my own house-work, I am perfectly free from pain, and feel like a new person altogether. I cannot feel too grateful for this wonderful recovery, for I am satisfied if it had not been for Swift's Specific I would have been in my grave to-day. I most cheerfully recommend it to all those who are suffering with this fearful disease. MRS. JANE CLEMONS, Atlanta, Ga. April 18 1885. Swift's Specific is entirely vegetable. Treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

The wheat harvest is in progress in the Shenandoah valley. The quality is excellent, and the yield will be much larger than was anticipated six weeks ago.

E. Harvey Chamberlayne, formerly teller of the Exchange Bank, of Richmond, died Thursday. Captain P. S. Derbyshire, of the same city, master founder of the Tredegar Works, is also dead.

To Get Rid of Misery.

What is the use of suffering from dyspepsia, nervous prostration or debility, when Brown's Iron Bitters will tone you up and cast these horrors out? There is joy in every bottle of this valuable tonic. It makes bad blood good, and bids dismal people be cheerful. It brings good cheer to the dinner table, and makes the family happy. It drives away the blues, and helps you to enjoy a hearty laugh. And all the respectable druggists keep it.

Capt. J. C. Langhorne has sold his White farm, in Roanoke county, 600 acres, to Captain John T. Sayers, of Wythe county, for $12,200 cash.

Town Council.

The new town council met at the court-house on yesterday afternoon and organized.

Some Wonderful Mind-Reading.

New York York has a small share of the physiological freakishness which, in one form or another, has engrossed all of Boston's scientific attention. A long-haired and solemn-faced man undertook to enlighten some of us in the manner of mind perusal. He got an introduction into several Fifth avenue parlors by the help of a college professor, whom he had profoundly impressed, and to select assemblages he disclosed his astonishing powers. The performance was for some charitable purposes selected by the hostess, half the receipts at $1 a head going to that object and half to the professor.

His experiments on each occasion were not startling, until he announced that he desired the co-operation of the most delicately organized girl in the room. Making his own selection, he pressed into his service a slender, diffident, and unwilling maiden. He could discern her inmost thoughts, control her slightest movements, and in various ways demonstrate his theory that, under the right condition, there could be a perfect interchange of ideas without words or other ordinary means of communication. But at the fourth seance some folks who had attended the previous ones saw that the girl was identical in every ease, and their investigation showed that she was an employe, trained by the professor to do his tricks. Mind-reading has now few adherents in those circles.

Photographing the Dead.

Familiarity with corpses, however, seems to harden people, from doctors to undertakers; and even photographers, who make a specialty of photographs after death, get to be as brutal in their treatment of the dead as do the others. A friend of mine saw a photographer arranging a woman to be photographed after death. He was trying to make some drapery about her hang to suit him, but it kept slipping off; so he took a big pin out of his waistcoat and pinned the drapery to the flesh. He did not seem to think that he had done anything out of the way, and when he was spoken to, said: "Why, what nonsense, she can't feel anything." Still I should always have my impression about that photographer, and doubt if he would not do the same to a live person if he were not afraid of the consequences. - Philadelphia Record.

A Sudden Death.

William Cummins, a recently-retired soldier, dropped dead whilst talking with a friend in front of the Catholic church at Fort Monroe last Saturday afternoon. He was fifty-six years old, of sober, industrious habits, and very popular with the officers and men at Fort Monroe. He had attended to his business throughout the day, and to all appearances was in his usual health. He leaves a family, and had just completed a nice residence in Chesapeake City.

Virginia News.

Blue Ridge Echo: Several of our farmers have begun harvesting, and although the wheat is very poor, still it is very well filled, and a better crop will be made than was at first expected.

During a storm a few nights ago five horses owned by Mr. H. P. Mitchell, near Brownsburg, were luddled under a tree out of the rain. The tree was struck by lightning and four of them fell dead. The fifth was so frightened that he ran to the stable and tried to burst in through the door.

Ablaze With Lightning.

A Pococno (Pa.) special says: Andrew Cobb, and Lewis Cobb, of Oakland, went to Knob Pond, in Pike county, on Monday, to fish and remain over night. They went out on the pond in the evening to "jack" for deer. While they were on the opposite side of the water from their cabin a heavy thunder-shower came up and they started to row back. The rain fell in sheets and the thunder and lightning were terrific. Before they had rowed half way across the pond lightning struck in seven different places around it, and seven trees were in a blaze. The play of the electricity was so continuous that the pond was wrapped in almost a steady blaze of light—so steady, in fact, that the light from the reflecting lamp in the bow of the boat could have been dispensed with. Soon after the last stroke of lightning on the shore there came a clap of thunder that seemed to be directed over their heads, and almost simultaneously with the report a ball of fire shot down into the lake a quarter of a mile away. The report was followed in quick succession by two others equally terrible, and each was accompanied by a simultaneous flash of light and the dropping into the lake of balls of fire like the first. The men were filled with terror at the scene, but bent all their energies to reach the shore and seek shelter in their cabin. The play of lightning continued, and when the fishermen had approached within a hundred yards of their cabin, which was near the shore, there came another terrible thunder-clap and a flash of lightning that blinded them. When they recovered from the dazed condition in which it left them they saw that the bolt had descended on their cabin, which was in flames. The men then floated about on the lake for the twenty minutes the frightful storm lasted, momentarily expecting an electric shaft to fall upon them. Three more trees were shattered by lightning in the vicinity of the pond before the storm passed over. The Cobbs are old woodsmen, and have been spectators of many violent mountain storms, but declare that never anything visited this region to compare with that of Monday night.

A West Virginia Snake Story.

(Wheeling (W. Va.) Register.) Braxton county can down the State on snake wonders. A gentleman living not far from the county seat lately succeeded in capturing a snake or pair of snakes corresponding to the Siamese twins. The reptile has two heads and two tails, and the balance of the body looks like that of a single snake, with the exception of a slight depression both above and below, extending the entire length. The bodies join about six inches from the heads, the tails are almost a foot long after leaving the body, while the length of the portion joined is two feet and nine inches. The twins were first seen two weeks ago by a little son of the gentleman who possesses the wonder, who told his father what he had seen, and showed him the track crossing the road. The gentleman made a thorough search at the time, but failed to capture the prize. He, however, ran across it a few days since, and succeeded in noosing and taking it captive. Both the snakes are jet black, with a yellow ring just behind the head. They both eat, and in traveling seem to be wholly of the same opinion as to direction, &c., stopping at precisely the same time, and appearing to have one mind about everything. We pondered carefully before hazarding our reputation for veracity by reporting this phenomenon, but decided to enlighten the world at whatever cost, and to place Braxton county foremost on the list of wonders.

The Hero Was Slain.

One of the farmers who succeeded in backing his wagon into place at the City Hall market the other morning had several errands to do around the neighborhood, and he left his son of 14 on the vehicle to make a sale of five or six bags of potatoes. The old man had scarcely disappeared when a bill distributor came along and threw into the wagon the first chapters of a sensational serial. The boy grabbed for the "fly" and began to devour the literature in chunks and hunks, and of the half-dozen people who came along and asked the price of his potatoes, he answered only one, and him so absent-mindedly that no sale was made. In about half an hour the old man returned. He halted at the back end of the wagon and took in the situation and then asked: 'George, what you got?' 'Storv.' 'What about?' 'Injuns.' 'Do they kill anybody?' 'They are after a feller, and I guess they'll git him.' 'He's the hero i s'pose?' 'Yes.' 'Don't sell any taters, does he?' 'No.'

Call for Republican Convention.

The Executive and State Committees of the Republican party of Virginia, at their meeting held this 30th day of April, 1885, issue the following call for a delegated State Convention of the party to be held at Richmond on Wednesday, the 15th day of July, at 12 M. I. That the Republican voters of the counties for each precinct in the State assemble at their respective polling places on SATURDAY, the 30th day of May, at 12 M., and there appoint such number of delegates as they may see fit to a County Convention to be thereafter held at such time and place as the County Committee, by its chairman, shall designate; and the Republican voters of each city of the State assemble at their respective polling places on SATURDAY EVENING, the 30th day of May, at 8 P. M., and likewise appoint delegates to a City Convention to be thereafter held at such time and place as the City Committee, by its chairman, shall designate. Such precinct meetings shall be called to order and for the same a temporary chairman and secretary designated by any member of the County or City Committee present; or, in the absence of such, by any voter of such precinct or ward. The delegates so appointed shall be certified by the chairman and secretary of the meeting to the county or city chairman, as the case may be. II. The County and City Conventions designated as heretofore provided will be called to order and a temporary chairman and secretary designated by the county or city chairman, and these Conventions will appoint to the State Convention to be held at Richmond, Va., on Wednesday, the 15th day of July, 1885, delegates and alternates as given by the schedule annexed. The delegates and alternates so appointed to be certified to C. C. Clarke, Secretary, Richmond, Va., by the chairman and secretary of such meetings. III. It is recommended to county and city chairmen, where the city or county is entitled to elect one or more members of the Legislature, that the County or City Conventions assembled as provided in section I of this call shall nominate then, or at an adjourned meeting for that purpose, the candidates of the party for the Legislature, and where any city and county, or any two or more counties are entitled to elect a Senator or one or more members of the House of Delegates, or both, that in such cases the delegates and alternates to the State Convention appointed as provided in section I, or such other delegates and alternates as such County or City Convention may choose to appoint, shall constitute a Convention for the nomination of a Delegate, and senator, the same to be thereafter assembled at such time and place as may be designated jointly by the chairmen of the counties or county and city composing the election district; and the chairman of the county or city wherein such convention assembles shall call the same to order and designate a temporary chairman and secretary, and lay before the Convention so organized a roll of the delegates and alternates as certified to him. IV. In all such conventions for the appointment of delegates and alternates to the State Convention, or for the nomination of candidates for the House of Delegates and the Senate of Virginia, each precinct by the delegates representing the same shall be entitled to a vote equal to that cast for the Coalition candidate for Governor in November, 1881.
